One of our common mistakes in life is to assume that trees make a forest, flowers a garden, clothes a man . . . that appearances promise reality.

One of the invaluable influences of Christianity upon society has been its distinction between the facade and the truth. Christ taught that men must be known by their faith.

Lack of spiritual concern is the surest way to make the world a desert of trees . . . a society of people without a sense of responsibility.

Wastelands cry out for reclamation. The Church Christ founded is reclaiming our society for Him. You need its Message.

Boating Safety

Wearing Sperry Top-Sider Moccasins with anti-slip soles adds to your safety while you enjoy your pleasure craft.

Did you know boating waterways are referred to as "roads" by boating authorities? And as in driving a car, there are "road rules" set up to aid in happy safe boating.

Safe boating depends on an alert and attentive operator. As not being prepared is just about the greatest reason why boatmen get into serious trouble, a boat fully equipped with personal flotation devices (at least one for each passenger), emergency repair equipment and a complete supply of first aid equipment is always first on any safety list.

But a wise operator will have on hand a full check list of safety measures as well as foul weather clothing and proper boating footwear, such as Sperry Top-Sider shoes and boots with anti-slip soles. Hundreds of sharp-angled slits in the soles squeeze out water, creating an important safety measure on wet, slippery decks.

. . Overloading and improper loading cause most small boat accidents. Check the boat manufacturer's capacity plate for proper weight.

. . Fueling can be very dangerous. Stop all spark-producing activities such as cigarettes and radios during fueling. Do not leave fuel spills to vaporize.

. . Keep an alert lookout. Watch for swimmers, debris and other boats.

. . Watch your wake. It might capsize small craft or damage shoreline property. You are responsible.

. . Prepare a float plan. It should include a description of the boat, number of passengers, destination, proposed route and return date. Leave it with someone. Notify the holder of your "float plan" when you return.

. . Obey the rules of the road. These rules vary from area to area, so check them out before starting on your trip.

By following this check list, you will "think safety." You will "act safety" and you will have a safe and happy trip each time you go out boating.

Warren Beatty has been a film star longer and yet has made fewer films than any of his contemporaries. One of the contributing factors has been his selectivity. He made his motion picture debut in 1960 in Elia Kazan's "Splendor in the Grass," after a highly successful stage bow in William Inge's "A Loss of Roses." Since then, Beatty has made only thirteen films, two of which he has produced, "Bonnie and Clyde" and "Shampoo" which premieres July 16 at the Falls Twin Theatre.

Dog Training Made Easy By Award-Winning Film

An owner who assumes that he has trained his dog when he has housebroken him and taught him, with qualified success, to keep off the new sofa is cheating himself of the pride and pleasure that comes from having a truly well-trained pet. More than that, he is also cheating his dog of the satisfaction any intelligent animal takes in acquiring a new accomplishment.

One of the easiest ways to learn the rudiments of obedience training—and one of the most effective—is by means of a new film co-sponsored by Friskies Division—Carnation Co. and the Latham Foundation for the Promotion of Humane Education. Titled, "Sit Stay Heel Down Come," the 16mm color and sound motion picture which is 13½ minutes long is now being made available without charge to interested groups such as dog clubs or youth organizations.

The film, which won the Certificate for Creative Excellence in Audio/Visual Communications from the U.S. Industrial Film Festival in April 1975, illustrates the basic techniques employed in training your dog to obey the five basic commands of the title. Utilizing only a simple leather lead with a loop collar and a great deal of patience, practice and, especially, affection and understanding, expert instructors featured in the film show you how you can make your dog a responsive, well-behaved and happy pet in a matter of days and, if you like, prepare him for advanced training in tracking, retrieving and other canine skills.

To order the film, which will be sent on loan—with 3 weeks notice—for a period of 2 weeks without charge (borrowers are expected to pay return postage), write to: Public Service Audience Planners Inc., 6290 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90028.

Hair Care

By The Experts At Norelco

How To Cut Your Losses

In the battle against hair-damaging summer sun and heat, you can cut your losses with a quick snip of the scissors.

That's one of the fundamental recommendations of hair-care professionals for pruning the season's ravages.

Another tip: Sun speeds the outpouring of scalp oil, which means you'll need a daily shampoo. Follow up with a hand held styling dryer. For labor- and time-saving, try Norelco's Styler-Dryer with its 900-watt power pack that mists, dries, combs, brushes, shapes and styles in minutes.

As for that scissor work: if a no-bother short cut suits your personality, you're lucky. But even long hair can do with a trim. If ends are split and dry, clip above the split.

Don't worry about those lost inches. Hair grows fastest during summer months.

Thought For The Day

"Sympathy is a thing to be encouraged, because it supplies us with materials for wisdom. It is probably more instructive to entertain a sneaking kindness for any unpopular person than to give way to perfect raptures of moral indignation against his abstract vices."
—Robert Louis Stevenson

Statement Of Policy

Letters to the editor which express opinion on current topics of interest to the area are encouraged by the Times. We will provide assistance if requested in phrasing thoughts, although we would prefer the letters to be entirely the work of the writer. There is widespread interest in the opinions which individuals have regarding questions of area concern.

Because of potential problems which may arise and the liability which the Times has, we must ask that certain guidelines be observed. That is why we have prepared a statement of policy which we publish from time to time. It is designed to assist potential letter writers in having a course to follow in their endeavors.

STATEMENT OF POLICY

(1) All letters intended for publication in the Puplic Opinion or Letters to the Editor column must be signed and the identity of the writer known to the Times. Address and telephone number of the writer should be included with the signature to enable the Times to verify that the signature is actually that of the writer.

(2) The Times has a strong preference that signatures of letter writers appear with the letters when they are published. To encourage the timid, names will be withheld from publication upon request. However, names of letter writers will be made available upon request to persons who, in the opinion of the editor, have a legitimate interest in knowing the identity of the writer.

(3) Political opinion may be expressed in letters to the editor, but letters endorsing or promoting candidates for political office will not be accepted.

(4) Mimeographed or printed letters intended for publication in a number of papers will not be accepted.

(5) Letters should be in good taste and of moderate length. The editor reserves the right to condense lengthy letters and to make corrections in spelling and grammar when necessary.

(6) Attempt will be made to comply with requests for inclusion of letters to the editor in the issue specified by the writer, but no guarantee is given that such request can be honored.

The Times is responsible for whatever it publishes, and that includes comments in public opinion letters. Therefore, we must have proper identification of letter writers and reserve the right to edit letters which appear in our paper.

Sharing The Cost

Editor Ken Hickman of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, an avid outdoorsman with a keen appreciation for wildlife and its related habitat, wrote the following editorial regarding public sharing of the cost for habitat programs:

An interesting proposal from the Wildlife Management institute would tax non-hunting and non-fishing users of public wildlife lands and would spend more money protecting non-game wildlife species that are not hunted or caught.

It raises some important points. Should the hunters and anglers continue to pay the bulk of the bill for wildlife habitat? Or should bird watchers, photographers, skiers, campers and other non-consumptive users share the cost? More than 12 million persons participate in wildlife observation and photography, the interior department reports.

Most of the burden for supporting state and federal wildlife programs has been carried by the hunter and fisherman through taxes on their firearms, ammunition and fishing gear. In addition, an estimated 240 million dollars a year is spent for state hunting and fishing licenses throughout the United States.

Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the National Wildlife federation, calls the proposal for taxing all who share the outdoors "an imaginative study, offering many constructive suggestions that merit serious consideration." If its recommendations were adopted, Kimball says that "all who enjoy wildlife might share more equitably in paying for the protection of badly-needed wildlife habitat."

One recommendation in the Wildlife Management institute study calls for funding non-game fish and wildlife habitat programs with federal manufacturers excise taxes on recreational vehicles, tents, sleeping bags, lanterns, snow skis, wild bird seed, scuba diving equipment, binoculars, cameras, film and other photographic equipment. Excise taxes from one to 10 per cent on these goods could bring as much as 149 million dollars annually.

Such funds would not go to develop hunting and fishing areas but could be used for developing non-game programs. Under the present setup, virtually all costs of non-game programs are met with funds obtained from hunters and anglers. All members of society—not just hunters and anglers—are benefitting from non-game programs. A broader cross-section should be bearing the cost.

This should not become a battle between those who hunt and those who oppose it. We should all recognize the need to identify and pinpoint specific habitat needs while there is still time to obtain such land and water areas. Nobody who loves the outdoors should object to sharing in its upkeep or in programs to expand opportunities for enjoying wildlife.

It must also be recognized that existing programs need more funding, manpower and support. And somehow there must be better coordination of wetland programs—for example, duck stamp sales provide about 12 million dollars a year which the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service invests in wetlands important as habitat. But the Oahe project in South Dakota will destroy the same kind of wetlands that duck stamp money protects. The Cache river and Garrison projects in Arkansas and North Dakota will drain more than 70,000 acres of wetlands.

It makes little sense to acquire wetlands with one hand and destroy them with the other. Until we settle on a sensible policy in this problem, not much progress can be made in protecting wildlife habitat.

Improving The Image

Following editorial is from the Glenwood Tribune:

Two segments of our society have a tremendous job in front of them to improve their public image.

One segment is business, which has been slipping in the estimation of the public during the last few years. Due to outlandish profits reported last year by some oil companies, the public has the misconception that because Esso, for example, report profits up 300 per cent, ergo, all business makes in that range. In fact, a nationwide poll disclosed that the average person thought business netted 27 per cent of their gross, whereas the actual figure is below 5 per cent.

The second segment that is in trouble with the public is the politician. The politician's stock has perhaps never been lower than it is at the present time, and politicians in general do little to improve their image. There are many honest political figures, but after Watergate, the voters tend to lump all politicians with those who were tainted by Watergate.

Of course, politicians many times deserve censure. On a national level, too many are controlled by special interests such as large corporations, labor unions, etc. Many have taken needless "junkets" at taxpayers' expense while others are seemingly unaware of what's going on either in Washington or their own districts.

Too many persons are cynical about government. They sincerely believe all politicians are out to promote their own interests. It's not true, of course, but a few politicians have succeeded in ruining the reputation of all.

Business and politicians have an awesome task in front of them if they hope to improve their image in the eyes of the public. In our opinion, they'd better start improving that image and soon or the entire nation will suffer. Both segments are vital to our society.

Pickets At Pentagon?

Following editorial is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

What would have happened if the D-Day invasion force at Normandy in 1944 had been on an eight-hour day?

Or what if Teddy Roosevelt's troops had told him at San Juan Hill that charging up hills wasn't in their contract?

Suppose Gen. Patton's troops had been guaranteed 30 minutes off for lunch precisely at noon and two 15-minute coffee breaks a day?

Prospects like that have the Pentagon bitterly fighting a suggestion that truly boggles the mind: unionization of the armed forces.

A sharp union lawyer has convinced even the Army that the First Amendment guarantees servicemen the right to join unions. From there on, the legal aspects are not so clear. There are laws that would seem to prevent a union from representing troops in such traditional union activities as contract bargaining and greivance processing.

It would seem that a serviceman could not be prohibited from belonging to a union. But can anyone (other than the legal sharpie, that is) really imagine the armed forces unionized?

What benefits could the union achieve that have not already been brought about by the change to an all-volunteer defense force? Military pay has been raised to a par with civilian wages. The requirement benefits are hard to beat. KP has been abolished. Early morning musters for no purpose other than having early morning musters have been dropped.

Who wants to be the first to tell a general, "Sorry, sir, the inspection has been canceled. The troops are on strike."

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

At the current time, Democrats in Pennington county and throughout the nation are in the midst of a drive to raise funds through the Dollars for Democrats drive and Democratic telethon. This, in itself, is not an unusual or unfamiliar endeavor. However, taking a closer look at this fundraising effort will show the underlying reasons for this very worthwhile Democratic project.

It is the hope of our organization to receive modest contributions from thousands of Americans. We are not asking for (fat cat) donations of $100 or $1,000. Our intent is to generate contributions of $5 to $50 from as many Americans as possible.

The basis for such a venture is simple. If we can successfully solicit modest donations from many individuals, political parties and candidates will not have to accept the gigantic donations handed out every campaign by the giant special interests. The Democratic party believes the people can and will financially support the candidates of their choice. If this dream is realized, no longer will our government officials feel obligated to answer to rich few.

For this reason, the Pennington county DFL organization is hopeful of a broad level of citizen participation in the Dollars for Democrats drive. This major Democratic fundraiser is of critical importance to every citizen. Hopefully, every citizen will actively participate.

notes from the governor

Wendell R. Anderson

Minnesota's dedicated volunteers and volunteer organizations will receive new recognition and help through the Governor's Office of Volunteer Services, which has just been established with help from ACTION, the federal agency that oversees volunteer programs across the nation.

Over a century ago, a distinguished French observer of America, Alexis de Tocqueville, observed that one of the basic strengths of the American people was their willingness to voluntarily join groups and organizations. He concluded that our people gained a sense of participation in society by providing services that were missing in other countries or had to be provided by government.

Today volunteer efforts still help to keep the size and cost of government down while helping people in need. Over the years, countless Minnesotans have quietly given of themselves and in the process made this a better state in which to live. Many senior citizens, for example, have become Foster Grandparents, enriching their own lives and the lives of children. Many more people would be willing to contribute if they knew of the needs and opportunities that exist.

More than 867 public and private agencies or organizations in Minnesota currently use volunteers. They need many more willing hands and hearts.

The new Office of Volunteer Services will gather information on the need for volunteers and provide that information to individuals and groups throughout the state so that the desire to serve and the need for service can be brought together.

Volunteers often come to their job strong on motivation but short in specific skills. Agencies or organizations provide the necessary training. But one kind of volunteer whose training is too often overlooked is the volunteer coordinator who is asked to supervise or coordinate the activities of others. The Office of Volunteer Services will attempt to train a reservoir of volunteers with the skills needed to coordinate the work of others.

The new office will be located in the Governor's Annex Building, 127 University avenue, one block west of the Capitol, in St. Paul. Additional information is available from Mirjam Karlins, (612) 296-4731.

The executive order establishing the Office of Volunteer Services notes the need for "an office that can channel, communicate, and commit the vigor, vision and idealism that is exemplified by our many volunteer action organizations and activities." I look forward to this new state effort to help people help others.

"... We seek to use our natural resources not as a thing apart but as something that is interwoven with industry, labor, finance, taxation, agriculture, homes, recreation, good citizenship. The result of this interweaving will have a greater influence on the future American standard of living than all the rest of our economics put together."—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

4-H'ers Snack Their Way To Good Nutrition

CHICAGO—America is turning into a nation of snackers rather than meal-eaters says Ann O. Rushing, marketing specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. And popular choices in snacks—pop, candy, potato chips and doughnuts—are made in ignorance or indifference to the rules of sound nutrition.

Young Americans especially tend to load up on high-calorie "junk" foods and overlook the nutritious snacks readily available from the family refrigerator. For example, milk and cheese—alone or made into shakes or pizza—not only are tasty but are the best source of the calcium often lacking in teen diets.

Dairy foods beneficial

The nutritional values of milk and milk products as one of the four food groups are stressed in the national 4-H dairy foods program. This learn-by-doing program for 9- to 19-year-olds is sponsored by Carnation Company and supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

From Hungry Hound Pirate's Grog (a concoction of milk, ice cream and fruit) to Pizza Burgers (see recipe below), 4-H members have fun creating a wide variety of nutritious snacks built around dairy foods.

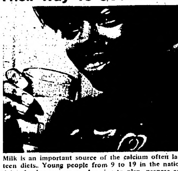
4-H'ers share what they've learned in the program through informal talks and demonstrations, exhibits illustrating nutrition facts and safe food handling, and community projects that help promote better shopping and eating habits among senior citizens and lower-income groups.

Achievement encouraged

Program participants can work for a series of awards donated by Carnation and arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee. This year, six 4-H'ers will get college scholarships of $1,000 for outstanding achievement in the program. These national winners will be honored at the 54th National 4-H Congress, Nov. 30-Dec. 4 in Chicago.

One top 4-H'er in each state receives an expense-paid trip to the National Congress. And up to four winners per county get medals of honor.

All winners are selected by the Extension Service on the basis of their records of accomplishment. More information on the national 4-H dairy foods program is available from county extension agents.



Milk is an important source of the calcium often lacking in teen diets. Young people from 9 to 19 in the national 4-H dairy foods program are learning to plan, prepare and serve nutritious snacks and meals built around milk and milk products. The program is sponsored by Carnation Company and conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service.

A popular recipe

Here's a nutritious recipe that's a combination of two favorites—pizza and hamburgers:

PIZZA BURGERS
(Makes 8 burgers)

- 2/3 cup undiluted evaporated milk
- 1½ pounds lean ground beef
- ½ cup fine cracker meal
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon garlic salt
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 4 hamburger buns
- 1 cup (8-ounce can) tomato sauce
- 3/4 teaspoon crushed oregano leaves
- 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded mozzarella cheese

Combine evaporated milk, ground beef, cracker meal, onion, garlic salt, salt and Parmesan cheese in large mixing bowl; mix well. Split each hamburger bun in half and toast. Divide meat mixture into 8 parts. Spread one part meat mixture evenly over the top surface of each bun half. Place on cookie sheet. Make well in center of meat using back of spoon. Combine tomato sauce and oregano. Spoon 2 tablespoons tomato sauce into each well. Bake in hot oven (425° F) 20 minutes. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons cheese over each burger; continue baking until cheese melts.

Storybook Dessert

If Hansel and Gretel would have stumbled upon this beautiful gingerbread dessert somewhere in the woods, they might never have gotten lost. Likewise, modern day romantics will find this treat made with Post 40% bran flakes a perfect picnic fare. The cereal ingredients offer another plus. It's a convenient and good tasting source of food fiber in the diet—important because some nutritionists believe that there may be a shortage of fiber in the American diet today.

BRAN GINGERBREAD

- 1-3/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 3/4 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 egg
- 1 cup molasses
- 1 cup hot water
- 2 cups 40% bran flakes

Mix flour with soda, baking powder, salt, and spices. Cream shortening; beat in egg. Add molasses and hot water and blend until smooth. Add flour mixture; beat until smooth. Stir in cereal. Pour into a 9-inch square pan which has been lined on bottom with paper. Bake at 325° for about 45 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 5 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Serve warm with prepared whipped topping, if desired. Makes 9 servings.

Hospital Given Fetal Monitor

A new fetal monitor has been installed, tested, calibrated and placed in use at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, according to Norman P. Peterson, executive vice president.

The equipment was ordered by the hospital on recommendation of the medical staff through funds made available by the hospital auxiliary. The auxiliary has committed $6,600 toward the purchase with $2,500 paid at the time of order and the balance due during the next two years or less from fund raising activities sponsored and carried out by members of the auxiliary.

"This equipment will provide constant surveillance of the baby's heart rate and the force, frequency and duration of contractions during labor of the maternity patient," states Dr. A. F. Scheuneman, chairman of the pediatrics and obstetrics commitee of the Northwestern hospital medical staff.

The equipment employs complex doppler electronics to count the fetal heart rate and uterine activity which provides the attending physician and nursing staff with accurate indicators and early warning should any unforeseen complications or problems arise during the labor period prior to delivery.

A booklet describing the function of the fetal monitoring equipment will be provided to each maternity patient who will be monitored and an explanation of the procedures used with be given to the patient.

Since the monitor provides a continuous record on paper which can be read easily by the obstetrical staff as well as audible signals, it will enable the earliest possible detection of difficulties in childbirth.

Site Team Pays Hospital Visit Here On Monday

Site team visit from the University of Minnesota medical school was made to Northwestern hospital Monday by Dr. David Spencer, program director and Sandra Rorem, clinic manager, of Smiley's Point clinic in Minneapolis.

The local hospital is among 25 being considered as a site for a rotating residency in family practice through the university's community medicine elective. The residency would provide practical experience in the health care delivery system found in rural Minnesota. Eight hospitals will be selected for the first year of the program.

According to information provided by the site team, the program is specifically designed to bring residents to rural communities for a period of at least one month to work under the direct supervision of preceptors in rural communities. This would allow them to gain a meaningful educational experience and to meet the objectives outlined in the program.

The Minnesota academy of family practice, the rural physician associate program and the program director groups of the department of family practice at the university have held a number of meetings to coordinate the residency effort. Plans are to make it one of the more significant electives for residency training in family practice at the university.

$300,000 Grant Awarded To City

City officials were informed Thursday by U.S. representative Robert Bergland that Thief River Falls has been awarded a $300,000 community development block grant by the department of housing and urban development. The funds were awarded to enable the city to embark on a two part program. The first and major part of the program is acquisition of property and development of an elderly housing project in the south central area of the city, and the second is development of a program for the rehabilitation of individual housing units in the city.

The city was eligible to apply for the grant under the outlines of the housing and community development act of 1974, which provides funding for the rehabilitation of blight and overcrowding in urban areas. The city's funds were awarded from $48,000,000 in non-entitlement discretionary funds made available over a six year period. The $300,000 grant is the maximum amount allowable to one city during the first year of the program.

Final application for the grant was submitted to the Northwest Regional Development Commission for a recommendation April 22 and forwarded to HUD May 15. Competition for funding was intense, with a total of 359 pre-applications submitted to HUD. However in April HUD informed the city that its pre-application ranked 27th on the list

Four From TRF Hurt In Crash Which Kills Six

Four Thief River Falls residents were injured, two of them seriously, in a collision between a car and a van near Detroit Lakes Saturday night which claimed the lives of six people and injured a total of 12. It was the worst traffic accident recorded in Minnesota this year.

Thomas Hanson, 20, of TRF is listed in serious condition at St. Mary's hospital in Detroit Lakes and Neil Carlson, 34, of the city is in serious condition at St. Luke's hospital in Fargo. Bruce A. Johnson, 20, and Tim Engelstad, 20 of TRF were treated at St. Mary's and released Sunday.

Michael Niebauer, 27, of Mentor, a passenger in the van, was killed. The driver of the van, Bruce Johnson, 22, of Fosston, is listed in fair condition at St. Mary's and Becky Haaven, 18, of McIntosh is in serious condition at St. Luke's. Three other passengers in the van were treated at St. Luke's and released Sunday. They are Jeffrey Nelson, 20, Goodridge; Julie Bergman, 18, McIntosh; and Pat Moran, 19, Erskine.

The 10 people in the van were returning from a softball game at the Detroit Lakes water carnival when the crash occurred at about 10:45 p.m., approximately one mile east of the city. The van was heading east on Highway 34 when it met a car heading west on 34.

Five of the six people in the car were killed. They are: Harold C. Flohrs, 24 (driver), Fargo, N.D.; Albert Flohrs, 27, Fargo; Janie Selberg, 19, Moorhead; Lois Snook, 19, Fargo; and Michael D. Niemi, 22, Fargo. Judy Gotaas, 18, Moorhead, is in critical condition at St. Luke's hospital.

County Jobless Claims Total 1,093 July 11

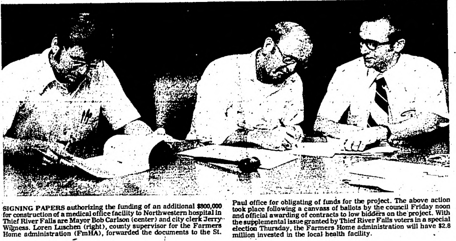
Number of persons in active claim status (all programs) at the Thief River Falls area office of the Minnesota department of employment services for the week ending July 11 totaled 1,093, J. K. Stadum, area office manager, reported Tuesday.

Sadum said this was 22 less than last week. Compared to a year ago, it was up 369. The number of persons filing initial claims was 154 up 15 from the previous week.

Initial claims filed included 12 claims for extended benefits; 15 federal supplemental benefits; and four for special unemployment assistance.

Extended and supplemental benefits are special programs which provide additional benefits after the regular unemployment insurance benefits have been exhausted. The three programs combined offer a maximum of 65 weeks of benefits. Another program, Special unemployment assistance, is available to those persons whose employers do not participate in the regular unemployment insurance program.

Total payments in Pennington, Marshall, Kittson, Red Lake and Roseau counties amounted to $45,910 this week, compared to $54,180 last week and $87,914 a year ago. Since January 1, a total of $3,361,402 had been paid compared to $3,596,331 for the same period a year ago.



SIGNING PAPERS authorizing the funding of an additional $800,000 for construction of a medical office facility to Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls are Mayor Bob Carlson (center) and city clerk Jerry Wigness. Loren Luschen (right), county supervisor for the Farmers Home administration (FmHA), forwarded the documents to the St. Paul office for obligating of funds for the project. The above action took place following a canvass of ballots by the council Friday noon and official awarding of contracts to low bidders on the project. With the supplemental issue granted by Thief River Falls voters in a special election Thursday, the Farmers Home administration will have $2.8 million invested in the local health facility.

Supplemental Bond Passes; Clinic Bids Are Awarded

With 640 voters going to the polls Thursday in a special election, a supplemental bond issue of $800,000 was approved by a vote of 395 to 245 for construction of a medical office building addition to Northwestern hospital services. Total bonding for the project now stands at $2.8 million with the city's general obligation revenue bonds to be purchased by the Farmers Home administration at a five per cent interest rate.

Meeting Friday noon to officially canvass the ballots, the Thief River Falls city council also formally accepted low bids on the project and authorized construction to begin. General contractor will be Witcher Construction company of Minneapolis with a low bid of $1,625,000. Lee Plumbing and Heating of Thief River Falls will have the mechanical contract with a low bid of $589,470 (plus a $3,985 alternate for a larger water main). Electrical contractor will be Roley Electric of Warren with a low bid of $276,000.

The vote on the supplemental bond issue Thursday carried in four of the city's five wards with the fourth ward deadlocked at 66 votes in favor and 66 opposed. Largest margin was in the fifth ward where there were 57 votes difference between the 109 yes voters and 52 no voters.

The third ward had a 55-vote margin at 96 to 41, followed by the second ward with a 69-41 vote and the first ward with a 55-45 vote.

In the initial bond election held April 15, the issue carried 1,183 to 359 with all wards heavily in favor. Voted totals in that election included Ward 1, 200 yes and 73 no; ward 2, 205 and 62; ward 3, 238 and 58; ward 4, 214 and 92; and ward 5, 326 and 74.

The bids accepted by the council Friday were opened on June 5 and found to be substantially above estimates for the project. Low bidders granted an extension of 15 days beyond the normal 30-day holding period to permit the supplementary special election to be held. The election was a requirement of the Farmers Home administration to qualify the city for five per cent financing.

Word was received by hospital officials late this morning from James F. Redmond, president of Witcher Construction company, that work is expected to begin on the project within a week to 10 days. Paper work prior to the construction start is now being completed. The project is expected to be completed in 450 days.

Total bids awarded Friday are $2,497,455. Excess of the $2.8 million bond authority above the total bids will provide for architect's fees and other items, allowing the hospital to retain reserves for operation of the medical office building when built. It had been originally planned to use some of the reserves in the construction program.

In other business transacted at the council meeting Friday noon, bids were called for by the city on luminaires, poles and transformers and a one-week extension was granted to Bill Dee on his option on the Northern Motors building on Main avenue.

HOME CANNING produces such delectable items for the table as this array of fruit, vegetables, pickles, juices, jellies and other items. This assortment came from the pantry of Mrs. Clarence Peterson, perennial winner at the Pennington county fair, who says it was not unusual for her to can 800 to 900 containers of food items a year while her family was growing. She still will can 200 to 300 containers—if she can get the lids she needs.

Home Canning Hurt By Supply Shortage

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

As the home canning season gets underway in earnest in the Times area, the supply of jar lids and rings expected to appear has failed to materialize. Wholesale and retail establishments contacted late last week indicate a non-existent supply except for a limited amount of jars with lids and rings.

Information received by retail outlets earlier this year indicated that supplies would be available as the season progressed. Explanation given was that materials would be shipped to southern points first where the canning season is earlier, but that supplies would be sent here in time for the local season.

While some black marketing has been suspected, supply indications here are that little selling of that nature is being done. Rather than a supply being available at an inflated price, it seems that no supplies are available at any price.

"It's really a shame," is the way the situation was described by Charlie Ness at L. B. Hartz Wholesale. He said the Hartz firm is on allocation from both the Kerr and Ball companies and will take all the supplies it can get. Suppliers indicate they have increased production in their conversations with the Hartz firm but shipments have been too small and too few.

Ness said he believed some hoarding has been done by some home canners over a period of time, particularly those who have need for only a small supply of lids. This would have a tendency to tighten the supply but would not be a prime cause of the situation which Ness terms "extremely tight".

Bill Holmos of the local Gamble-Robinson wholesale outlet said he has been on the phone a number of times to brokers and representatives of both Kerr and Ball Brothers without getting any satisfaction. One representative said he may be able to "ship you some lids in about a month", but Holmos admits such supply may be too late.

"We're already running into a situation where sale of fresh fruit to dealers is becoming a problem due to the canning supply shortage," he said. "Dealers tell our salesmen they can't sell the fruit if they can't provide the customers with supplies for canning."

Ness and Holms both emphasized that they are doing all they can to obtain supplies for this area and that price is not a

CONSTRUCTION WORK is expected to be underway this week on the new Oakland Park nursing home at the Oakland Park grounds in Thief River Falls. Word has been received by Sherryll Irvine, administrator of the home, that the construction strike which has delayed work has now been settled and full scale building can get underway. Much of the excavation has been done, she said, in preparation for the building project and concrete pouring should begin by mid-week. General contractor is Witcher Construction of Minneapolis and total cost for the 33,000 square foot building is $1,057,380. Location of the new Oakland Park home will be almost directly west of the present building. The Witcher contract is for $689,800 with Lee Plumbing and Heating of Thief River Falls having the mechanical contract at $228,580 and E & L Electric of Williams holding the electrical contract of $139,000.

Hospital Given Fetal Monitor

A new fetal monitor has been installed, tested, calibrated and placed in use at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, according to Norman P. Peterson, executive vice president.

The equipment was ordered by the hospital on recommendation of the medical staff through funds made available by the hospital auxiliary. The auxiliary has committed $6,600 toward the purchase with $2,500 paid at the time of order and the balance due during the next two years or less from fund raising activities sponsored and carried out by members of the auxiliary.

"This equipment will provide constant surveillance of the baby's heart rate and the force, frequency and duration of contractions during labor of the maternity patient," states Dr. A. F. Scheuneman, chairman of the pediatrics and obstetrics commitee of the Northwestern hospital medical staff.

The equipment employs complex doppler electronics to count the fetal heart rate and uterine activity which provides the attending physician and nursing staff with accurate indicators and early warning should any unforeseen complications or problems arise during the labor period prior to delivery.

A booklet describing the function of the fetal monitoring equipment will be provided to each maternity patient who will be monitored and an explanation of the procedures used with be given to the patient.

Since the monitor provides a continuous record on paper which can be read easily by the obstetrical staff as well as audible signals, it will enable the earliest possible detection of difficulties in childbirth.

Site Team Pays Hospital Visit Here On Monday

Site team visit from the University of Minnesota medical school was made to Northwestern hospital Monday by Dr. David Spencer, program director and Sandra Rorem, clinic manager, of Smiley's Point clinic in Minneapolis.

The local hospital is among 25 being considered as a site for a rotating residency in family practice through the university's community medicine elective. The residency would provide practical experience in the health care delivery system found in rural Minnesota. Eight hospitals will be selected for the first year of the program.

According to information provided by the site team, the program is specifically designed to bring residents to rural communities for a period of at least one month to work under the direct supervision of preceptors in rural communities. This would allow them to gain a meaningful educational experience and to meet the objectives outlined in the program.

The Minnesota academy of family practice, the rural physician associate program and the program director groups of the department of family practice at the university have held a number of meetings to coordinate the residency effort. Plans are to make it one of the more significant electives for residency training in family practice at the university.

$300,000 Grant Awarded To City

City officials were informed Thursday by U.S. representative Robert Bergland that Thief River Falls has been awarded a $300,000 community development block grant by the department of housing and urban development. The funds were awarded to enable the city to embark on a two part program. The first and major part of the program is acquisition of property and development of an elderly housing project in the south central area of the city, and the second is development of a program for the rehabilitation of individual housing units in the city.

The city was eligible to apply for the grant under the outlines of the housing and community development act of 1974, which provides funding for the rehabilitation of blight and overcrowding in urban areas. The city's funds were awarded from $48,000,000 in non-entitlement discretionary funds made available over a six year period. The $300,000 grant is the maximum amount allowable to one city during the first year of the program.

Final application for the grant was submitted to the Northwest Regional Development Commission for a recommendation April 22 and forwarded to HUD May 15. Competition for funding was intense, with a total of 359 pre-applications submitted to HUD. However in April HUD informed the city that its pre-application ranked 27th on the list

County Jobless Claims Total 1,093 July 11

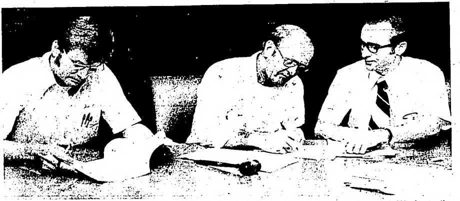
Number of persons in active claim status (all programs) at the Thief River Falls area office of the Minnesota department of employment services for the week ending July 11 totaled 1,093, J. K. Stadum, area office manager, reported Tuesday.

Sadum said this was 22 less than last week. Compared to a year ago, it was up 369. The number of persons filing initial claims was 154 up 15 from the previous week.

Initial claims filed included 12 claims for extended benefits; 15 federal supplemental benefits; and four for special unemployment assistance.

Extended and supplemental benefits are special programs which provide additional benefits after the regular unemployment insurance benefits have been exhausted. The three programs combined offer a maximum of 65 weeks of benefits. Another program, Special unemployment assistance, is available to those persons whose employers do not participate in the regular unemployment insurance program.

Total payments in Pennington, Marshall, Kittson, Red Lake and Roseau counties amounted to $45,910 this week, compared to $54,180 last week and $87,914 a year ago. Since January 1, a total of $3,361,402 had been paid compared to $3,596,331 for the same period a year ago.



SIGNING PAPERS authorizing the funding of an additional $800,000 for construction of a medical office facility to Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls are Mayor Bob Carlson (center) and city clerk Jerry Wigness. Loren Luschen (right), county supervisor for the Farmers Home administration (FmHA), forwarded the documents to the St. Paul office for obligating of funds for the project. The above action took place following a canvass of ballots by the council Friday noon and official awarding of contracts to low bidders on the project. With the supplemental issue granted by Thief River Falls voters in a special election Thursday, the Farmers Home administration will have $2.8 million invested in the local health facility.

Supplemental Bond Passes; Clinic Bids Are Awarded

With 640 voters going to the polls Thursday in a special election, a supplemental bond issue of $800,000 was approved by a vote of 395 to 245 for construction of a medical office building addition to Northwestern hospital services. Total bonding for the project now stands at $2.8 million with the city's general obligation revenue bonds to be purchased by the Farmers Home administration at a five per cent interest rate.

Meeting Friday noon to officially canvass the ballots, the Thief River Falls city council also formally accepted low bids on the project and authorized construction to begin. General contractor will be Witcher Construction company of Minneapolis with a low bid of $1,628,000. Lee Plumbing and Heating of Thief River Falls will have the mechanical contract with a low bid of $589,470 (plus a $3,985 alternate for a larger water main). Electrical contractor will be Roley Electric of Warren with a low bid of $276,000.

The vote on the supplemental bond issue Thursday carried in four of the city's five wards with the fourth ward deadlocked at 66 votes in favor and 66 opposed. Largest margin was in the fifth ward where there were 57 votes difference between the 109 yes voters and 52 no voters.

The third ward had a 55-vote margin at 96 to 41, followed by the second ward with a 69-41 vote and the first ward with a 55-45 vote.

In the initial bond election held April 15, the issue carried 1,183 to 369 with all wards heavily in favor. Voted totals in that election included Ward 1, 200 yes and 73 no; ward 2, 205 and 62; ward 3, 238 and 58; ward 4, 214 and 92; and ward 5, 326 and 74.

The bids accepted by the council Friday were opened on June 5 and found to be substantially above estimates for the project. Low bidders granted an extension of 15 days beyond the normal 30-day holding period to permit the supplementary special election to be held. The election was a requirement of the Farmers Home administration to qualify the city for five per cent financing.

Word was received by hospital officials late this morning from James F. Redmond, president of Witcher Construction company, that work is expected to begin on the project within a week to 10 days. Paper work prior to the construction start is now being completed. The project is expected to be completed in 450 days.

Total bids awarded Friday are $2,497,455. Excess of the $2.8 million bond authority above the total bids will provide for architect's fees and other items, allowing the hospital to retain reserves for operation of the medical office building when built. It had been originally planned to use some of the reserves in the construction program.

In other business transacted at the council meeting Friday noon, bids were called for by the city on luminaires, poles and transformers and a one-week extension was granted to Bill Dee on his option on the Northern Motors building on Main avenue.

Home Canning Hurt By Supply Shortage

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

As the home canning season gets underway in earnest in the Times area, the supply of jar lids and rings expected to appear has failed to materialize. Wholesale and retail establishments contacted late last week indicate a non-existent supply except for a limited amount of jars with lids and rings.

Information received by retail outlets earlier this year indicated that supplies would be available as the season progressed. Explanation given was that materials would be shipped to southern points first where the canning season is earlier, but that supplies would be sent here in time for the local season.

While some black marketing has been suspected, supply indications here are that little selling of that nature is being done. Rather than a supply being available at an inflated price, it seems that no supplies are available at any price.

"It's really a shame," is the way the situation was described by Charlie Ness at L. B. Hartz Wholesale. He said the Hartz firm is on allocation from both the Kerr and Ball companies and will take all the supplies it can get. Suppliers indicate they have increased production in their conversations with the Hartz firm but shipments have been too small and too few.

Ness said he believed some hoarding has been done by some home canners over a period of time, particularly those who have need for only a small supply of lids. This would have a tendency to tighten the supply but would not be a prime cause of the situation which Ness terms "extremely tight".

Bill Holmos of the local Gamble-Robinson wholesale outlet said he has been on the phone a number of times to brokers and representatives of both Kerr and Ball Brothers without getting any satisfaction. One representative said he may be able to "ship you some lids in about a month", but Holmos admits such supply may be too late.

"We're already running into a situation where sale of fresh fruit to dealers is becoming a problem due to the canning supply shortage," he said. "Dealers tell our salesmen they can't sell the fruit if they can't provide the customers with supplies for canning."

Ness and Holms both emphasized that they are doing all they can to obtain supplies for this area and that price is not a

Patricia D. McCullough Weds Arden L. Peterson

Patricia Diane McCullough became the bride of Arden L. Peterson in an evening double-ring ceremony held at Faith Lutheran church in Forest Lake, Minnesota. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McCullough of Newfolden. The parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Peterson of Chisago City.

The white marble altar of the church was graced on each side by candelabra and floral arrangements of white gladioli with white, blue tipped carnations.

Rev. Frank Johnson officiated at the company. Mrs. Virginia Powers presided at the organ, playing appropriate selections as the guests were ushered in by Kevin Peterson, brother of the groom, and Ken Johnson, brother-in-law of the bride. Soloist Milton Erickson sang "There is Love," before the ceremony, "Follow Me," following the processional, and "The Lord's Prayer," while the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father. She wore a white organza gown, appliqued with Venise lace, featuring a continuous lace scallop along the hemline and chapel length train. The yoke and sleeves of the gown were of delicate petal-edged lace. Small white satin buttons secured and accented the back of the gown and sleeves. Her headpiece of petal-layered lace and pearls held her finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses, white and blue baby carnations and baby's breath with white ribbon bows and streamers.

Marlys Chaput of Brooks, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Other attendants were Arlene Johnson of Inver Grove Heights, sister of the bride; Cheri Peterson of St. Paul, sister-in-law of the groom; and Marlys McCullough, also of St. Paul, sister-in-law of the bride.

The attendants wore floor length gowns of white eyelet lace with light blue edging. Their gowns, accented by a dust ruffle, featured ruffles on the yoke and at the neckline. Their long, fitted lace sleeves were puffed and pleated at the shoulders. Each attendant carried three long-stemmed white carnations with blue edgings, ferns and blue bows and streamers. In their hair they wore tiny arrangements of white baby carnations with blue tipped petals.

Best man was D. Patrick McCullough, brother of the bride. Groomsmen were Dale Anderson, friend of the groom, Rick Wickre and Bob Boeltl, friends of the bride and groom. All the men in the wedding party were attired in flaxen blue tuxedos with brocade trim, matching bow ties, white ruffled shirts and white patent leather boots. The groom's boutonniere was a large single red rose. His attendants wore single white carnations, edged in blue.

The mother of the bride was attired in a light blue floor length gown with long lace sleeves; and the groom's mother wore a mint green gown with long, sheer sleeves. Both mothers wore corsages of red baby roses interwoven with white ribbon.

The fathers of the couple were attired in flaxen blue with dark trousers and shoes. They also wore white, blue gilded single carnation boutonniers.

Honor guests at the wedding were Tammy and Angie Peterson, daughters of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony with Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stromgren of Strandquist friends of the bride and groom, serving as host and hostess. LeAnne Strom of Brooks, and Tammy Johnson of Inver Grove Heights, nieces of the bride, distributed the groom's cake. Lori McCullough of St. Paul and Annette McCullough of Minnetonka, also nieces of the bride, served as waitresses. At the guest book was Liz Boeltl of St. Paul, friend of the couple. JoAnne Storm, cousin of the groom, pinned the flowers and arranged the gifts. Terry Johnson of Inver Grove Heights and Bradley McCullough of St. Paul, nephews of the bride, served as gift bearers.

The wedding cake featured a large white Bible surrounded by a field of blue flowers. On the gold edged pages were double rings, the name of the bride and groom and the words "Two shall become one," inscribed in gold icing. The cake was cut and served by Violet Mellgren of Edina, and Carol Svang of Stillwater, aunt and cousin of the groom, respectively. Pouring were Manghild Peterson of Chisago City, aunt of the groom, and Rosie Berghur of Bloomington, cousin of the groom.

The bride is a graduate of Marshall County high school of Newfolden and Bemidji state college. The groom is a graduate of Chisago City high school and Control Data technical institute. KITCHEN KARNIVAL

by Ellen M. Spray

As we are preparing to observe the BiCentennial anniversary of our nation, we have begun reviewing the lives of the pioneers who settled in this area. In doing so, one often hears someone say, "The trouble with our nation today is that the people don't have the pioneer spirit. They can't face disasters like our pioneers did. They don't have the stamina."

How untrue. The same stamina that was evident in our pioneers at the turn of the century is very much in evidence today in this area. The people of this area, who suffered losses due to the recent floods aren't giving up. Like their forefathers, who cleared the lands, they are restoring their homes, places of business and their farms. Some of them are discouraged, a few are undecided as what to do, but the majority of them aren't giving up. As one woman said, "It is our home, our way of life. We just can't give up because of one misfortune. We're not minimizing our loss." After a pause, she continued, "It isn't easy to see your crop which represents your livelihood, disappear in just a few short hours."

Another, whose basement was filled with water and whose fields were flooded, said, "The future isn't bright. At present it seems that our government is more interested in helping the people of Saudi Arabia and in cementing relations with Russia by spending millions on the Soyuz project than in helping the people in this area."

Who is to blame for what seems to be the government's lack of compassion for its own people?

After watching the television feature on the welfare problem in Massachusetts on "60 Minutes," one was again made aware of how a few people can spoil a good program for the majority. After seeing what the people have done to the welfare program, it is easy to understand why the government may be hesitant in giving grants and loans. It is sad to note that there are able bodied people who would rather accept welfare, or worse still, fraud the welfare department, than to support themselves or their families. Those people are not the backbone of our country. They are not the ones who are cleaning up their homes after a flood, digging ditches to drain their fields, or "making-do" until next year when they hope to have a bumper crop.

Today's Kitchen Karnival salutes the people of this area who were victims of the recent floods; the people who are facing their losses with realism, independence, and a great deal of courage; the people who are salvaging their remaining crops and selling their cattle due to loss of pasture land; and the people, who although they have tears in their eyes and a lump in their throats, are facing the future with the hope that next year will be better. Those people are the pioneers of 1975. They deserve encouragement.

Let them know that you care.

Today's recipe comes from Mrs. Clifford Johnsrud of rural Goodridge. It is for a Scandinavian pastry, Kringer. Thanks Mrs. Johnsrud for sharing this recipe with us.

Kringer

First part:
½ cup butter
1 cup flour
2 tablespoons water

Method: Mix ingredients together as for pie crust. Divide into two parts and pat out on two cookie sheets. Set aside.

Second part:
½ cup butter
1 cup water
1 cup flour
1 tablespoon sugar
3 eggs
2 teaspoons almond flavoring

Method: Combine water and butter in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Add flour and sugar, stirring constantly. The mixture will be thick, resembling dough for cream puffs. Remove from heat and add unbeaten eggs, one at a time. Beat well after adding each egg. Add flavoring and spread dough evenly over the unbaked crust. Bake at 350 degrees on the highest rack in the oven for 45 to 50 minutes, or until golden brown. When cool frost with powder sugar icing and decorate with cherries or colored candies.

The Johnsruds live on a farm in the Goodridge area that was flooded recently. She stated that they were fortunate in that the water didn't reach their buildings. Due to the flood, they had to sell some of their cattle as the pastures were ruined.

The Johnsruds have two daughters, Candyce and Kristi, both attending Goodridge school. The family attends Ekelund Lutheran church. For relaxation in the evening, they play horseshoe and badminton.

Flood Disaster Clinic Opened At Crookston

Families and individuals who suffered flood losses in Pennington county may seek relief at a disaster assistance center in Crookston through Thursday. The center, located at the Central high school cafeteria at 121 East Third street in Crookston, is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The center in Crookston (and one in Moorhead) were opened Saturday following a major disaster area designation by President Ford for ten counties in northwestern Minnesota and three townships in an 11th county. Federal aid was requested by Governor Wendell R. Anderson following severe storms and flooding in the area during late June and early July.

Counties involved are Pennington, Marshall, Polk, Roseau, Kittson, Beltrami, Clay, Itasca, Norman and Wilkin counties. The three Becker county townships are Walworth, Atlanta and Spring Creek.

The disaster designation permits the use of federal funds in relief and recovery efforts through the disaster assistance administration and the farmers home administration (FHA). Aid consists primarily of temporary housing, disaster unemployment assistance benefits to persons who have lost jobs as a result of flooding, removal of debris, and the repair of damaged or destroyed streets, roads, bridges, public facilities and utilities.

Estimated flood damage in Pennington county totaled $20,422,527, with damage to roads, bridges, culverts and ditches totaling $222,527 and agricultural damage $20,200,000.

The disaster assistance centers in Crookston and Moorhead will serve residents of Pennington, Polk, Norman, Clay and Wilkin counties.

Residents visiting the centers will receive information on the various types of assistance available and have an opportunity to apply for the benefits most appropriate to their needs. They are advised to bring with them whatever forms of insurance they carry in order to expedite recovery efforts.

NOT ENOUGH LIDS to go around is the problem faced by homemakers in the Times area as the summer canning season has arrived. Gardens are beginning to produce vegetables for canning and fresh fruit is also showing up at local grocery stores. Supply of lids and rings continues to be nearly non-existent.

Home Canning Situation Hit By Short Supply

consideration. "I've probably already spent more money on phone calls to brokers and company representatives than the profit we would make on the lids we may get," Holmos said. "There really isn't much profit in lids and rings for us but we feel we should provide our customers with the service if we can."

Holmos said his supply situation leads him to suspect the black market aspect. Although companies claim increased production (according to a National Association of Retail Grocers release earlier this year), the local Gamble-Robinson warehouse has received only 65 cases of assorted lids and rings this year. The normal supply would be 275 to 300 cases, Holmos said.

A spot check by the Times of retail grocery stores and supermarkets showed stocks of lids and rings to be depleted. Most grocers who had received any shipments at all were restricting sales to spread the supply among their customers. All of those added that there is really no fair way to accomplish the distribution.

Of the stores contacted, only Erl's Food Market at Eighth and Main had any supplies on hand. Erling Olson said on Saturday that he had two cases of lids and rings (48 dozen) on hand from a shipment of six cases he had received earlier. He had also received four cases of lids some time ago but sold out of those rapidly. He had not been restricting quantity to customers, he said, because needs of customers vary.

As the home garden season advances, home canners are working on the supply of lids they may have managed to accumulate during the year since last season. The demand may be lessened somewhat in this immediate area by the flooding which wiped out a number of gardens in the rural area.

Mrs. Dale Kainz is one home canner who expects she will not have enough supplies for her own use. Last year she wrote to the Kerr company when defective lids manufactured by that company caused 20 to 25 of her canned items to fail to seal. She received a payment from the company with the assurance that the firm would do its best to produce more supplies for the 1975 season. Mrs. Kainz normally cans 175 to 200 containers of fruit and vegetables.

Mrs. Clarence Peterson, whose canned goods entries perennially rate high at the Pennington county fair, said her use of canning supplies has declined over the years. She still cans from 200 to 300 containers of food, mostly vegetables and sauce. When her family was growing, however, it was normal to can 800 to 900 containers during the summer season.

"We used everything we could get for canning," she said. "We even put up jelly in two-gallon jars. Now I have lots of jars and rings but it will probably be a problem getting the lids."

Canners who have been at the game for a few years generally have accumulated a supply of jars. Most of them also have a good supply of rings which can be used several times. Only lids are needed—and they seem to be in shortest supply.

If the manufacturing companies are interested in meeting the demand, it seems they should produce what is most needed. That would be: First, lids only for regular and wide mouth jars; second, lids with rings; and third, jars with lids and rings. And since profiteering doesn't seem to be a motive of the manufacturers—based on prices of supplies which have been available—the question of reasons for the shortage seems all the more difficult to understand.

Public Meeting On Welfare Plan Here July 30th

Gov. Wendell Anderson has announced that a proposed 1975-76 plan for social services for the state of Minnesota will be available to the public beginning July 1 through Vera Likins, commissioner of public welfare, and through county welfare departments throughout Minnesota.

Copies of the proposed plan are available at county welfare departments and the state department of public welfare. There will be further access to the proposed plan through public meetings, one of which will be held July 30 at Northland community college auditorium in Thief River Falls.

Under the proposed plan an estimated 835,000 Minnesotans will receive social services over a 12-month period beginning October 1. The services will be funded through nearly $110 million of local, state and federal funds.

In order to develop a final plan representative of the priorities of the state, public suggestions will be accepted until August 15. They should take the form of written comments forwarded to the Commissioner of Public Welfare, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Current efforts to develop an annual state plan are the result of Title XX of the social security act. Title XX was created by the social service amendments of 1974 (passed in January 1975).

The major impact of Title XX was to allow flexibility within states to identify and define services and specify what groups of persons receiving services will be eligible for federal participation in the costs.

In addition, Title XX requires that each state develop an annual plan which specifies the services to be offered, estimates of the number of individuals to be served and the costs of service in each geographic area of the state.

The Minnesota department of public welfare is the state agency designated to supervise the planning and administration of the Minnesota annual social service plan. The plan reflects all public social services administered by county welfare boards and human service boards supervised by the Minnesota department of public welfare.

Minnesota will be using its full federal allocation under Title XX of $46,500,000, plus $13,400,000 state, $41,500,000 local, and $8,100,000 from other sources to fund this program. It is estimated that 835,000 people in Minnesota will receive some form of social service under the plan. Through the plan, about 885,000 people will be referred to agencies where they can receive information or help. Approximately 450,000 people will receive other servoces over a longer period of time.

The purpose of the Minnesota social service program is to help individuals achieve the maximum level of independent living of which they are capable within the family structure and the community, within the limits of available resources.

The plan includes 22 social services such as adoption, day care for adults and children, foster care, health (including mental health), legal services, and social and recreational services.

For further information contact Richard W. Nelson, Associate Director, Division of Social Services, Minnesota Department of Public Welfare at Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155, (612) 296-2373.

Bergland Mails Disaster Aid Information

U.S. Representative Bob Bergland mailed recently, to each household in the 10-county 7th district disaster area, a special newsletter outlining federal aids available to victims of recent Red River Valley flooding. Residents of Beltrami, Clay, Norman, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Roseau and Wilkin counties as well as the townships of Atlanta, Spring Creek and Walworth of Becker county will receive the newsletter. It has also been mailed, by Bergland's office, to households in Lake of the Woods county whose disaster designation is pending.

Bergland also noted that two "one-stop" information and aid centers, coordinating all federal programs, have been established by the disaster assistance administration. They are located at the school administration building, 810 4th avenue south, Moorhead, and the high school cafeteria in Crookston. The centers, which will move to other communities during the recovery period, will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. beginning July 19.

Bergland also reminded farmers in the disaster area to contact their local ASCS offices for details on their program to pay up to 80 per cent of the costs of removing debris from field, clearing ditches and repairing gullies and washouts. ASCS will also be announcing details on a program providing payment on lost crops as authorized by the farm act. County FHA offices will also be available to assist farmers with FHA programs, Bergland said.

Board Reports Co. Valuation Of $78,672,393

Pennington county equalization committee (board of commissioners) which met Tuesday to determine the estimated limited market value of county real estate for 1975-76, reported a valuation of $78,672,393 for the county, compared to $74,035,515 for 1974-75.

Limited market valuations for townships within the county is $31,949,041 compared to $29,051,470 in 1974-75, while valuations for Thief River Falls totaled $45,700,186, up from $44,093,182 reported last year.

The current valuations were reached after real estate assessments compiled (beginning in January of this year) by township officers and TRF city assessor Gerard DeHaan.

Although the current limited market valuations for the county represent a marked increase over the valuations for 1974-75, it still falls substantially below the equalized market value of the property—$87,539,303. Equalized market value represents the actual market value of the property.

County auditor C. W. Rodekuhr said the limited and equalized market valuations do not coincide because of a 1973 state law which limited valuation increases on residential, farm and recreational properties to 5 per cent each year.

However that law has been superseded by new limitations enacted by the 1975 state legislature, which sets increases 10 per cent over last year's valuation, or 25 per cent of the total increase, whichever figure is higher.

Theoretically, the new increases should enable the stablization of the limited and equalized market valuations in the near future, but Rodekuhr said new construction in Pennington county will boost the equalized market valuations of county real estate and slow the stabilization process.

According to its tentative plans, the city intends to acquire 1.68 acres (located south of First street and west of Northwestern hospital), clear the land, and begin urban design and architectural planning for a 60-unit elderly housing project.

Property intended for acquisition and clearance includes: Burlington-Northern railroad property including a depot, tracks and unloading platform; Falls Farm Service; some coal sheds; and a Quonset shed. Preliminary negotiations with Burlington-Northern and the owners of the other units have begun

In addition, the city intends to distribute $40,000 in the form of low interest subsidies on housing rehabilitation loans. The tentative idea is to award $4,000 subsidies on 10 separate units. Allocations would be made by the city on the basis of consultation with city assessor Gerard DeHaan and building inspector Robert Bregier. Faculty Concerts Scheduled At BSC Music Camp

Initial concerts by faculty members of the Bemidji state college summer music camp have been scheduled for July 28 and July 30 in Thompson recital hall.

The first of six concerts held during the two-week long summer music camp will feature tenor Richard Knoll in a 9 p.m. solo recital.

Knoll, who is an artist-teacher at the University of Missouri-Kansas City and a tenor with the Kansas City lyric theatre, will sing a varied program that shows a diversity of musical styles.

Included in the concert are a number of works by Brahms, "Ideale" by Tosti, "Fidelio" by Beethoven, "O Sole Mio" by di Capera, "The Night has a Thousand Eyes" by Hageman, "Danny Boy" by Weatherly, and many others.

Knoll has appeared on national television over 200 times, and was the star tenor at the world fair in Seattle in 1961, and again in New York in 1964.

Following the Knoll recital, three camp faculty members will combine their talents for a string and vocal concert at 9 p.m. July 30.

Faculty members featured in this concert will be John Sambucco, violinist, Eric Wahlin, cellist, and baritone Ray Samuelsen.

Sambucco and Wahlin are both members of the Minnesota symphony orchestra, while Samuelsen is an artist-teacher at the University of Indiana.

Christine Hanson, Blackduck, will accompany the musicians for both the July 28 and 30 concerts.

The Knoll recital is free to BSC students and cultural arts activity ticket holders, and the general public will be admitted at a cost of $1.50 for adults and $.75 for students.

The July 30 vocal and string concert is open to the public at no charge.

Happiness Is The Times

CONRAD HANSEN OF RICHFIELD has been a busy person all his life, and he was 70 years of age before he had time to recognize some of his hidden talents. While he was still Director of the University of Minnesota International Center, he began taking guitar lessons, and two years later his wife suggested he take up painting. By the time he finally retired at age 75, Hansen was principally occupied with practicing guitar every day and working on paintings that would eventually be shown in one-man exhibits in the Twin Cities area.

Hansen was 76, however, when his most distinctive talent was discovered. His wife, Maurine, read a two-line newspaper ad for a wood carving class and again suggested that he try it. He did, and three years later has become one of the finest carvers in the area.

Last year Hansen won a blue ribbon at the Minnesota State Fair for a solid fork and spoon set, which he carved from imported African zebra wood and entered in the senior citizens' division of the Creative Activities Department. One of the carvings he plans to exhibit at the Fair this year, Aug. 21 through Sept. 1, is the figure of a loon, the state bird.

Hansen is now so busy with his carving, music and painting that he has no plans to develop any new skills. "I think for a while I'd like to keep perfecting what I'm already doing," he says. "But then, I have been tempted by some Norwegian rosemaaling I've seen lately . . ."

Suggest Pursuit Of Status Leads To Abuses Of Credit

Have you heard the new definition of debt?

Debt now is falling behind in payments. If you merely owe money, you are not really in debt—until you fall behind in repaying the money.

This new-think rationalization emerges from "The General Mills American Family Report, 1975," a nationwide survey.

The new definition of debt comes, ironically, at a time when it accurately describes the financial condition of a significant number of Americans.

The family economics bureau of a national life insurance company (NWNL) found signs in another survey that the under-25 generation shows a declining desire for the high standard of living that makes indebtedness common and sometimes burdensome. But the attitudes of the new generation apparently have had little impact so far, on facts such as these:

—Delinquency rates on installment loans in 1974 reached 3 per cent—a 25-year high.

—Personal bankruptcy petitions increased 9 per cent during fiscal 1974 and were expected to increase 13 per cent—to about 245,000—for the 1975 fiscal year that ended June 30.

—Nearly half the people who told the survey interviewers that their standard of living had declined said that they "can't make ends meet."

A new, more liberal concept of debt may be the means by which an increasing number of Americans are alleviating their distress about their personal financial reverses.

Economists explain their problem this way:

The hot dry winds of inflation have dehydrated many family budgets to the point where they are too weak, after paying for necessities, to repay debts.

But why were so many people vulnerable to inflation in the first place?

"It is apparent," says the family economics bureau, "that many consumers lowered their guard when they assumed monthly payments virtually equivalent to monthly income. Then inflation took advantage of the opening to deliver a hard blow to the budgetary solar plexus."

The fact that many consumers charged and borrowed too much may explain their present financial fix—although inflation obviously shares the blame.

Explaining the popularity of credit and borrowing, Sidney Margolius, well-known writer on consumer affairs, says that Americans seek the respect of their fellows with a display of affluence. Affluence, Americans believe, is a sign of success, and a successful person enjoys greater status and social acceptance.

Those whose current incomes cannot support a show of affluence—apparently an increasing proportion of Americans—use credit instead of cash to achieve affluence.

Mary Quinn-Callman, assistant to the president of the non-profit national foundation for consumer credit (NFCC), which counsels people whose disdain for reality finally overcomes the patience of their creditors, says that the financial condition of many who consult NFCC for help is so bad that they can't bear to look, so to speak. They don't know how much they owe or their monthly payments.

"Most families ignore finance charges or simply are not aware of them," the report states.

Some people miscalculate their ability to repay a debt by measuring it against gross income, says Joseph Volz, manager of consumer credit counseling service of Minnesota.

A charge-it mentality induced by easy credit obviously appeals to many consumers. For some, says the family economics bureau, it is the only way to achieve status and self-respect that Americans view as the benefits of affluence. Other manifestations of this mentality are:

(1) Psychology of entitlement—"What was once the responsibility of the individual (good job; good standard of living) now is believed by one out of two to be right—like unemployment insurance and social security," according to the study.

(2) Prosperity mentality—Some consumers bought in the blind belief that prosperity was here to stay, and so was their annual increase in income. But when they didn't get the expected raise, or when their work hours were reduced or their wives laid off, they were unable to pay for their new boat.

(3) Compulsive shopping—The number one national sport is not baseball. It is shopping. Shopping has carthartic value: One couple told a debt counselor that for the husband the fun of shopping had been an antidote to the dreariness of his job.

(4) Luxuries and necessities—The intoxicating experience of long-term affluence has converted one-time luxuries into "necessities" that consumers felt they must own or their lives would be blighted. A second car, a color TV, and weekend trips now are defined as necessities, the report study found.

And so the good life, bought on time, became so alluring that millions could not resist it—even though they couldn't afford it. Now, some of them are suffering the consequences, hastened by stagflation, shrinking purchasing power and personal finances that can't stretch far enough to cover all expenses—despite cutbacks in food purchases and even needed medical care.

The family economics bureau concluded that people with compulsive personalities or vavalier attitudes toward credit cards and charge accounts—and debt repayment—need self-restraint. They owe it to themselves to learn the art of strategic hesitation preceding credit decisions.

While they hesitate, they can think about what they earn and what they owe each month, what it costs to live (including the "little things" that have helped bankrupt families) and whether they are equipped with insurance and savings to cope with emergencies like unemployment, serious illness, or even death.

A return to the "reactionary" concept of self-reliance, favored by the 19th century American philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson, may save many hard-pressed consumers.

Incidentally, it was Emerson who wrote: "Pay every debt as if God wrote the bill."

Extend State Fair Talent Contest Deadline

Over 7,000 Take Part In Training At Camp Ripley

Over 7,000 guardsmen and guardswomen from throughout Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois and New Mexico converged recently on the 53,000 acre national guard training site of Camp Ripley to begin their annual two weeks summer training which will emphasize combat readiness.

Major elements of the 47th "Viking" infantry division now in training are: 47th division headquarters, St. Paul, commanded by Major general William S. Lundberg, Jr., 34th brigade, from the state of Iowa, with headquarters in Boone, commanded by colonel Donald Baxter, 47th division artillery, Anoka, commanded by colonel Peter J. Sajevic, and the 47th support command, Minneapolis, colonel Patrick Kidder, commanding.

Colonel Jack Hunt, camp executive officer, stated late Saturday afternoon that all troops from the four states had arrived safely and they were getting their home away from home quarters cleaned and they have started to make preparations to move into the field Sunday for training that will consist of small unit tactical exercises, range firing and night exercises.

During the periods of training in the field, regular army evaluators will be making a determination of the readiness of each unit and ratings will be forwarded to headquarters, fifth U.S. army and the national guard bureau, Washington, D.C.

This contingent of guardsmen and guardswomen is the largest group of troops to attend two week training session this summer at Camp Ripley, according to brigadier general William H. Cheeseman, St. Paul, assistant adjutant general and also serving as camp commander for this two week training session.

A parade and review will be held on the camp airfield Friday, July 18, at 3 p.m. with awards and medals being presented to outstanding units and personnel. Second battalion, 125th artillery will be in charge of firing an "Honest John" rocket prior to the review.

Remind Veterans Of Deadline For Life Insurance

Only a short time remains for veterans discharged since 1970 to take advantage of the new low-cost Veterans group life insurance VGLI, for which applications and first premium must be received before August 2.

The reminder applies to all veterans discharged between April 3, 1970 and August 1, 1974, Alan L. Rice, director, Veterans administration center at Fargo, said recently.

The new program offers up to $20,000 for a monthly premium of only $3.40 for veterans under 35, and for those 35 and over, the maximum coverage is $6.80 per month. It is a non-renewable policy designed as interim protection during readjustment to civilian life, he explained.

Another important advantage of buying VGLI, Rice said, is that it reinstates the veteran's right to convert his servicemen's group life insurance policy to an individual policy at standard rates regardless of his health or physical condition. Normally, this privilege terminates 120 days after discharge. Those covered by VGLI can convert on termination of the five-year VGLI policy.

A pamphlet is available that gives complete information on the program. The pamphlet and application forms can be obtained from the Veterans administration or by writing the Office of servicemen's group life insurance, 212 Washington St., Newark, N.J. 07102.

Carpenter Urges Financial Aid For Rail Problems

A self-help approach involving local communities, the state and federal government is the solution current long-term rail abandonment problems, according to Cy Carpenter, Minnesota Farmers Union president.

The hearings before the U.S. House subcommittee on commodities and services, Carpenter emphasized that the people in rural communities know their problems best, but that they can't do the job alone because of the very real economic problems facing both the communities and the railroads.

"Immediately, we need a plan that permits the financially troubled railroads to eliminate unprofitable lines but maintains operations of these same lines until other ownership is arranged. The federal government has to help because it often means a financial investment that the states aren't ready to handle.

"Economics no longer allow major private concerns to operate lines. But, smaller groups are doing it, and doing it well. A workable plan will take dedication of everyone involved—dedication to the future of rural communities and agriculture in the U.S."

Carpenter also called for a total transportation policy for Minnesota designed to assure a balanced transport system of providing the services needed in rural Minnesota.

"Obviously, it is time we need to readjust and seriously look at the future. A transportation system reliable on a long-range basis would help farmers and the community obtain the economic equality and a fair share of the nation's income and economic growth to which they have long been entitled."

Women's Day Festivities Set At State Fair

Women's day at the Minnesota state fair will bring thousands of midwest women together on Tuesday, August 26, for special activities ranging from the opening ceremony to an evening festival of performing arts. This day has been designated as a celebration of women's achievements, international women's year, and the 53rd anniversary of women's suffrage.

Plans are underway, guided by a task force of the metro-area council for international women's year in cooperation with the state fair staff. These include a women's art show; performances by talented women in dance, drama and music; demonstrations of skills ranging from quiltmaking to motorcycle racing; and TV and radio interviews of women with widely varying occupations.

Presentation by Mary Anderson of a sculpture commemorating international women's year and review by secretary of state Joan Growe of the history of August 26 and purposes of IWY will highlight the opening ceremony. These events begin at 9 a.m. at the administration park bandshell.

The finale will be a performing arts festival located in the park area behind the conservation building. Individuals and groups such as the St. Paul Sweet Adelines, and Alive and Trucking Theater company are on the agenda from 6:30 to 9 p.m. After 9 p.m., the public is invited to share its talents.

A significant aspect of women's day plans is the desire to involve a wide variety of women from all parts of the state. Craftswomen are invited to exhibit any items (such as jewelry, batik, needlepoint, etc.) bearing the international women's year symbol in their designs or the theme of women working together for equality, development and peace. Another project involves making banners representing this theme for use throughout the day's events and for display at a later exhibit.

The metro-area council for international women's year is composed of representatives from 32 women's groups. It is sponsoring this event in an effort to bring international women's year to outstate women who have not been able to participate in other IWY activities.

A Little Too Far

Government rushes in where angels fear to tread is a not too corrupted parody of a popular old saying. In view of some of the legislation adopted recently and some of the regulations issued by bureaucratic agencies, it seems that government is rushing in too far and too often.

What raises our editorial hackles this time is information in an article from the Association for Non-Smokers' Rights (ANSR) which explains the Minnesota clear indoor air act passed by the legislature and signed by the Governor. We think it shows government going a little too far in restricting the rights of some people in attempting to provide rights to others.

Effective August 1, smoking will be limited to designated smoking areas in any enclosed, indoor area used by the general public or serving as a place of work. Such places include, but are not limited to, restaurants, retail stores, offices and other commercial establishments, public conveyances, educational facilities, hospitals, nursing homes, auditoriums, arenas and meeting rooms. Exempted are private, enclosed offices occupied exclusively by smokers, a room or hall used for a private social function and bars which may be designated smoking areas in their entirety.

We don't say the Association for Non-Smokers' Rights doesn't have the right to seek restrictions on smokers, nor do we think smoking should be encouraged at all times and in all places. But we do take issue with the blanket coverage stated in the law and what we believe to be unnecessary government interference with an individual's personal preference.

We didn't agree with the government ban on cigarette advertising on television although we are not greatly enamored of television networks. It seemed inconsistent for government to subsidize tobacco farmers and heavily tax tobacco products while banning advertising of items completely legal to manufacture and sell.

We don't agree with the push for mandatory use of seat belts although we don't question their value in preventing injury. Ditto for required use of motorcycle helmets and now visors or windscreens. We don't believe it is government's role to compel people to protect themselves against themselves.

Having given up smoking some eight or 10 years ago, we find cigarette smoke to be more offensive now than before we picked up the habit, especially in restaurants while eating a meal. We could understand an effort to curtail smoking in eating establishments, on public transportation and in hospital or nursing home rooms. But it shouldn't take a state law and it shouldn't extend to offices, commercial establishments, hallways or waiting areas and some of the other places mentioned.

The legislature also abdicated a responsibility when it adopted the law by naming the state board of health to formulate regulations specifying what portion of a public place may be designated as a smoking area. That specification of area should have been researched and made a part of the bill itself. The fact that it wasn't done that way leads us to believe that the legislation was not given very thorough consideration before adoption.

Furthermore, the ANSR release quotes it legislative chairman Ed Brandt as saying, "While the legislative intent to protect employees as well as the general public is clear, there is no legally binding restriction on smoking in places used chiefly by employees until such times as appropriate administrative regulations are adopted." That gives the bureaucrats another plum to pick.

Enforcement of the new law will be a nightmare. Can you imagine a businessman calling the police to report that one of his customers is smoking in a non-smoking area? If you can, you should be writing fiction. This time the lawmakers have again gone a little too far.

We Don't Need More . . .

Following editorial is from the Battle Lake Review:

What many of us have long suspected, the prestigious Brookings Institution in Washington has now confirmed: government regulatory agencies have wasted millions of dollars, expended enormous amounts of energy, piled up untold economic losses and squandered human resources while producing little or no benefit for the people of the United States.

These conclusions are found in a carefully researched study published in early May by the Brookings Institution; a study compiled by ten distinguished economists, educators and lawyers and packed into 397 pages of fine print.

The recommendation of the experts? Less government interferrence and more freedom for business competition.

In a speech delivered in Concord, New Hampshire in April, President Gerald Ford estimated that the combined cost to consumers of federal regulation is $2,000 per family per year. In the light of the Brookings Institution study just released, the President's guess appears low.

It seems incredible, then, that the U.S. Senate has just passed a bill calling for still another government agency to pile on top of the existing over-bloated agencies, an agency for "Consumerism." The bill now goes to the Congress where, it is predicted, the measure will be approved.

Happily, President Ford has said that he will veto the bill. Thus, Praise the Lord, we may yet be saved from another bureaucratic boondoggle which will waste millions of dollars and produce far more harm than good.

A letter of encouragement from you to the President will help. And how about reminding your representatives in Washington that you would appreciate it if they would removed some of the existing bureaucrats rather than adding more of them?

Conservatives At Heart

Following editorial is from the International Falls Daily Journal and addresses itself to a situation which could well be considered applicable to this area of the state:

Has President Ford been reading William R. Rusher?

Rusher, you may recall, is the author of "The Making of the New Majority Party." The book's thesis is that the conservatives in both the Democratic and Republican parties, when lumped together, outnumber the liberals. Thus, he says, the two should join forces in a new party, replacing the GOP as it exists today.

The phenomenon is highly visible in Borderland. Democrats—and even liberal-spending Democrats—routinely win elections here by big margins. But our own informal poll of the grassroots suggests that local Democrats are really conservatives at heart. They don't like to be ordered about by the Twin Cities liberal establishment, which is firmly in the saddle in the Minnesota Democratic Party. They don't like big government from Washington, especially as it applies to the outdoors and other natural resource issues.

Most of all, people in this area value personal freedom. This is a relatively young section of the nation, and the frontier spirit exists as strongly here as anywhere.

All of these things combine to make a majority of Borderlanders, in our opinion, believe that the best government is the least government. Which is, of course, what the conservatives—though not the Democratic majority—have been saying since the term was originated.

Whether by accident or design, President Ford is now saying what Borderlanders want to hear. He told an audience in Cleveland last week that: "The business of government is to help—not interfere with—the lives, the businesses, the occupations, the professions and the family life of the American people."

He called for a renewal of the traditional values of "simple honest and common decency" and said that it is "time for us to declare out independence from governmental bureaucracies grown too large, too powerful, too costly, too remote and yet too deeply involved in our day to day lives."

It will be interesting to see if President Ford's opponent matches his promise to "keep the federal government from overextending itself at the individual's expense." If not, the conservatives in both parties may want to take another look at Rusher's book.

Borrowed Nonsense

A salesman was driving through South Dakota the other day not far from Phillip's Junction, about the hottest place in the state. He met an older fellow hiking down the road. The salesman stopped, offered the man a ride and, all sweat, he climbed into the air conditioned car. Asked how far he was going, the passenger said about seven miles. It wasn't long before the chill in the car dried the man's sweat and soon he was rolling down his sleeves and turning up his shirt collar. Finally he said, "Would you mind letting me out here?" "But," said the salesman, "I thought you were going—seven miles and we haven't traveled over three." "I know," said the old guy, "but it's turned so cool I'm going home and butcher."

AN OPPORTUNITY for local residents to wrestle a 450 pound Bengal tiger will be one of the featured attractions at the Pennington county fair this year—during the two performances of Holter's "Movieland Wild Animal Show" August 1 at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Although a tiger is strong enough to kill a bull with one swipe of its paw or crush a skull with its jaws, trainer Robert Holter prefers them to all other cats because of their beauty and talent. He said the large cats work on both voice and hand signals better than trained dogs. During the show, a tiger will demonstrate its training by attacking and wrestling any volunteers who care to risk such an encounter.

by Representative John Corbid

This column should probably be called District Close-Ups rather than Capitol Close-Ups as we have been out of session since May 19. The past weeks have been a difficult experience for everyone in our legislative district. Many have suffered directly from the floods and all of us will be affected when the economic losses are totaled.

On July 6, Curt Larson of Larson Aviation in Stephen flew Wally Leander and me on a tour of District 1-B. I would like to thank Earl Anderson of the Stephen-Argyle Messenger-Banner for making his plane available. We flew a route from Warren to Argyle and Stephen, then along the Red river to East Grand Forks, then to Crookston, Red Lake Falls and across Red Lake county to east Pennington and Goodridge. From Goodridge we flew to Grygla then west over Holt and Radium to Warren.

We all agreed that the area from Argyle west to the Red River and east Pennington county appeared to be the hardest hit areas. Near Goodridge, section after section were under water. Much of the crop damage not visible on the 6th is showing now as the fields have turned brown. Many of the farms have silt and erosion damage that will not be repaired for years to come.

For those along the Red Lake river in East Pennington and Red Lake county, the major damage came from the rising river rather than the local rainfall, however, the damage was just as extensive. Some of these farmers were surrounded by water for more than a week. As the full damage is assessed, I will work with local units of government and the disaster committee that is being formed to get any and all state help that can be made available.

A more pleasant task than surveying the flood damage was serving as host for a day to Amburg Saelthun, a member of the Norwegian Parliament. Mrs. Saelthun, her husband, Representative Art Braun, Susan Malde and I toured a sheep ranch at Wannaska and the Marvin Hanson farm at Hallock. The Saelthuns were overnight guests on the Hanson farm. Miss Susan Malde of Thief River Falls acted as an interpreter. Although the Saelthuns spoke English very well, Susan was extremely helpful on the more complex and detailed questions.

The purpose of their visit was to gain a better knowledge of American farming methods and rural political parties. We also learned a lot from them about life in Norway.

The Saelthun's farm consists of only 15 acres in a small valley. They release their sheep into the mountains for the entire summer without providing any care. Norwegian farmers are paid $12 per bushel for their wheat and in case of natural disaster receive full payment from their government. However, the Saelthuns said they found all goods to be cheaper in the United States. Also their tax rate was approximately 55 per cent of their gross income.

It was a very enjoyable visit. I only wish more of the people of district 1-B would have had a chance to meet these fine people.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear sons and son-in-law, Darrell and Gale Holmgren and Bob Rowley.
They left a wonderful memory,
A sorrow too great to be told.
But to us that loved them and lost them,
Their memory will live on.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore
As time goes by we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your pleasant voice
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by parents and families of these three young men. 1t58c

In Memoriam

In loving memory to Marcella Bottem. She left us in July 1963.
For a child dead is forever
Not knowing what's in store
But grownups can remember
Her love that'll never end.
Now my children ask of her
I tell them of her love.
But they won't know just what she meant
Until they're grown up.
She loved her family and helped her friends
And in return got love.
I hope my girls love me half as much
As everyone loved my Mom.
Missed and loved by friends and family. 1t58p

Mike Lundgren

Automobile accident death Saturday night of Mike Neibauer stunned many people involved in Thief River Falls athletic programs.

Although Mike was from Mentor, he was widely recognized in Thief River Falls. He played in the city fast pitch softball program for several years and also competed in the winter basketball program here.

Neibauer attended Northland community college from 1966-68 where he was an outstanding basketball player for their head coach Al Adams.

We became acquainted with Mike by "coaching" him during the Northland alumni-varsity basketball games in recent years. He was a fine person and will be sadly missed by family, friends, teammates and spectators alike.

Gophers, Dorn Leave For Europe

University of Minnesota hockey team will leave tonight (Monday) for Chicago to start its unique European summer hockey tour. Former Lincoln high school athletic standout Tony Dorn, Jr. is a member of the Gopher squad.

The complete itinerary for the team's trip to Europe was announced Friday by head coach Herb Brooks.

The Gopher varsity hockey team members will fly directly from Chicago to West Germany where the squad will be quartered in Bad-Nauheim. The first of 11 scheduled games is set for Thursday in Bad-Nauheim against the local club team.

Remaining game sites during the Thurn and Taxis Cup Tournament schedule will take the Gophers to LaChaux de Fonds, Switzerland, plus Fussen, Obestdorz, Garmisch-Part and Rosenheim, West Germany.

The team will then engage in four exhibition games at Cortina, Alleghe and Ortisei, Italy, and Innsbruck, Austria.

Following three days of rest and sightseeing in Kitzbuhel, Austria, the squad will fly home August 11.

Most teams the Gophers face will be club teams from the respective cities visited. The exceptions include the Polish national team and the Maskau-Spartak team from Moscow, U.S.S.R. The Russian team includes several players from the Russian national team that competes in the Olympics and more recently against Team Canada.

Dorn is a 1975-76 sophomore with the Gophers.

Softball Hitters, Pitchers Shine

Interesting developments in Thief River Falls men's softball play last week:

+Bruce Johnson, outfielder for the Arctic Power Major Division slow pitch softball team, popped out to leftfield in his final at-bat against the Arctic Raiders Friday, snapping his remarkable hitting streak that found him hitting safely in 15 straight at-bats over a four game span. He was three for four against the Raiders in Power's 17-15 upset win.

+Dennis Bendickson, Arctic Power pitcher, helped his team upset the Major Division leading Arctic Raiders with a grand slam home run in Friday's 17-15 Power win. The home run was unique in that the Raider outfielder made the catch on the play, but fell over the outfield fence in the process—a home run.

+Dick Harren, outfielder for the Pepsi-Cola West Division fast pitch softball team, was four for four in Pepsi's 4-0 Friday night win over Schmidts, lifting his batting average to .400 for the year. He became the third Pepsi batter to reach that lofty plateau this season. Currently the American Legion, Arctic Cat, VFW and Pepsi all have one .400 hitter on their rosters.

Despite all of the hitting last week, pitchers stole the spotlight in fast pitch play with no less than five shutouts recorded in games played Wednesday through Friday:

+Arctic Cat pitcher Tom Neibauer tossed a five-hit shutout in a 2-0 Thursday win over Nelson State Farm Insurance and then two-hit the same team in a 6-0 Friday win.

+Pete Sullivan and Mike Drury combined to one-hit Melvies in the Legion's 10-0 Wednesday win.

+Howard Dalager tossed a two-hitter as Pepsi blanked Schmidts 4-0 Friday. Pepsi pulled to within one game of clinching the league's West Division pennant.

+Al Erickson of VFW blanked Falls Diesel on just one hit as the Vets won a 14-0 Wednesday night laugher.

Engelman In Europe

He was probably just trying to be friendly, but it might be that Northland community college basketball coach was trying to rub it in, too, when he mailed us a postcard from Monte Carlo last week.

Engelman has made several summer trips to Europe in the past and is currently in the midst of another whirlwind tour.

His card read: "The beautiful blue Mediteranian (sea) is just as beautiful and blue as they say. It's a great day. Just laying in the sun after a rather hectic week. On to Italia!

Howland, Moorhead Whip TRF 12-2 In Legion Ball

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team finished its 1975 regular season schedule on a losing note Friday as visiting Moorhead hammered coach Rocky Wilson's ball club 12-2 in a five-inning game played on the fairgrounds diamond.

Thief River Falls completed its regular season obligations with an 11-10 record. Thief River Falls will play host to Crookston tonight (Monday) at 7 p.m. in a first round game of the 1975 American Legion area Sub District Four baseball tournament.

Brad Howland killed Thief River Falls Friday as the Moorhead shortstop enjoyed the kind of game players dream of: three hits in three at-bats, two home runs and seven runs batted in.

Howland started his personal onslaught in the first inning by hitting a three-run home run off Thief River Falls starter and loser Brian Peterson. Karl Karlstrom doubled and Terry Kragero reached base on an error before Howland hit his two-out shot.

Howland duplicated his feat in the third inning when he clubbed a two-run home run as Moorhead went ahead 6-0. Back to back doubles by Karlstrom and Kragero started the inning before Howland stroked the one-out homer.

Moorhead completed the rout by doubling its score in the fourth inning on four base hits, two walks and an error. This time Howland was held to a single, but it scored two runs. Brad Schmitt and Kragero hit run-producing doubles in the inning.

Thief River Falls was stymied by Moorhead pitcher Dave Lindquist until the final half inning when pinch hitter Lyle Johnson stroked a two-out, two-run double into the left-centerfield gap. Mitch Dicken walked and pinch hitter Tim Erickson singled before Johnson's hit.

Lindquist limited Thief River Falls to just four base hits while teammates supplied him with a solid 12-hit backing, including five doubles along with Howland's two home runs.

Furuseth-Nelson Takes Commercial Lead

Division Leaders Lose In Slow Pitch Action Friday

Both division leaders lost Friday in Thief River Falls slow pitch softball action as Arctic Power stunned the Major Division leading Arctic Raiders 17-15 and Furuseth-Nelson clobbered Grain Belt 22-4 in a first place Commercial Division clash.

The loss was more costly to Grain Belt than it was for the Raiders. While the Raiders, suffering only their second regular season loss in two years, stayed comfortably atop the Major standings, Furuseth-Nelson climbed ahead of Grain Belt in the tight Commercial pennant race.

In other key games, Hamms-Pizza Hut and Solheim Furniture, both fighting for an important second place Major Division finish, both lost as Northland Electronics stopped Hamms-Pizza Hut 14-9 and Modern Woodman defeated Solheim Furniture 13-8.

Elsewhere, Hartz whipped Hydra-Mac 24-12, Times-KTRF downed Professional Building 12-6 and the Jaycees drubbed Warehouse Foods 16-6. Furuseth-Nelson beat the Jaycees 8-7 Wednesday.

Arctic Cat turned back Nelson State Farm Insurance 2-0 Thursday in the first of three crucial season-closing confrontations between the East Division rivals.

Arctic Cat scored the only run it needed in the top of the third when Nick Neibauer singled and scored on a two-out double by Ron Ostby.

The winners added an insurance run in the seventh inning as Gary Olson beat out an infield base hit to shortstop, went to second on a passed ball, advanced to third on a fly-out to second and scored on a wild pitch.

Winning pitcher Tom Neibauer hurled a five-hit shutout. State Farm advanced runners as far as third base in both the second and sixth innings, but failed to come up with a run-producing base hit in either frame.

Howard Dalager matched Tom Neibauer's two-hit first game pitching effort with a two-hit shutout of his own in Friday's doubleheader nightcap as Pepsi-Cola reaffirmed its West Division dominance with a 4-0 win over Schmidts.

Dalager pitched a near perfect game, walking only one batter while holding Schmidts to just a one-out pinch hit double by Gene Halverson in the fifth inning and a one-out infield single by Dennis Bakke in the seventh.

Pepsi scored its first run in the first inning when Randy Gaven reached base on an error and scored on a single to center by Dalager.

Pepsi picked up a pair of insurance runs in the third when Dalager and Vern Lindquist hit back to back doubles and Dick Harren laced a triple to rightfield.

Harren singled and scored after a pair of Schmidts errors for the game's final run in the fifth.

With the win, Pepsi needs just one more win to assure itself of the league's West Division title.

Pete Sullivan and Mike Drury combined to pitch a one-hit shutout as the Legion trounced Melvies 10-0 in Wednesday's first game.

The Legion decided the contest with a four-run first inning. Rob Almquist and Bruce Johnson drew one-out walks to start the Legion first. Almquist scored on an error that advanced Johnson to third. Johnson scored on a single by Doug Dallmann who scored on a triple by Randy Dallmann. A sacrifice fly by Jon Jensen plated the fourth run of the inning.

Legion runners added two more runs in the second and four in the third to complete the 10-run rule, five-inning win.

VFW 14
Falls Diesel 0

Al Erickson pitched a sharp one-hitter as VFW clobbered Falls Diesel 14-0 in the first of two Wednesday night games between the two ball clubs.

VFW scored a single run in the top of the first inning on a bunt single by Paul Williams, a sacrifice bunt by Nick Drees that put Williams at third and a sacrifice fly by Scott Kleven.

Falls Diesel pitcher Tom Shetler ran into trouble in the third inning when VFW came up with nine runs on seven base hits, two walks and a hit batsman.

VFW added four runs in the fourth inning to hike their total to 14. The game was ended after four innings by mutual agreement between the two team managers.

Erickson gave up only a one-out bunt single by Scott Reed in the fourth inning.

Falls Diesel 2

Falls Diesel made a complete turnaround from its first game showing by pushing VFW into eight innings before dropping a 3-2 decision in Wednesday's third game.

Falls Diesel scored the game's first run in the top of the second inning as Jeff Langlie reached base on a fielder's choice, went to third on a bunt single by John Peterson and scored on another fielder's choice.

VFW tied the game in the bottom of the third on a double by Wayne Liden and a triple by Paul Williams.

The Vets took a 2-1 lead in the sixth inning when Nick Drees led off with a triple and scored on a wild pitch.

Falls Diesel's Rex Rugland quickly tied the game again in the seventh, however, by hitting a solo home run to send the game into extra innings.

The game lasted just one extra frame, though, as Nick Drees led off with a double, went to third on an error and scored with two out when Harlie Drees lofted a fly ball to leftfield that was dropped for a game-deciding error.

Wildlife Service Issues Statement On Bird Hunting

Continuation of sport hunting on ducks, geese and other migratory game birds under the control of annual hunting regulations issued by the U.S. fish and wildlife service is the subject of final environmental statement filed by the department of the Interior with the council on environmental quality on June 6.

The department intends to continue issuing annual migratory bird hunting regulations as has been done each year since 1918, when the migratory bird treaty act was signed into law, implementing an international treaty with Great Britain designed to provide a uniform system of protecting migratory birds on a continental basis.

A notice of the availability of the final EIS was published in the "Federal Register" on June 13, 1975.

In October 1974 a lawsuit was brought in federal court against the department of the Interior by four groups in New Jersey to halt migratory bird hunting nationwide on the ground that an environmental impact statement was not prepared before the 1974-75 federal hunting regulations were issued. The national environmental policy act of 1969 requires that major federal actions significantly affecting the quality of the human environment must be preceded by the publication of a statement of the environmental impact of the proposed action. The court determined that the provisions of the act applied to the migratory bird hunting program even though the issuance of hunting regulations is not a new federal action.

The lawsuit was settled out of court, and the department of the Interior agreed to complete an environmental impact statement before the 1975-76 hunting regulations are issued.

The final statement describes the impacts of continued issuance of annual regulations which includes open seasons, season lengths, daily bag and possession limits, shooting hours, area closures and other special management provisions. This is intended to ensure that the number of birds killed by sport hunting each year does not jeopardize any particular species from perpetuating its numbers in the wild. Annual regulations are necessary because the abundance of each species varies from year to year, depending on a wide variety of factors such as weather on the breeding grounds, incidence of natural diseases in the wild, and weather on the wintering grounds. Annual regulations generally become restrictive as populations decrease and more liberal as populations increase. This is particularly true of the more intensively hunted species such as waterfowl.

The fish and wildlife service considered four alternatives to the proposal including allowing states to set migratory bird hunting regulations, establishing international regulations, issuing regulations for periods longer than one year and taking no action. The impact of these alternatives is discussed in detail in the final statement.

A draft version of this final environmental statement was published in February 1975. Seven public hearings were held nationwide on the draft. A total of 483 persons attended, and 65 formal statements were presented. More than 48,000 letters and petitions representing the views of more than 78,000 citizens were received by the fish and wildlife service.

Many editorial changes, organizational editing, and supplemental additions of information were made as a result of public participation in development of the final statement, however, the basic proposal—to continue issuing annual regulations—was unchanged.

Copies of the final environmental statement are available in Washington for public inspection at the department of the Interior, 18th and C streets, N.W., room 2352, Washington, DC, 20240.

Copies are also available for public inspection at the regional office, U.S. fish and wildlife service, Federal building, Fort Snelling, Twin Cities, Minnesota.

Single copies may be obtained by writing to the director, U.S. fish and wildlife service, office of environmental coordination, Washington, DC, 20240.

MOORHEAD CATCHER Brad Schmitt leaped high in the air to catch a high throw to the plate while Thief River Falls base runner Tim Erickson completed his slide across home plate in the fifth inning of Friday's American Legion baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond. Erickson scored on a two-run double by Lyle Johnson, but Moorhead won the game 12-2 in five innings.

ARCTIC CAT third baseman Nick Neibauer leaped high in the air to snag a high bouncing ball during Friday's Arctic Cat-Nelson State Farm Insurance fast pitch softball league game. Neibauer made the catch and throw on the play. Arctic Cat turned back State Farm 6-0 to strengthen its East Division lead.

Walleye Tournament

The second annual walleye tournament sponsored by the Baudette Chamber of Commerce and the Lake of the Woods resort association will be held from July 19 through August 16.

The fisherman who catches and registers the largest walleye during this period will receive a prize of $500.

Second prize is $300. Third and fourth prizes are $200 each.

If you wish more information, you may obtain it by writing to the Lake of the Woods resort association or the Baudette Chamber of Commerce at Baudette, 56623.

Lake Of The Woods Fishing

Donna Hamre writes that fishing has been good on Lake of the Woods. Several nice walleye have been taken at Morris Point. Skip Beadle of Roosevelt caught the largest walleye weighing nine pounds 10½ ounces. Leeches are being used for bait. Ray Cochlin of Albert Lea caught a sturgeon weighing 19 pounds 12 ounces.

Blue Gill Fishing

Jerry Fuller in Park Rapids had 19 blue gills all over a pound registered in his contest in six days. Most of them came from South Twin Lake. Edna Fink of Chaska registered a string of three blue gills weighing three pounds one ounce. She caught them in North Twin. Also from North Twin came a string of three weighing an even four pounds. These were caught by Joyce Clemens of Shakopee.

Duck Stamp Contest

A recent column discussed the annual competition among artists for the duck stamp design. Ken Hagg, one of Minnesota's most famous wildlife artists has this to say:

"Through the years many fine artists have won national acclaim by having their designs chosen to be engraved on an annual duck stamp . . . a sort of hunter's fee to hunt ducks and-or a contribution to further propagate our waterfowl heritage through wetlands purchases. It is a good program.

"Having entered the contest once and never hearing of the winner until it was announced through the press, I was a little dismayed that the department of Interior couldn't afford to send the announcement via post card to each artist entrant before the press got the results.

"As competition gets keener each year with many outstanding wildlife artists, one has to consider the merits of judges who are chosen for this contest. Each year three new judges are chosen. One usually with a biological background to insure the accuracy of the bird design; one from the department of engraving to justify the standards needed to print a good design; and one with a background of artistic merit.

"As with choosing a Miss America, each judge may be considering totally different aspects of what a winner should be. All things taken into consideration, I think the following would be the foremost in choosing: originality in design; knowledge of bird lore by artist; and craftsmanship."

$43 Million In Wildlife Funds Are Allocated

Over $43 million of federal aid funds for sport fish and wildlife restoration and hunter safety programs has been apportioned by the secretary of the interior to the states and the governments of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands and American Samoa for use after July 1. Minnesota received $761,629 in wildlife restoration and $72,327 in hunter safety funds for a total of $833,956.

U.S. fish and wildlife service director Lynn A. Greenwalt said the $43 million is the first of two installments that will be distributed to the states this year from excise taxes collected in fiscal year 1975, which ends June 30. It will be used by the states to finance their fish and wildlife program during the first half of fiscal year 1976.

The second installment will be distributed in December after the tally of fiscal year 1975 tax receipts is completed by the treasury department. Last fiscal year a total of $70 million in Federal Aid funds was distributed in two installments to state governments.

Funds for fish restoration programs come from a 10 per cent excise tax on fishing rods, reels, creels, and artificial baits, lures and flies. Funds for wildlife restoration and hunter safety programs come from an 11 per cent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition and a 10 per cent excise tax on pistols and revolvers. Minnesota also received $396,877 for fish restoration.

This self-taxing concept has stood the test of 37 years," Greenwalt said. "Since 1938 over $700 million has been collected in excise taxes on these items. Fifty per cent of these funds has gone into improving habitat for game such as building dikes to impound duck marshes, constructing watering sites on desert lands for quail and deer, managing forest lands, and fencing elk and deer from farmlands.

"Twenty-five per cent has supported research into such things as census-guided selection of hunting seasons and bag limits and life history studies on a variety of animals such as wolves, grizzly bears and the Florida panther.

"Another 20 per cent has been spent buying or leasing land such as prairie duck sloughs, winter big game ranges, bottom lands, desert lands—in all, more than 54 million acres or over 84,000 square miles, an area larger than the six New England states, Maryland and Hawaii combined. Only five per cent of the funds has gone to administrative overhead."

Of the distribution announced, $30 million was distributed according to a formula based on hunting license holders and the area of each state for wildlife projects. Another $2.6 million was distributed, on the basis of state population, for hunter safety programs. Under the federal aid to fish restoration program, $10.8 million was distributed on a formula based on the number of sport fishing license holders and the area of each state.

Warm weather enables many persons to enjoy water sports, but it also makes them susceptible to ear infections.

Local Residents To Participate In Animal Acts

Local residents are scheduled to participate in several of the acts in Holter's "Movieland Animal Show", to be presented at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. August 1 during the Pennington county fair. Since the shows will be held on senior citizens day, all elderly residents will be admitted at no charge.

A number of exotic animal acts will be featured in the show, including: Elephants, llamas, goats, chariot races, chimps, a dalmation dog act, a bucking donkey, and rare, crossbred animals. But the featured attractions an ostrich race, camel race and tiger wrestling, will involve local residents.

There will be two ostrich races in each performance. Riders in the afternoon races will be: First race—Lonnie Richards (Goodridge), Sandy Wilson and Larry Belmont; second race—Milton Reierson, George Schwartz and Robert Poissant. Evening riders will be: First race—Marvin Koop, James Muzzy and Arnold Engelstad; second race—Gordon Hendrickson (Goodridge), Ernie Swanson (Goodridge) and Gene Beito.

The volunteers are apparently destined for a most unusual ride. Ostriches (the largest bird in the world) are not steered like a horse. No bridle or reins are used. To turn the ostrich, the driver must shake a broom on the side of the bird's head, causing him to turn away to avoid it. Drivers are encouraged to hang on to the sides of the sulkie (carriage) at all times because of the ostriches' quick starts and sharp turns. Another difficulty is there has been no established method for stopping the ostriches after the race.

Riders for the camel races have not been announced. The camel, regarded as notably mean, stubborn and obstinate animal, also have the distinction of offering perhaps the roughest ride in the world, although at top speed it can reputedly outsprint a horse.

Those wishing to wrestle a tiger will be challenging a 450-pound Bengal that has been trained for movie work and will attack on command. Volunteers willing to make the challenge will be proceeding at their own risk.

The Holters have a collection of animals from all over the world at their ranch in Bloomington, Calif. When motion picture and television studios need special animals for productions they are often acquired and trained at the ranch. In the summer months Holter's animal shows are familiar sites at state and county fairs.

Supporters Of Public Radio Match Grant

One thousand five hundred ninety-seven listeners have become new supporters of the non-commercial Minnesota public radio network in response to a challenge grant made by the Bush foundation of St. Paul. Since the grant was announced on April 30 of this year, listeners have matched phase one of the two-year $127,000 challenge grant.

By the terms of the grant, the Bush foundation agreed to match with $20 every new membership contribution made before July 1, up to a total of 1,575 new members for a total of $31,500.

MPR president William H. Kling notes that this is the most significant grant yet made to any public radio system in the country in terms of developing the financial support base. He remarked on the similarity to Ford foundation support of public television in the '60's which provided substantial strength for PTV stations.

"We're very pleased with the response we've received from listeners to phase one of the Bush foundation challenge," Kling said. "The MPR broadcast service is becoming increasingly reliant on listener support, and it is encouraging to have received such a strong vote of confidence in our programming efforts."

Phase two of the Bush foundation grant provides funds to match 2700 new members during fiscal 1976.

Need Old Items For Historical State Fair Film

Minnesota state fair is seeking historical photographs and other material to be used in producing a one-half hour film which will be released early in 1976 as part of the official state fair American Revolution Bicentennial celebration.

Anyone having pre-1935 state fair memorabilia, including pictures, stories or film footage, is asked to contact the Minnesota state fair publicity department, St. Paul 55108; phone number is (612) 645-2781.

Taxpayer Ass'n. Expands Work To Local Gov't.

Minnesota Taxpayers association, long identified as the "watchdog" of state spending and taxing, is expanding its activities into the field of local government, MTA members were told at their annual meeting recently at Chanhassen.

"A first step will be the monitoring this year of city and county budget-making processes in Hennepin, Ramsey, St. Louis and Olmsted counties," states Don Paterick, executive director of the association. "This activity will be extended into other counties in 1976."

Richard W. Brust, Falcon Heights, was selected by the MTA board of directors to serve as president for the ensuing year, succeeding Robert J. Thatcher, Austin. Brust is vice president for taxes at 3-M company.

Other officers named were Edwin C. Kraus, Chaska, vice president; Peter Corcoran, Edina, secretary; Marty Kjellberg, Monticello, assistant secretary; Edward B. Chapin, St. Paul, treasurer; and Herbert A. Knudsen, Bloomington, assistant treasurer.

Re-elected to the board of directors by the membership were Jerry J. Kigin and Robert J. Thatcher. New members elected were Robert J. Dolan, Roseville; Thomas Graham, Winona; Kenneth A. Johnson, Minneapolis; Herbert A. Knudsen, Bloomington; and Robert B. Milam, Rochester.

Charles P. Stone, who has retired after 19 years of service as general counsel and executive director of MTA, was presented with a commemorative plaque.

Three Fires Cause Damage In RLF July 14

Three fires, believed to have been set by a single arsonist, damaged a milk delivery truck, snowmobile and Co-op store in Red Lake Falls Monday, July 14, early in the morning.

Deputy Vern Hagen was on duty when he noticed a fire in the Ralph Slininger garage. He was able to put out the blaze with a fire extinguisher. Slininger's Polaris snowmobile was destroyed.

At approximately 4:15 a.m., Hagen noticed a fire near the back door of the Co-op store. He was again able to douse it with an extinguisher, but at the back of the store a milk truck owned by Brent Larson was on fire at the same time. The blaze gutted the front end of the panel truck.

The Red Lake Falls sheriff's department is investigating the case. No suspects have been arrested.

TRF Employment Rises To 5,025, Stadum Reports

Employment in Thief River Falls rose by 385 workers during the last quarter and now stands at 5,025, J. K. Stadum, area manager, state department of employment services, reported Wednesday.

The largest increase was in the manufacturing group, which is up 476 workers, mainly due to call backs of laid off workers. The construction field has added 113 jobs due to an upswing in seasonal activities.

Other categories showing minor increases were finance, transportation, service and retail trade. Most of the increases were attributable to seasonal hiring practices.

The only category showing a substantial decline was government, with a decrease of 236 jobs, or 22.5 per cent. The decline resulted from summer schedules at schools.

Stadum said the demand for workers has shown improvement, but must still be labeled as slow. Although the employment increased by 385 persons, most of the increases were recalls.

The supply of workers has increased with the end of the school year. High school, vocational and college graduates are seeking full time employment, while others are seeking summer jobs. Comparative June employment in the city was 5,025, compared to 5,021 in 1974, 5,667 in 1973, 5,281 in 1972 and 5,749 in 1971.

Despite the sluggish appearance of the current employment situation compared to a few years ago, the totals indicate large scale increases in most employment categories compared to June 1965. There are 811 jobs in government compared to 383 in 1965, 934 in manufacturing compared to 201 in 1965 and 1,123 jobs in service compared to 611 in 1965. Other increases were in construction (421 to 202), finance (197 to 98) and transportation (280 to 238).

House Approves Roseau River Project Funds

U.S. House of Representatives has passed an appropriations bill providing funds necessary for getting construction of the Roseau river improvement project underway. U.S. Representative Bob Bergland said, "After 50 years of consideration the project is close to becoming a reality." The legislation provides $100,000 in this next fiscal year to complete the engineering studies on the project. An additional $2,100,000 for the period beginning July of 1976 through September of the same year was also appropriated to let contracts to finance construction.

The administration had not "requested a cent" for the Roseau project in their budget recommendation to Congress, Bergland said, adding it was only upon his urging that funding for this project was finally included. The Congressman did not want any further delays in this project in the event the international joint commission assessment is favorable—as anticipated.

Under construction from the governments of Canada and the United States, the international joint commission is currently undertaking, through an engineering board, an assessment of existing and possible future projects to control or use the waters of the Roseau river basin. The engineering board is giving special attention to the flooding effects downstream in Manitoba which would result from the United States corps of engineers' proposed channel changes in a section of the Roseau river in Minnesota.

In addition, the board is investigating alternative means of achieving flood control and land drainage in Manitoba; and benefits to fish and wildlife, recreation, water supply and water quality throughout this international river basin.

The final report of the international Roseau river engineering board will be submitted to the international joint commission in September. The commission, in turn, will release the board report publicly and thereafter will hold public hearings in the vicinity of the Roseau River before submitting its own report with recommendations to the Canadian and United States governments for final action.

4-H Club Will Give Pony Rides

Hippodrome At State Fair To Be Coliseum

Secretary-general manager John E. Libby of the Minnesota state fair announced today that the fair's all-purpose arena, which will soon house an ice skating rink and will be heated for year-around use, will be called the coliseum.

Libby said that the new name for the building, formerly known as the hippodrome and used primarily for horse shows, more accurately reflects the diversified uses to which the structure will be put upon completion of construction scheduled to follow the close of the 1975 state fair on Labor Day, Sept. 1.

Goodridge Seeks Contestants For Jig Contest

Goodridge Bicentennial committee is seeking contestants for the jig contest to be sponsored in conjunction with Bicentennial ball scheduled for August 9 at the Goodridge school. Prizes will be awarded.

Anyone interested in participating is asked to contact Mrs. Bennie Svanjord, chairman of the event, or Mrs. Lynn Hanson.

Roseau Co-op Asks Underwater Cables Permit

Roseau Electric Cooperative, Inc., Roseau, has applied for a department of the army permit to install 1925k submarine power distribution cables beneath Lake of the Woods. The Co-op will distribute power originating at a fossil fuel generating plant operated by Minnkota Power Cooperative of Grand Forks, N.D.

The cables will be laid directly on the bottom in areas where water depth exceeds four feet. In shallower areas, the cables will be plowed in to a maximum depth of 18 inches.

The army has conducted an environmental survey based largely on information provided by the co-op. Based on that review, an environmental impact statement will not be prepared. This determination could be reversed, if warranted, as a result of information provided by federal, state and local agencies, comments from the public, and any new pertinent information.

An army spokesman said the decision whether to issue a permit will be based on the probable impact of the proposed activity on the public interest. Interested parties are invited to submit written facts, arguments, or objections within 30 days to the department of the Army, St. Paul district Corps of Engineers, 1135 U.S. post office and custom house, St. Paul, Minn., 55101.

CLEAN-UP PROJECTS at the canoe landings along the Red Lake river and painting at several township halls have occupied this group of CETA employees under the program of the Inter-County community council at Oklee. Mrs. Sharon Hagen of Oklee, left, is director of the program and Michael Beito, right, is in charge of the landings and snowmobile trails for Pennington county. Girls on the CETA crew are, left to right (seated) Susie Johnson and Barbara Flaten; standing, Carolyn Dahlen, Joni Sjulestad, Lori Marquis and Lori Manderud. The girls have been mowing and cleaning at the canoe landings at Neptune, River Valley, Highlanding, Kratka and Smiley bridges this summer and have painted the interior of the Hickory town hall (red, white and blue with yellow stars for the Bicentennial) and the Highlanding hall. This photo was taken following clean-up at the Smiley bridge Monday. Photos of the crew at work are inside this issue.

Co. History Society Needs More Stories

Another appeal has been issued by the Pennington county historical society for family histories to be published in the society's Bicentennial historical book project. The bound book, which will contain photographs and personal histories of Pennington county families, will be sold on an order basis through the historical society.

TIMES FEATURE

"We want to obtain as many histories as we can as soon as possible," stated Mrs. Inga Geving, president of the historical society. "Our book should be filled with stories outlining the history of Pennington county from the time of our first pioneers until the present day. Each of the stories will be written by different individuals reflecting the style and heritage of this community within the book itself.

"If your family is living or has lived in Pennington county," she said, "we need and want your family history. Write the history in 600 to 1,000 words in any fashion you like. Be sure to include the names of all the family members, in what townships they live or lived or have since gone. Cite the contrasts in early life styles to those of today, accomplishments of family members and information about how the family earned its living. There is much to write about."

Mrs. Geving noted that a number of family histories have been received but more are wanted. An example of family history is the following story of the Kristian Skaaren family. It is published here as it was received—the same manner in which it will appear in the historical book:

Mr. and Mrs. Kristian Skaaren

Kristian Skaaren was born in Bruflat, Valders, Norway on March 9, 1880. He was confirmed in the Bruflat Lutheran church and served in the Norwegian army. He loved the outdoors and worked in the woods. He also loved hunting and fishing.

Gunhild Anderson was born on March 13, 1879 in her parents log home in Vallers Township, Lyon County, Minnesota. She was confirmed and baptised in the Lutheran church. Confirmation was no easy task as this required a three mile walk each way and a stay at the church from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Gunhild was confirmed by Reverend Romstad.

While on a trip to Norway in 1900, Gunhild's parents brought back a cousin, Nickolena, to visit. In the summer of 1904 Nickolena and Gunhild returned to Norway on the M-V HIKRA, Nickolena to stay and Gunhild to visit.

At one of the many gatherings that summer Gunhild and Kristian met. While in Norway, they saw quite a lot of each other. Gunhild returned aboard the M-V OSCAR DEN ANDEN that fall and Kristian came over in the spring of 1905. He was the only member of his immediate family to come to America.

On September 15, 1906 Kristian and Gunhild were married in the

Final Rehearsals Being Held For Summer Theatre

Final production of the 1975 Northland summer theatre will play next Monday through Friday, July 28 through August 1, at 8 p.m. at the Northland college theatre. "Little Mary Sunshine", with music, lyrics and script composed by Rick Besoyan, is billed as "a most delightful musical comedy spoof which audiences of all ages will enjoy."

The cast and crews are spending this week in final rehearsals. Sets have been rented from Michigan and professional costuming is being provided. Janice Thinglestad of Roseau is pianist for the production with Brian Scholin and James Peterson as technical chairmen. Michael Tillmann, resident director of the Northland company, directs the production which he predicts will be "our best ever".

Starring in the leading role of Little Mary Sunshine (Mary Potts) will be Kathy Wald, with Rick Erickson of Viking playing Captain Jim Warington, the lead man. Myrnelle Brusegaard and Charles Erickson will play Nancy Twinkle and Belly Jester, with Donna Keck as Madame Ernestine Von Liebedick, Joel Peterson as Fleet Foot, Paul Mehrkens as Chief Brown Bear, Billy Saetre as Yellow Feather, Chris Cuppett as Cora, Anne Saetre as Henrietta, Judy Stoffel as Gwendolyn, Leigh Ann Harris as Blanche, Jan Swanson as Maud, Jane Olson as Mabel and Perry Buchholz as Hank.

Music from the production includes the title song, "You've Got to Hand it to Little Mary Sunshine," plus feature songs such as "Look For a Sky of Blue," "Once in a Blue Moon", "Do You Ever Dream of Vienna," "Every Little Nothing", "In Eisenschnooken On the Lovely Essenzook Zee," "Mata Hari," "Naughty, Naughty Nancy," and "Call Me Uncle."

The play is set in a Colorado clearing where Little Mary runs the Colorado Inn. Like the traditional melodrama of years gone by, her mortgage is due. And through the magic of the American musical, she and her Inn are saved, she falls in love with Ranger Jim, and she, with nearly everyone else in the cast for that matter, ends up happy, married and singing.

Ticket prices are set at $1.75 for Farmers With Crop Loss Can Report In Co.

Wallace Sparby, executive director of the Pennington county ASCS, said today that any farmers who have suffered a crop loss due to flooding or need crop production financing for next year do not have to go to a disaster assistance center to apply for benefits.

All requests for crop loss acreage allotments can be handled at the ASCS offices in each county and low interest financing is available at county FHA offices. Information on benefits for personal losses other than agricultural are available at a disaster assistance center.

A new disaster assistance center will be opened in Roseau at the county engineer's office (Highway 310) Saturday morning. Presently, scheduled to be open through July 29, the center will serve persons in Pennington, Roseau, east Marshall and north Beltrami counties. Besides loans and agricultural aid, types of assistance available includes temporary housing, disaster unemployment, tax adjustments, legal aid, insurance counselling, emergency food and clothing and individual and family grants.

Disaster assistance centers in Crookston and Moorhead are scheduled to close Thursday.

Appraisal Is Necessary For Disaster Claims

Wallace Sparby, Pennington county ASCS executive director, reported that farmers whose crop yields may be substantially below normal due to the excessive rains and flooding conditions may be eligible for federal payments, if they have a wheat or feed grain allotment.

"Producers should contact the county ASCS office right away," Sparby said, "particularly before they carry out plans to abandon damaged crops planted on allotment acreage. The crops must be appraised before putting the land to other use," he said.

ASCS official advise a producer whose allotment land is struck by a disaster to follow this procedure:

—Report the disaster damage to the county ASCS office.

—Before putting the crop or land to another use, have an ASCS official or his designated representative appraise the damage.

—After the appraisal is completed the acreage will be released by ASCS for other uses.

If the producer should decide to harvest the damaged crop after it is appraised he must report the harvest production to the county ASCS office.

Armyworms March Across Pennington Co. Cropland

THIS STRIPED PEST is a cause for worry among Pennington county farmers who were not hit by the disastrous flooding of several weeks ago. Shown on a head of barley for photographic purposes, the armyworm above is a large representative of its species. Actually larvae of moths carried into the area on southerly winds, armyworms are reportedly present here in large numbers and farmers are advised to check their fields carefully. Worms from one-fourth inch to over an inch in length may be found in the lower portion of the plants, eating their way upward toward the heads. See accompanying story for more details.

Although early forecasts predicting a record number of mosquitoes in northwestern Minnesota this summer have yet to be proved accurate, another large scale insect problem has developed. A serious armyworm infestation has developed in many small grain fields in Pennington, Red Lake, Roseau, Polk, Norman and Mahnomen counties.

"There are indications that the problem could develop into a broad scale infestation similar to 1953," said Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension agent. In that year, hordes of the hungry armyworms decimated area fields. The problem proved so great that hazardous driving conditions were reported when massive armies of the pests, crossing from one field to another, would literally blanket the highways and cause vehicles to skid out of control.

Armyworms are not actually worms. They are larvae of moths carried by winds from fields in the middle west, particularly Kansas and Nebraska. The current wave of the pests is believed to have arrived approximately July 4.

Barely visible when young, the insatiable larvae begin eating immediately and grow rapidly. As their sizes increases, the amount of grain consumed increases, and an entire field can be destroyed by a swarm of the mature pests in a matter of days. That is why control is most effective in the early stages of the larvae's growth—before most crop damage occurs.

Inspection of several fields in widely scattered locations of Pennington county has revealed a wide variation of larvae count and development stages, with larvae sizes ranging from one quarter inch to 1½ inches.

Courneya encourages farmers to check several places in each of their fields to determine the amount of larvae present. If an average of five or more larvae per square foot are present and the grain has not passed the firm dough stage, spraying is recommended.

Toxaphene or malathion are cleared for use in Minnesota with toxaphene preferable by most applicators and grain producers, Courneya said. Aerial application is recommended to avoid field damage, but if the problem becomes too widespread and aerial applicators are not able to satisfy demands, specialized ground sprayers could be used where grain is not beyond boot stage.

A check with several ag chemical dealers in Thief River Falls indicated that contrary to other counties, particularly Mahnomen, where serious shortages are developing, spray material is available to meet the demand so far. But if the entire crop in the area must be sprayed, shortages could develop in both spray material and aircraft.

Early detection is doubly important to allow for scheduling the limited number of aircraft available in the local area. If an epidemic situation does develop, aircraft can be brought in from southern locations, where the armyworm problem has been controlled.

The mosquito outlook may be

All State Counties' Property Taxes Up

For the first time in history, property taxes went up in all of Minnesota's 87 counties, according to a report issued by the Minnesota Taxpayers Association today.

Property taxes in Pennington county increased by 14.58 per cent from $2,663,720 in 1974 to $3,051,435 in 1975.

This was a major point in an analysis of property taxes payable this year distributed by the Minnesota taxpayers association to its members this week. The analysis compares 1974 and 1975 taxable values, mill rates, tax levies, homestead tax credits, and net taxes payable, county by county, and statewide.

In Pennington county, taxable values were up 1.89 per cent to $28,016,048 while the average mill rate climbed to 108.92 mills, up 12.44 per cent. Homestead credits increased 20.12 per cent and the net property tax payable was up 13.50 per cent to $2,543,298.

Minnesota taxpayers association's executive director, Don Paterick, said that statewide, property taxes soared, surpassing last year's record total by 15 per cent, reaching a new alltime high of $1,243,856,534.

Paterick added that the average mill rate climbed 10 per cent to 109.8 mills. "This increase is twice that of last year's due to more spending by county and municipal governments, and school districts," Paterick said.

He also pointed to the 4.53 per cent increase in taxable value, which is a smaller rate of growth than in 1974. "This means that we are failing to encourage new Marriage vows were exchanged recently at a Nuptial Mass at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city by Miss Alison Dahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Dahl of Thief River Falls, and John M. Nowacki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Nowacki of Argyle.

Rev. James Bernauer, assisted by Rev. Joseph Menker of Florian, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. At the organ was Cindy Bedard of this city. She also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Judy Dupree, as she sang "There is Love," "One Hand, One Heart," "The Lord's Prayer," and "Receive in Your Heart."

For her wedding, the bride wore a floor-length gown made by her sister, Linda Strain of Moorhead. The gown, fashioned of satin, featured a lace covered bodice with corresponding lace motifs scattered on the long, chiffon sleeves and overskirt. The cake was cut by Mrs. Elsie Dahl of Tower, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Phyllis Nowacki of Warren, sister-in-law of the groom. Pouring were Mrs. Theresa Dougherty of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Theresa Gratzek of Argyle, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively.

The gifts were arranged by Marcene Ness of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Jeff Liljestrand of Moorhead, friends of the bride. Multi-County Housing Group Given Go-Ahead

Northwest Minnesota multi-county housing authority has received approval to administer a housing assistance payments program in the area, it was announced this week by Bill Seeger, director of the authority. The authority will be making assistance payments to low and moderate income renters. Participating families will lease privately-owned housing, and the authority will contract with the owners to pay part of the rent.

The program, called "Section 8 existing housing," is one of the new programs of the department of housing and urban development (HUD) designed to replace public housing.

Using federal money, the authority will be able to assist 40 elderly households and 80 non-elderly families of various sizes. Assisted families will pay 15 to 25 per cent of their total monthly income for rent.

Interested persons may obtain preliminary applications at their local post office or by writing to: Housing Authority, Box 1522, Mentor, Minnesota 56736. Local outreach personnel of the community action agencies are also designated to accept preliminary applications.

The first multi-county authority services Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties. Cities which had municipal housing authorities when the multi-county authority was formed—Crookston, East Grand Forks, Greenbush, Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Warren and Warroad—are not included in the authority. Assisted units may not be located within these communities.

The authority is governed by six commissioners—one from each county—who are appointed by the county boards. Selection of participants will be done according to priorities established by the commissioners.

All preliminary applications mailed before August 16 will be processed first and selections will be made of applicants. Others will be notified of their status on the waiting list if eligible.

Families with incomes below 80 per cent of the median income are eligible to participate. Adjustments are also made for families with unusual medical expenses. The program is only for renters; home owners, or people buying homes on contracts, are not eligible.

Readers are asked to help draw attention to the program. Elderly neighbors, friends or relatives should especially be encouraged to submit applications. Owners of available rental units are also asked to contact the authority which supports equal housing opportunity.

Bicentennial At Fosston Should Be Inspiration

Minnesota Lt. Governor Rudy Perpich said Friday that Fosston should serve as an inspiration to other Bicentennial communities. Perpich presented Fosston officials with the Bicentennial flag at ceremonies in the northwestern Minnesota city on Thursday.

In a news release from his office today, Perpich said, "For too long the average, hard-working pioneer has been forgotten. Its well and good to remember the leaders of the revolution and those that made headlines, but Fosston has recognized those persons that did the work without the publicity." The Lt. Governor pointed out that Fosston has named its streets and avenues after local pioneers. "A fitting tribute," he said, "to those people that make up the real America."

At the Thursday banquet in Fosston Perpich spoke to about 200 citizens of the community. "I was most impressed," he commented, with the Bicentennial woman idea." Perpich announced that after weeks of deliberation over several highly qualified candidates, officials had picked Mrs. Jo Mark as the community's Bicentennial woman. The thrust for the project came from the local Mrs. Jaycees organization. The Lt. Governor added, "One cannot praise highly enough the efforts of the Fosston Bicentennial commiteee and the Mrs. Jaycees for the extraordinary effort. Certainly the Fosston Bicentennial banquet was one of the most impressive I have attended to date." Concluding his remakrs Perpich said, "As I travel from community to community in my function as Bicentennial chairman it is obvious that rural Minnesota has the true "Spirit of 76" and nowhere is that spirit more alive than in Fosston."

'U' Opens Job Choice Clinic To The Public

People planning new careers or thinking about changing careers as they seek increased job satisfaction may benefit from the services of the vocational assessment clinic at the University of Minnesota.

A two-year grant of $70,000 from the northwest area foundation (formerly the Hill family foundation) enabled the clinic to be opened to the public this month. The clinic is also supported by $50,000 from the university's center for urban and regional affairs (CURA) and funds provided by Hoerner Waldorf Co., Northern States Power and Control Data.

Under the direction of psychology professors Rene' V. Dawis and Lloyd H. Lofquist, the clinic provides information to indivuduals about their potential for success and satisfaction in various work careers. Open to all adults in the community outside the university, the clinic hopes to aid, in particular, women contemplating a return to employment or seeking higher levels of employment, minority group members, young persons who need help in planning careers, and retured persons who still want to work. It accepts only voluntary participants.

Although the clinic does not provide job placement services, counselors may help an individual prepare for entrance into the job market. Clinic service typically include about four hours of psychological testing plus three to four one-hour interviews with a vocational-assessment counselor. Procedures used are derived from nearly 20 years of research by Dawis, Lofquist and their associates at the University.

Fees of $60 for assessment and planning, $30 for assessment and report and $100 for special assessment are charged. At the end of the two-year grant period, the clinic will be supported entirely by fees charged for services.

Interested individuals, agencies or firms may write to vocational assessment clinic, N555 Elliott hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn. 55455, or call (612) 376-7197.

"Among the leaders in this work have been the Hargraves, who have spent the last 30 years printing the Gospel in Brazil, Nigeria and now Ghana." Their last term has been spent in Accra where, together with a team of missionaries and nationals, they established a large plant to print for 10 West African countries. "It is of vital concern for all of us, as stewards of the soil in our own right as taxpayers and consumers of the land's bounty, to pay careful and deliberate attention to the opportunities and responsibilities bearing upon the future course of natural resources management and of the individual and public welfare tied in so closely with these resources."—D.A. Williams.

Humphrey Says Recovery Funds Now Available

"Federal recovery funds now are available to aid Minnesotans who suffered losses from the severe storms, tornadoes and floods that began hitting the state in late June," says Senator Hubert H. Humphrey in his weekly report to Minnesotans.

"Assistance centers are being established in the designated disaster areas, staffed with representatives of state, federal and volunteer relief agencies.

"However, anyone needing help prior to the establishment of their local center can contact the division of emergency services, Minnesota department of public safety, state capitol building, St. Paul.

"Or call my Minnesota office at 612-725-2632 and we will assure that you are put in touch with someone who can provide prompt assistance.

"The disaster help available includes temporary housing, unemployment compensation for those who lost jobs as a result of the storm damage, low interest loans for homeowners and business people who suffered property damage; emergency loan assistance for farmers; food; clothing; emergency cash grants; and special tax assistance.

Humphrey also reports, "The U. S. Senate on July 15 passed the emergency petroleum allocation act amendments extending oil price controls for six more months.

"Price controls on old oil expire on August 31. In the event the administration does not agree to extend these controls, we would face immediate and total oil decontrol on September 1.

"The impact of such a move would be enormous and would severly jeopardize the nation's economic recovery. Oil costs would jump overnight by more than $20 billion. Two thirds of domestic oil would go from $5.25 to over $13 per barrel.

"Even the new administration plan to phase out oil price controls would severely damage the economy and the American consumer.

"A joint economic committee study on the effect of the President's plan to decontrol oil prices indicates that the lost gross national product would exceed $50 billion, solely as a result of the President's action, and that consumer prices would be over two per cent higher.

"The decontrol program would cost the average American family a minimum of $600 each year.

"And by late 1976 and early 1977, the JEC study indicates that the nation could expect some 750,000 more people to be unemployed than would be the case if controls are continued.

"In view of these findings, I am hopeful that the President will reconsider his proposal to decontrol old oil prices," concludes Humphrey.

In 1956, the employment of white collar workers in the United States exceeded that of blue collar workers for the first time.

Warns 'Cycle Operators To Carry Insurance

Minnesota department of public safety warns all motorcycle owners that liability coverage for property damage or injury to the other party is required by law, on all motorcycles registered in Minnesota.

Department officials report that many motorcycle owners are confused by the requirements of the "No-fault" law which became effective in the state last January 1, and do not know that certain types of coverage are required for these vehicles.

"Though the law does not require that motorcycle owners certify that they are insured when they register the vehicle, the law still requires that liability coverage be carried," said driver license director Kenneth Dirkzwager. "Motorcycle operators are in the same position as car owners in this respect, since the diriving privilege could be revoked if the insurance is not carried.

"While liability coverage is required, the No-fault protection and uninsured motorist protection are optional and available for owners of motorcycles. Protection for damage, loss or theft of the motorcycle also is available."

Unemployment Rate For June Up .9 Per Cent

Minnesota's unemployment rate was 6.5 per cent in June, up .9 per cent from the May rate of 5.6 per cent, commissioner Emmet J. Cushing, Minnesota department of employment services, said recently.

The June rate was 2.4 per cent above June a year ago and compares with a national rate of 9.1 per cent for June. None of these rates is seasonally adjusted. (The national seasonally adjusted rate for June was 8.6 per cent and is the publicly announced rate.)

The number of persons unemployed in Minnesota in June was 122,200, up 20,200 from May and up 46,400 over June a year ago. The number of persons employed in June was 1,748,500, an increase of 36,300 from May but a decrease of 18,300 from June a year ago.

Minnesota's labor force in June was 1,870,800 persons, up 56,500 over May and 28,200 over June of last year.

How the Veterans Administration spent $13.4 billion in fiscal year 1974 providing benefits for the nation's veterans, dependents and survivors is told in detail in the agency's 222-page annual report to the President.

PSC Asks Review Of Pricing On Canadian Gas

Minnesota public service commission (PSC) is urging Canadian government officials to review pricing policies on exported natural gas to the United States.

Kurt Rolvaag, chairman of the Minnesota PSC, gained the support of regulatory commissions of 12 midwestern states for a resolution requesting reconsideration of the proposal by the national energy board of Canada to increase the price of natural gas exported to the United States. The resolution was adopted unanimously at the annual conference of the Midwest association of regulatory utility commissions at Rapid City, S.D.

"Circumstances surrounding natural gas prices for many communities in Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin are vastly different from practically all the United States because they are solely dependent upon Canadian natural gas and costs cannot be reduced by averaging prices with domestic supplies," Rolvaag said. He cited the peculiar nature of the price increase which would affect economic growth, work opportunities and basic survival of some rural communities.

In addition to bringing the matter to the attention of other regulatory agencies, the Minnesota PSC has sent Robert Carlson, director of the utilities division, to meet with the national energy board of Canada to further stress the economic impact these proposals will have on Minnesota communities entirely dependent upon Canadian natural gas.

In Minnesota, there are 26 communities that do not have the opportunity to spread costs on a system basis by rolling in domestic gas supplies with Canadian imports. These communities are Argyle, Hallock, Hawley, Lake Park, New York Mills, Perham, Stephan, Warren, Bertha, Staples, Wadena, Thief River Falls, Ada, Detroit Lakes, Audubon, Frazee, Milaca, Dalbo, Dilworth, Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls, Pelican Rapids, Breckenridge, Crookston, Bemidji and Grand Rpaids.

Besides Rolvaag, other members of the Minnesota public service commission include Ronald Anderson, Richard Session, Arlen Erdahl and Katherine Sasseville. Minnesota has regulated natural gas and electric utilities since Jan. 1, 1975.

Fort Snelling Cemetery Adds New Grave Sites

Veterans administration plans to develop 20 acres at the Fort Snelling national cemetery which will provide 10,000 additional grave sites, according to Richard L. Roudebush, administrator of veterans affairs, Washington, D.C.

The project's design should be completed in January, and a construction contact awarded in June of 1976. He said the project will cost approximately $800,000 with completion scheduled for December of 1976.

The area which will be developed with grading, drainage, landscaping and roadways lies east of the existing cemetery.

The Fort Snelling complex is the second largest national cemetery in the nation. Since its inception in 1939, more than 58,000 veterans and their families have been interred in the original 153 acres set aside for use as a national cemetery. In 1960 and 1961, an additional 323 acres of land were obtained from the department of air force. The entire site now comprises 476 acres.

The cemetery generally served an area, which includes Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota. Nearly all interments, now averaging 12 a day, originate from these states.

somewhat brighter however. Charles Samuelson, biology instructor at Northland community college, stated the fact that a heavy concentration of rain fell during late June and early July doesn't necessarily mean the mosquito infestation will markedly increase.

He said mosquitoes in this area usually do not hatch their eggs in pools of water, as in other parts of the country. They tend to nest in moist, dewy patches of tall grass, and large quantities of water in farm fields would inhibit hatching instead of assisting it.

"They like what we like," Samuelson said. "Moderate temperatures, sunny weather and high humidity are perfect for them."

Even though swarms of mosquitoes have been reported in farm fields, the relatively dry weather of the past two weeks has prevented their number from increasing and spreading to record proportions, as was originally feared in June, when the weather was warm and humid.

But Samuelson said the threat of mosquito infestation has not entirely passed. Mosquito eggs can survive relatively long periods of dryness. "If we have eight or nine straight days like Tuesday (July 22), with rainfall and high humidity, we could still see a lot of mosquitoes," he said.

adults, $1.25 for students, and 75 cents for children under 12. Special free tickets for the Monday evening performance are available for all senior citizens (62 and over) by calling the ticket office (681-2181) by Friday, July 25. Students at any college, vocational school, university, high school or junior high may receive tickets for the Thursday evening performance for the reduced rate of $1, also by calling the ticket office by July 25. Regular tickets for any performance may be purchased at Larson's music company in downtown Thief River Falls or by calling the Northland college ticket office (681-2181).

Says Director Tillmann: "The production is intended to be fun. Each summer we choose one play that is neither highbrow nor moralizing, but simply seeks to entertain (a very important thing to do in times like ours). 'Little Mary Sunshine' is that show this summer, and is probably the most fun play we have done at the Northland summer theatre. The professional sets and costumes and a tremendous cast of singers and actors and actresses promise to make this our best show, and we hope many people will be in the audience to share it with us."

The development of training, upgrading and improved manpower utilization activities during World War II spurred the development of the U.S. employment service.

County History Society Needs More Stories

Anderson home. They stayed at the Anderson home for about two weeks and then set out for a homestead in Star Township, Pennington County, located in Northern Minnesota. Their worldly possessions included a shotgun, bedding, dishes, silverware, one crock of butter, and crock of meatballs packed in lard.

They traveled by train to Thief River Falls, Minnesota and spent the night there. The next day her brother Andrew and Hans Fjeld met them and they traveled the 27 miles to Fjeld's home by horse and wagon.

That fall two cows were purchased from Arveson and two heifers from Rustad. To have hay for the winter they borrowed a rake and mower from Fjeld's and hayed after freeze up, but prairie fire came and burned the hay. Joe Johnson, county commissioner, had hay for sale at 50 cents a load and this got them through the winter along with hunting and trapping for rabbits, partridge, and prairie chickens.

Two oxen were purchased from Ole Strane the next year and Kristian built a sleigh out of two fence posts to train them. He was very proud of this. The first purchases of machinery were a rake and mower purchased on credit from Oen's Mercantile in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Trapping was the mainstay of the early years with Kristian gone from dawn to dusk getting muskrat, weasel, and mink. In the later years the main trapping was for wolf.

The first ground was broken in 1907 by oxen. Horses did not come into the picture until 1915. A three-door Model T Touring car was purchased new in 1918. The first tractor was a Fordson purchased in 1919.

Another source of food was fishing in the Red Lake River. This was done by taking oxen and the lumber wagon. Hay was placed in the wagon to feed the oxen and also to sleep on at night. The fish were taken by net made by Kristian. This was normally a two day trip.

Kristian and Gunhild had two children, Marie born in 1909 and Jesse in 1911. Marie was the first person baptized in the newly constructed Ekelund church. The Skaaren's were charter members of this church and Gunhild a charter member of the Ladies Aid.

Nearly everything was ordered from the Montgomery Ward catalog from food and clothing to furniture. When Erie Store came into being they could trade home churned butter and eggs for groceries and other products.

Erie Store was started by Lattamore from Erie, Pennsylvania, hence the name Erie Store. The opening of Erie Store, three quarters of a mile from the Skaaren homestead, brought many neighbors by. Among those going to trade were the Indians from the nearby reservations. On their way they would stop at the homesteads and sell their fish and blueberries. Relations with the Indians were always friendly.

The Skaaren's made a trip to Norway in 1933. This was Kristian's second trip home; the other was in 1919. Both of these trips were made by boat.

Kristian passed away in 1954 and at this time Gunhild moved to her son's farm at Hazel, Minnesota.

Since that time she has made five major trips. Four to Alaska and one to Norway. All her trips to Alaska were to visit her daughter, grandsons, and families.

The first trip to Kodiak, Alaska was made by air in the fall of 1963. She was in Kodiak at the time of the March 27, Alaska earthquake and tidal wave. In this tidal wave all possessions brought to Alaska were lost as the house was carried to sea. After returning to Minnesota in the spring of 1964 she made a trip to Norway. Her last trip to Alaska was in July of 1973 at the age of 94.

Two of her grandsons, Sidney and Oluf Omlid, commercially fish for salmon in a remote area of the Kodiak Island. She wanted to see this operation and got her chance in the summer of 1969 when she went by air to Kodiak with her grandson, Kenneth Skaaren. She spent two and one half months one hundred air miles from any community, seeing the salmon operation. She had celebrated her 90th birthday the previous March.

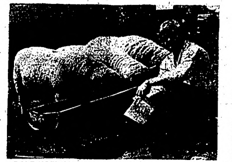
Drinking Cause Of Pedestrian Traffic Deaths

According to statistics released by the Minnesota department of public safety, alcohol is a major factor not only in the number of motor vehicle fatalities recorded annually in the state, but also in pedestrian deaths.

Of the 106 pedestrians killed in Minnesota in 1974, 46 were tested for blood alcohol content and it was found that 28 (61 per cent) of those tested had alcohol in their systems.

Of the 28 positive cases, it was further reported that 25 (89 per cent) were at or above the 0.10 per cent level of alcohol in the blood which in Minnesota is cause for arrest of a motor vehicle driver for being intoxicated.

The figures also show that of the positive testing victims, 46 per cent were in the 16-29 age group while an additional 29 per cent were 60 years of age or older.



DALE HOFF OF HALSTAD may be one of the best FFA sheep exhibitors in the state, and he also may be one of only a few who exhibit sheep purely for pleasure. Dale, who is 20 and recently received his two-year degree in rural communications from the University of Minnesota at Crookston, does not plan to become a sheep farmer, but as the youngest child he has a 20-year family tradition to carry on.

When they were young, his father gave Dale and his four older brothers and sisters a chance to show sheep in 4-H competition, and they all went on to FFA competition. Last year was Dale's third year entering sheep from the family farm at the Minnesota State Fair, and he won ribbons in the FFA livestock show for Hampshire champion ram and ewe, as well as four top awards for Oxford Downs. Exhibiting and farming remain primarily a source of pleasure however, as Dale hopes to begin a career in rural radio broadcasting. This is Dale's final year of FFA eligibility, and family tradition will end, at least until the next generation, when he brings his best sheep to the 1975 Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 21 through Sept. 1.

Property Taxes Up In All Of Minn. Counties

building in the state," Paterick said.

Paterick also noted that the individual's burden increased in 1975 because homestead credit relief could not keep up with the tax rate. Homestead credits increased 9 per cent compared to an overall property tax increase of 15 per cent. Because of this, net taxes payable rose 16.26 per cent to $1,037,223,909, as compared to a 3.75 per cent increase in 1974.

"This year has been a nightmare for property taxpayers and renters," concluded Paterick, "and unless we can create a positive climate for expanding the tax base by new building, and for reducing the tax burden through prudent spending, the good life in Minnesota will, in the near future, be affordable for only a select few.

"The 1975 legislature, through substantial aids to local governments, and through its "circuit breaker" tax relief, made much progress toward reducing the property tax burden for future years," Paterick said, "but considerable reform is still needed to make the property tax an equitable one for all taxpayers."

Tax increases were reported in other counties in the Times area. Totals were: Beltrami county—total taxable value, $34,196,239, up 3.82 per cent; total mill rate, 121.27, up 11.08 per cent; total taxes levied, $4,146,871, up 15.32 per cent; homestead tax credit, $737,724, up 10.45 per cent; and net tax payable, $3,409,147, up 15.43 per cent;

Marshall county—total taxable value, $40,983,035, up 3.17 per cent; total mill rate, 85.48, up 16 per cent; total taxes levied, $3,503,190, up 19.66 per cent; homestead tax credit, $329,792, up 20.80 per cent; net tax payable $3,173,398, up 19.55 per cent;

Polk county—total taxable value, $91,997,807, up 3.87 per cent; total mill rate, 99.60, up 10.73 per cent; total taxes levied, $9,162,739, up 15.02 per cent; homestead tax credit, $1,296,030, up 12.75 per cent; and net tax payable, $7,866,708, 15.40 per cent;

Red Lake county—total taxable value, $11,360,883, up 6.83 per cent; total mill rate, 98.05, up .54 per cent; total taxes levied, $1,113,970, up 7.42 per cent; homestead tax credit, $167,335, up 5.02 per cent; net tax payable, $946,635, up 7.85 per cent.

Name Schmitz To Placement Office At MSC

An alumnus of Moorhead state with eight years broad high school experience has been named new director of the MSC career planning and placement office, according to MSC president Roland Dille.

He is Melvin Schmitz, 35, who comes to MSC to replace the retiring Dr. Werner Brand after four years service as director of student services for the Barnesville school district.

That position included guidance work with special students and with students in the district's vocational center, work with student records, work with curriculums and scheduling plus responsibilities as district audio-visual supervisor.

Earlier positions in the Barnesville district included two years work as a history teacher and two years as a counselor.

Schmitz sees his new job as "a new challenge, particularly since we're at a time in the economy when placement work is not just a matter of putting a person in any one of several openings that are available and that appeal to a graduate."

He believes considerable work must be done to impress upon sophomores and even freshmen the importance of beginning work soon with the placement office to determine just what kind of a human commodity they intend to be and will want to sell to prospective employers their senior year.

Soil Exhibit Gives Visitors A Closer Look

If your were able to walk into a magnified world of soil, you might feel somewhat like a miniature Alice in Wonderland, overwhelmed by a giant slice of earth.

A new exhibit, "Soils and Society", at the science museum of Minnesota, will give visitors this impression as they step into a simulated chunk of soil. Planned and constructed in cooperation with the soil conservation service, U.S. department of agriculture, the display will be a permanent addition to the museum's environmental sciences hall.

Inside the "mound of soil" are magnified models of soil particles, a three dimensional topographical model of soil terrain, and a variety of unique soil samples which can be touched, are part of this visitor participation unit. Examples of the wide range of colors and textures of Minnesota soils will be shown. Photographs from throughout the state will illustrate typical land use based on soil characteristics.

"Soil is our most basic resource and affects literally everything we do," said Harry M. Major, director of the soil conservation service in Minnesota. "Often people don't consider the important properties of soil when they plan use of their land and they almost always underestimate the serious damage that can occur to soil when it is not used within its capabilities.

"Many people in our society now are removed from the soil, and they may not realize its importance," Major said. "The "Soils and Society" exhibit will allow people to look at soil as they never have before. Even in their own backyards, they'll have new ideas about soil and the importance of conserving it."

The exhibit will be open to the public at the science museum of Minnesota, 30 east tenth street, St. Paul.

New Wild Oats Control Viewed At Crookston

Researchers from the University of Minnesota experiment station, Crookston, St. Paul, and University of North Dakota, together with their fellow researchers in industry recently inspected results of yet unreleased chemical weed control materials.

Chemists and agricultural representative from several states and Canada toured the experiment station plots at Crookston in their efforts to decipher the elements of modern weed control.

Researchers from North Dakota included John Nalewaja, Larry Mitch and Alan Dexter. Major research persons from Minnesota were Dick Behrens, Jerry Miller and Ollie Strand.

Approximately 68 different combinations of chemicals and treatments were represented in the plots planted and supervised by Dr. Larry Smith, agronomist at the Northwest experiment station.

Cooperative research of this type in past years has resulted in complete testing of chemicals in major soil types and is a guard against premature release of some chemicals.

Study of application techniques, very important with today's farming methods, can also be evaluated.

Award $368,000 For Emergency Medical Program

An emergency medical technical training grant totaling $368,000 has recently been awarded to the vocational-technical division of the state department of education, according to education department officials.

The grant has been awarded to the vocational division by the education development branch of the division of associated health professions (health federal bureau of health, manpower health resources administration).

The grants purpose is to provide specialized training for ambulance personnel, police and fire rescue people, and emergency room nurses; in techniques to care for victims of trauma and illness and to safely transport them to the nearest treatment center.

Minnesota had long been in need of more skilled rescue workers and this 81-hour course, approved by department of transportation and the Minnesota department of health, is providing that training.

Last year's grant from health education and welfare resulted in the training of nearly 1,200 emergency medical technicians by the Minnesota vocational-technical division. This new grant will extend the training to an even greater number of Minnesotans, according to Sue Neiman, the vocational-technical division emergency medical technician project coordinator.

A great number of Minnesota's rescue personnel is volunteer, and a unique feature of this course is that it is mobile. Sponsored by vocational-technical institutes in selected areas of the state, the emergency medical technician instructor and each site can transport all the training aides, audio visual equipment, books, and cassette recordings to rural communities surrounding the schools and set up this 10 week course in any facility having classroom space.

Cooperative efforts between the department of education and department of health have resulted in the identification of "high-need" emergency medical technician training areas in Minnesota. From this, the sponsoring vocational-technical institutes are selected. Emergency medical technician training is presently occurring thru the vocational-technical institutes in Willmar, Jackson, Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Wadena, Hibbing, and 916-area vocational-technical institute, White Bear Lake.

Soo Line Income Is Down From '74 Year

Soo Line Railroad company recorded six month net income of $3,583,000 or $1.42 per share, 51 per cent lower than the $7,269,000 or $2.87 per share for the same period in 1974, Leonard H. Murray, president, announced Monday. Railway revenues during the first six months of the year were $76,786,000, 15 per cent below the $90,541,000 earned in the first six months of 1974.

During the second quarter of 1975, Soo's net income amounted to $1,267,000 or 51 cents per share, 46 per cent below the $2,359,000 or 93 cents per share in the second quarter of 1974. Revenues during the same quarter were $37,316,000, 17 per cent lower than the $44,959,000 earned during the second quarter of 1974.

"The first half of 1975 has been a difficult period for the bulk of the rail industry and the Soo Line has not been an exception," Murray said. "Soo Line was, however, one of the lines able to generate significant net income in this period. The severe recession in both the United States and Canada substantially reduced demand for transportation services in virtually every category of traffic. Other factors, such as strikes in industries from which Soo derives business along with greater operating costs from the severe winter and spring flooding, adversely affected traffic and operating expenses."

"The decreased second quarter net this year reflects not only the lower levels of revenues but also the fact that Soo Line operating in a northern area must concentrate its maintenance work in a very few summer months. With railway revenues at the current level reflecting the level of the economy, such maintenance work as well as other expenses impact significantly upon the operating results. The maintenance program will be less in total units this year than in 1974.

"The reduced level of business activity has made it necessary to cut expenses wherever possible consistent with service requirements and maintenance demands. These reductions have been aggressively pursued. As a result, railway expenses were reduced by $8,666,000 or 11 per cent compared with the previous year's period. Soo held the important transportation ratio at 36 per cent compared to 34.7 per cent in the first six months of 1974," Murray said.

"In accordance with the order of the Interstate Commerce commission in Ex Parte 305, at June 30, 1975, $3,760,000 has been segregated in a special fund which can only be used for deferred maintenance or delayed capital improvement projects as defined in the order. The company has a petition for reconsideration pending with the ICC requesting authority to use these funds for upgrading the plant for future traffic demands whether by maintenance or capital improvement projects without regard to whether they have been deferred or delayed under the definitions adopted by the commission in Ex Parte 305.

"Fortunately, there are increasing reasons to believe the economy has ceased to decline and that business volume will improve in the second half. The inventory reduction is making substantial progress and replacement of inventory will improve rail volume. Despite some flooding, the general prospect is excellent at the present time for the small grain crops in Soo's territory.

"While grain carloadings in our area are below last year as farmers have held grain for higher prices, at some point the grain now on hand and the expected large 1975 crop will have to be shipped. Recent sales of grain to the Soviet Union indicate a revival in export grain demand and grain price increases in July should offer greater inducement to farmers to sell grain," the Soo Line president added.

"I fully expect the second half of 1975 to provide an improved economic climate for rail business compared with that experienced in the first half. While the first half performance of Soo resulted in substantially less net income, the Soo result was nevertheless encouraging when measured against the impact of the recession on most of the U.S. rail industry. I believe the Soo is in a strong position to participate in an improved economy particularly in agricultural and resource traffic."

Unemployment Claims In State Total 85,086

Persons in active claims status under the five unemployment programs currently in force in Minnesota totaled 85,086 for the week ending July 4, commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of employment services reported recently.

For the week of June 27, the latest for which figures are available, the total amount of benefits paid under all programs was $4,420,024. Included in those benefits were $2,809,194 in regular benefits, up $1,547,823 (123 per cent) over the corresponding week a year ago. The average weekly benefit amount was $65.56, up $4.87 from a year ago.

New Minnesota Industry Adds 1,464 New Jobs

Anthony R. Trow, director of industrial development for the department of economic development (DED), said recently that $79.6 million in new and expanding industries construction in Minnesota during the second quarter of 1975 created an estimated 1,464 new jobs.

Statistics compiled by DED's research staff show that 43 warehousing, manufacturing, research and development, mining and public utility projects were announced as begun during the second three months of this year.

These figures compare with 97 new and expanding industry projects totaling $241.9 million in capital investment and creating 1,979 new jobs during the second quarter of 1974.

In Minnesota's non-metropolitan areas, new and expanding industry during the second quarter of 1975 totaled $19.4 million in capital investment, or approximately 24 per cent of the second quarter total. An estimated 657 jobs were created in outstate communities, Trow said, which is 45 per cent of the total number of jobs created.

During last year's second quarter, new and expanding industry construction in outstate areas was estimated at $223.1 million, creating approximately 1,638 new jobs. This amounted to 92 per cent of the second quarter investment total and 83 per cent of the total number of new jobs created.

"The largest single project during the current quarter was the $30 million municipal industrial development bond for pollution control construction at the Koch Refining Co. at Pine Bend," said Trow. "It will enable the refinery to install both air and water pollution control equipment."

Whirlpool's $12 million expansion of its St. Paul manufacturing facility is the second largest single investment in Minnesota during the second quarter of this year. The first phase of the project is construction of a 75,000 sq. ft. building addition and the purchase of new equipment, which is expected to be completed by early 1976. The second expansion phase is expected to take place over the next five years and will further expand freezer capacity.

The third largest single investment in Minnesota during the second quarter of 1975 was the $4.8 million municipal industrial development bond project for the Minnesota farm bureau marketing corp.'s new grain elevator in south St. Paul. In addition to grain elevators, related warehouse and office facilities will also be constructed, and 15 permanent new jobs are anticipated.

In addition, five other projects were started during the second quarter of 1975 that amounted to a capital investment of at least $3 million each. They include: Bridon Cordage, Inc., Albert Lea, $3 million; Cardiac Pacemakers, Inc., Arden Hills, $3 million (both municipal industrial development bond projects); Litton Industries, Plymouth, $3 million; Bunge Corp., Miloma, $3.5 million; Times publishing co., St. Cloud, $3.9 million.

"The high new and expanding industry construction figures during the second quarter of last year were partly a result of the $150 million expansion of Eveleth Taconite Co.'s plant near Eveleth," said Trow. "Though the project was begun during 1974, it is not scheduled for completion until 1976."

Federal Payment Rate For School Lunch Increases

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) today announced an increase in its rates of payment to state education agencies to assist schools taking part in the national school lunch, school breakfast, and special milk programs. Also increased was the national minimum average value of commodities for the national school lunch program.

According to Dennis M. Doyle, regional administrator of USDA's food and nutrition service, who administer the program in cooperation with state agencies, "The increases for school lunches and breakfasts were effective July 1. The law requires that these payment rates be adjusted twice each year, in line with changes in the food away from home series of the U.S. department of labor's consumer price index (CPI). The adjustment announced today reflects the 3.97 per cent increase for the period, December, 1974-May, 1975.

"In the national school lunch program, the national average payment to states, to be used by them to assist local school authorities help defray food costs of each lunch served, will be increased one-half cent, from 11.75 cents to 12.25 cents. Within that average, states are authorized to vary the rate of reimbursement to individual schools, subject to certain conditions, up to a maximum of 18.28 cents a lunch. Previously the ceiling was 17.75 cents."

Doyle went on to say that, "The additional guaranteed average payment to states to assist local schools in the service of lunches to needy children will be boosted 2.0 cents—to 44.5 cents for each reduced-price lunch and to 54.5 cents for each free lunch.

"The maximum reimbursement which States can pay to individual schools for free lunches in increased 2.5 cents. It can range as high as 71.75 cents for a reduced-price lunch and 81.75 cents for a free lunch. These maximum rates are arrived at by combining "general cash assistance," paid for all lunches served, and "special cash assistance," paid for free or reduced-price lunches served to needy children.

"The national average payment to States for each breakfast served to eligible children will be increased one-half cent, from 9.25 cents to 9.75 cents. The additional average payment to States for each reduced-price breakfast, which has been 17.50 cents, will be increased to 18.25 cents. The additional average payment to States for a free breakfast, which has been 23.25 cents, will be increased to 24.25 cents.

"For cases of severe need, maximum rates of reimbursement remain at 40 cents for reduced-price breakfasts and 45 cents for free breakfasts."

Speaking about commodities, Doyle said that "the national average minimum value of commodities—or cash in lieu of commodities—per lunch to be made available under the national school lunch program for fiscal year (FY) 1976 will be 11 cents. This is a 9.99 per cent increase over the (FY) 1975 value of commodities, based on the per cent increase in the food away from home series of the Consumer Price Index during the period June 1974 to May 1975."

He added that, "the adjusted rate of reimbursement per half pint of milk served under the special milk program will be 5.5 cents for paying children in (FY) 1976, an increase of 9.9 per cent over (FY) 1975. The payment to institutions for milk served free to needy children ill remain at the purchase price of the milk."

The rates of payment announced today are scheduled to appear in the Federal Register Wednesday, July 16.

Arctic Garment Plant Opens At Detroit Lakes

Reopening of the Detroit Lakes garment plant after a lay-off of approximately seven months was announced this week by Arctic Enterprises of Thief River Falls. The plant is to be reopened July 28.

Arctic officials said that approximately 50 per cent of the plant's employees will be called back for the relatively short production run, but that the marketing department continues to work on obtaining outside contracts for garment construction which could add work for the Detroit Lakes plant.

The Karlstad plant is back in full production after a lay-off of about three months. Company personnel said the Detroit Lakes reopening is due to an increased demand for Arcticwear products for 1975-76

Veterans To Raise Funds For Bicentennial

Disabled American veterans (DAV) has joined hands with the American Revolution Bicentennial administration (ARBA) in a national effort to raise money to help fund local, state and national Bicentennial projects, programs and events. This is the first national service organization to implement a Bicentennial project of this scope and magnitude.

"Your Money Comes Marching Home" is the theme of the DAV's door-to-door campaign to sell the official 1975 Bicentennial silver commemorative medal and stamp-medal combination (Philatelic-Numismatic combination) for two months this fall. Net revenues from the sales are used to support Bicentennial projects and programs throughout the nation.

John W. Warner, administrator of ARBA, expressed pleasure and appreciation for the DAV efforts: "It is magnificent that so many veterans who have already given so much for their country are volunteering again to undertake this important nationwide project in support of our Bicentennial."

The 500,000 members of this national patriotic organization and its auxiliary will promote the commemorative items in their communities on a person-to-person basis. In the past, the medals and PNG's have been available only through direct mail solicitation and magazine advertisements.

It should be noted that at no time will there be a direct solicitation for cash. The door-to-door campaign will only provide the order blank. Checks will be made out to the ARBA. The medal and stamp-medal combination will be shipped to the purchaser beginning six weeks after receipt of the order by the Mint in San Francisco.

DAV chapters across the country will soon receive self-mailing order forms, brochures and sales manual and publicity kits to aid in the development of individual campaigns.

The PNC consists of a first day if issue presentation envelope in buff and blue, the colors of George Washington's uniform, bearing stamps honoring the 200th anniversary of the founding of the armed forces of the United States. The bronze medal commemorates the famous ride of Paul Revere and depicts the minutemen statue on Lexington common as a tribute to the small band of volunteers who "faced the shot heard round the world." It is available for $5 on a limited first come, first serve basis. The medal is also available in silver and is sold separately for $15.

Congress has authorized the ARBA to sell official commemorative PNC's and medals to raise additional funds for Bicentennial projects. In 1974, $40,000 was made available from these revenues to each state, territory, possession and the District of Columbia in the form of matching grants to help carry out Bicentennial projects. An additional one million dollars has been distributed in matching grants to national and international projects from the 1974 revenues.

4-H Dairy Goat Exhibit Slated For State Fair

The second place general livestock judging team winners will compete at the American royal judging contest in Kansas City, Mo. Both trips are sponsored by the Minnesota livestock breeders association and the Minnesota state fair.

A record $3.9 billion budget for the Veterans Administration hospital and medical care program in fiscal year 1976 is $366 million more than the 1975 estimate, and $845 million more than actual fiscal year 1974 funding.

Wefald Advises Using Emergency Feeding Program

Local authorities in flood stricken northern Minnesota were advised by agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald today to consider the need for activating the emergency livestock feeding program.

"We are receiving reports of distress sales of cattle and calves, including entire herds, because of the farmers who have been trapped in a losing cost-price squeeze most of the past three years are now out of feed, hay, money, credit and virtually out of hope of any recovery without emergency aid, both feed and loans.

"Excessive rains and flooding have damaged most of the desperately needed first cutting of hay, along with destruction of a significant amount of acreage of feed grain, cereal and oil seed crops."

Commissioner Wefald said that Minnesota's livestock industry may have lost nearly a half-million acres of the hay production in just the northern flood area . . . production that had been depended upon to relieve a record shortage and price hay situation.

Northern agricultural officials reported that their first crop hay that was salvaged between rains now is selling for $1.25 to $1.50 and more per bale, although the quality is questionable. Little hay, except that chopped for silage, was harvested without rain damage that reduces the feed value.

"The only hope for some of our livestock producers who have experienced both crop and economic disasters for the past two years is the crash emergency federal livestock feeding program, available only under a Presidential disaster declaration, and not under the declaration by the secretary of agriculture," he advised.

Surveys indicated that some local county disaster board members were not aware of the new provisions of the disaster relief act of 1974, which permits feed for livestock to be purchased from commercial sources in emergency situations caused by natural disasters. Previously, emergency feed supplies were drawn only from CCC stocks, no longer existent.

Berry Pickers Are Warned Of Fire Problems

Forestry officials at the Minnesota department of natural resources noted that blueberry pickers will be active in state woodlands soon and called attention to perennial fire problems.

Ray Hitchcock, fire protection forester, said blueberries are generally found in areas of light sandy soil, frequently in sites that have been logged and where branches and other dry debris left from logging operations provide potential fuel for fires.

Some of these areas have not had rain for some time, he said, and are drying rapidly due to persistent hot south winds.

He added that the most common tree found in such areas is the jack pine, which also happens to be the most easily ignited species in the state.

He said berry pickers should be extremely careful with their smokes and with any camp or cook fires they build.

U of M To Study High Rate Of Prostate Cancer

Minnesota men are subject to an unusually high incidence of cancer of the prostate gland, and University of Minnesota health researchers are beginning a three-year study to find out why.

A national cancer institute (NCI) incidence study of nine areas in the United States during 1969-71 indicated Minneapolis-St. Paul had the highest rate of prostate cancer.

University investigators under the direction of Dr. Leonard Schuman, professor and head of the division of epidemiology in the school of public health, with the cooperation of the Minnesota urological society, will interview prostate cancer patients in Twin Cities hospitals and control groups in the hospitals and the general population.

A $256,487 three-year grant from the NCI national task force on prostate cancer will enable the university to take detailed health histories and blood samples to test two theories about the cause of prostate cancer.

The sexual hypothesis states that cancer of the prostate gland, which stores seminal fluid, may be caused or affected by a virus transferred through sexual intercourse. Herpesvirus Type 2 involvement will be tested via studies of viral antibodies in the blood of patients and controls. Another component of this hypothesis involves patterns of sexual behavior or experience, which the researchers will seek to determine through confidential interviews.

The second hypothesis involves changes or differences in hormonal patterns that may contribute to prostate cancer.

Top rate savings accounts
Practical home financing

Since 1831 savings and loan associations have performed just these two main functions. Over the years this community and the nation have literally been built by these essential financial operations.

Because we offer savers and investors the highest legal rates of interest income on passbooks and certificates, people are encouraged to save regularly or invest cash reserves.

Then, these savings deposits are loaned to local families, on practical terms, to help them build or buy a home of their own. And eventually, to own it debt-free.

For your benefit, the community's and the nation's, open an account or add to savings now. Then you'll be assured of earning the most interest in the months ahead.

Softball Tournament Here Sunday

Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association-sponsored third annual Lake Agassiz slow pitch softball tournament will be played here Sunday.

Sunday's tournament is the second of three scheduled slow pitch tournaments planned for Thief River Falls this summer. However, the first tournament was cancelled because of rain-soaked wet grounds. Another tournament is planned Sun., Aug. 10.

Tournament officials admit Sunday's tournament field might not be quite as strong as the first tournament had shaped up to be. However, several strong teams are entered for this week's event and it should be an evenly balanced, fan-pleasing tournament.

The Red Lake Falls Jocks have been tabbed as a pre-tournament favorite following that team's recent tournament win at Crookston. Schmidt Beer of Crookston, the Arctic Raiders of Thief River Falls and Fosston Hartz are also mentioned as strong title contenders.

The Raiders and Schmidt Beer clash in a 10:15 a.m. game to highlight the first round tournament action.

First round games are scheduled for 9 and 10:15 a.m. on the four Thief River Falls slow pitch softball diamonds. The day-long tournament will be capped by the championship game at 4:45 p.m. on field one at the fairgrounds.

Legion Wins Sportsmanship Award

For the first time in the history of the Detroit Lakes invitational fast pitch softball tournament, the Carl Edstrom memorial sportsmanship trophy was presented to an entire team following last week's event.

The Thief River Falls American Legion team was presented with the trophy which has been presented on an individual basis since its inception in 1966. Several members of the Legion team were involved in the tragic traffic accident Saturday night near Detroit Lakes that claimed the lives of six people.

Among the victims of the accident was Mike Neibauer, 27, of Mentor, a member of the Thief River Falls Arctic Cat ball club. Tim Engelstad, Bruce Johnson and Neil Carlson of the Legion team were treated for injuries resulting from the accident. Carlson, manager of the team, is still hospitalized at St. Luke's hospital in Fargo.

The Legion beat Harwood 7-0 and Callaway 13-3 to reach the tournament semifinals before the accident happened. Fargo Nassif Rug edged the Legion 2-1 in the semifinals Sunday.

Arctic Cat beat Fargo Bearing Supply 1-0, defeated the Detroit Lakes Merchants 10-7 and lost to VFW of Thief River Falls 4-1—all on Saturday.

VFW, after beating Nestor of Fargo 3-1, West Fargo Town Hall 7-1 and Arctic Cat, lost to eventual champion M & J Steakhouse of Fargo 3-0 in a Sunday semifinal game.

Pepsi-Cola and Falls Diesel of Thief River Falls also took part in the tournament.

Lavalley Proves Umpire Wrong

Gary Lavalley, second baseman for the Arctic Raiders slow pitch softball team, satisfied his own inquisitiveness and proved an umpire wrong recently concerning a questionable home run call made against the Raiders Friday in a 17-15 loss to Arctic Power.

Arctic Power pitcher Dennis Bendickson hit a ball that a Raider outfielder caught, but fell over the fence when he did so during Friday's Major Division slow pitch league clash. The field umpire ruled home run on the play—a grand slam one at that. Surprisingly, not much of an argument was presented at that time by the Raiders.

However, Lavalley later searched the rule book and sure enough, a ball caught inbounds by a fielder is an out, even if the fielder's momentum carries him over the fence.

The loss hardly hurt the Raiders since they wrapped up the Major Division title and a state tournament berth by beating Hydra-Mac 19-9 Tuesday night.

Earlier Argyle knocked off Warroad 3-2 and Crookston hammered Hallock 16-3 in tournament qualifying games played last week to round out the eight-team tournament field.

DNR Notifying Successful Moose Hunters By Mail

Department of natural resources announced it will be mailing out notices this week to the 3,000 successful applicants for this year's moose hunting season. Unsuccessful applicants will not be notified.

More than 60,000 persons applied for moose hunting permits. Applications were made in hunting parties of four persons.

A total of 750 hunting parties will participate in this year's season, the third such season held since 1971.

Although Minnesota's moose population continues to increase, new legislative authority will be required before another season can be held.

DNR wildlife officials indicated that such authority will probably be sought at the 1976 legislative session.

In the previous two seasons, held in 1971 and 1973, about 90 per cent of the hunting parties were successful in bagging a moose.

Moose hunting is restricted to prescribed areas in northwestern and northeastern Minnesota. The hunting areas are broken into hunting zones and a fixed number of hunting parties are permitted within each zone so as to adjust hunting pressure to match the moose population within each zone.

Each moose taken by hunters must be registered at a DNR checking station so that an exact count can be made of the number. Blood samples and other data are also obtained at the checking stations for research purposes.

THIEF RIVER Falls first baseman Terry Sullivan leaped in the air, but wasn't able to pull down a high throw from short during Monday's Thief River Falls-Crookston Sub District Four American Legion baseball tournament game on the fairgrounds diamond. Crookston base runner Mike Whalen covered his head on the play as he neared the first base bag. Crookston won the game 6-4.

Sub District Tournament

Crookston Tips TRF 6-4 In First Round

Crookston scored four runs in the top of the first inning Monday to key a 6-4 win over Thief River Falls in a first round area Sub District Four American Legion baseball tournament game played on the fairgrounds diamond.

The loss ended Thief River Falls' 1975 season with an 11-11 overall won-lost record. Crookston, meanwhile, will advance to the Sub District Four semifinals tomorrow (Thursday) at Warren where East Grand Forks will play Oslo at 6 p.m. and Crookston will face host Warren at 8:30. The Sub District Four championship game is scheduled to be played at 7 p.m. Saturday at Warren, although both Thursday night semifinal winners will advance to the District Nine American Legion tournament at New York Mills August 1-3.

A shakey first half inning kept Thief River Falls from recording its first baseball win over Crookston this year. Coach Jim Simon's Crookston ball club pieced together two hits, two Thief River Falls errors and a walk for four quick runs.

Tim Riopelle walked to start the ball game. After a ground-out, Greg Langehaug drilled a hard-hit ball into the leftfield corner for a run-producing double. Dan Rasmus singled Langehaug home. An error put Dave Pryzybylski aboard and a sacrifice fly by winning pitcher Joel Rood scored Rasmus. Another Thief River Falls infield error scored Pryzybylski.

Thief River Falls amended its poor start by scoring twice in the bottom of the first. An error put Jeff Tunberg on base and Brad Kosel followed with a run-producing single. After a walk and fielder's choice play, Kosel scored on a bases loaded wild pitch by Rood. A pair of infield ground balls stymied further Thief River Falls scoring threats, however.

Coach Rocky Wilson's Thief River Falls ball club gamely battled back to tie the favored Crookston squad 4-4 in the second inning. Tim Erickson walked, Murray Melander followed with a single and John Gunderson also walked to load the bases with nobody out. Tunberg then came through with a two-run single to knot the game at 4-4. A third Thief River Falls runner was thrown out at the plate on the play and Tunberg was stranded at third after a pair of infield ground outs to stop any additional Thief River Falls scoring chances.

Crookston snapped the tie with a single run in the fourth inning when Paul Bakken led off with a single and later crossed the plate when Rasmus was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded. An error and a walk put runners on base behind Rasmus.

Crookston added an insurance run in the top of the seventh inning on a lead-off double by Rasmus, a ground-out and a sacrifice fly by Rood.

Although naturally disappointed with the loss, Wilson found some bright spots in his team's play. "I thought we played well," he said. "We hit the ball well. We had the chances; we should have scored more runs."

Wilson also praised the strong play of the Crookston ball club who played without Simon for nearly half of the game after he was booted by home plate umpire Jerry Parnham.

Raiders Clinch Slow Pitch Major Division Pennant

Arctic Raiders handled Hydra-Mac 19-9 Tuesday to clinch the 1975 regular season Major Division pennant in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball league.

While the Raiders wrapped up the coveted Major Division title and its subsequent state tournament berth, a second place scramble continues to shape up behind the Raiders in the Major Division where Hamms-Pizza Hut, Solheim Furniture and Northland Electronics are all within one game of each other.

Northland Electronics moved into contention for the runner-up spot in the Major Division and a possible state tournament berth with a 6-4 win over Hartz Tuesday while Hamms-Pizza Hut and Solheim Furniture both lost. Modern Woodman stopped Hamms-Pizza Hut 7-5 and Arctic Power whipped Solheim Furniture 15-5.

In Monday's Commercial Division action, Furuseth-Nelson Inc. downed Warehouse Foods 7-1, Grain Belt defeated Professional Building 8-2, Times-KTRF outlasted Kat Haus 22-16 and the Jaycees edged Popplers 10-8.

Raiders 19, Hydra-Mac 9

Bill Dicken, Lonnie Stauffenecker and Gary Lavalley all collected three base hits as the Arctic Raiders clinched the Major Division pennant with a 19-9 romp over Hydra-Mac.

The Raiders finished with a 24-11 base hit advantage off losing pitcher Bruce Steiger. Brian Nelson was the winner.

North. Elec. 6, Hartz 4

Dennis Bakke banged out three straight base hits and hit a solo fifth inning home run to spark Northland Electronics past Hartz 6-4.

Both teams collected 11 base hits and the errors were even at three apiece. Jim Haugen hit a home run in Hartz' three-run fourth inning.

Wes Gjovik edged Warren Hanestad for the pitching decision.

Power 15, Solheim 15

Arctic Power continued its late season winning ways with a 15-5 rout of Solheim Furniture.

Power led 9-0 before Solheim Furniture got on the scoreboard. A three-run sixth inning polished off a 10-run rule decision for the winners who enjoyed a one-sided 19-7 base hit advantage. Harvey Ebbinghausen led the Power attack with a three for three showing at the plate while teammate Rex Rugland hit a two-run second inning home run.

Woodman 7, Pizza Hut 5

Jim McEnelly and Don Grabowska hit two-run home runs in the fifth and sixth inning, respectively, to lead Modern Woodman past Hamms-Pizza Hut 7-5.

Rick Dicken hit a home run for Hamms-Pizza Hut, but Grabowska picked up the pitching decision while Roger Ness took the loss.

Furuseth 7, Warehouse 1

Commercial Division leading Furuseth-Nelson Inc. scored five runs in the top of the first inning and coasted to a 7-1 win over Warehouse Foods.

Jim Carlson went three for four at the plate for the winners who had a slight 9-8 base hit advantage that was aided by six Warehouse Foods errors.

Steve Nordhagen was the game's winning pitcher. Ken Moen took the loss.

Grain Belt 8, Pro. Bldg. 2

Grain Belt stayed in the thick of the Commercial Division pennant chase with an 8-2 win over Professional Building.

Winning pitcher Bill Weigelt hurled shutout ball until his own error allowed two Professional Building runs to score in the seventh inning.

Grain Belt posted a 12-8 base hit edge, but also topped the error charts 5-3. Losing pitcher Rob Swenson was the game's individual batting star with three base hits.

Times-KTRF 23, Kat Haus 16

Times-KTRF outlasted Kat Haus 23-16 in a wild offensive show that found the two teams splitting 48 base hits.

Ed Sabol had a perfect four for four night at the plate for the winners while teammate Emery Wicklander collected three triples and a single in five at-bats. Steve Parenteau was four for five for Kat Haus. Eight other players had three hits apiece. Mike Lundgren of Times-KTRF hit a three-run inside the park home run in the sixth inning.

Paul Forsberg picked up the pitching decision. Russ Delorme was the loser.

Jaycees 10, Popplers 8

Jaycees edged Popplers 10-8 with Steve Beich, Dave Olin, Tom Wang and Dick Offerkew all collecting three hits in four at-bats.

The Jaycees finished with an 18-16 base hit edge and the teams split 10 errors.

Beat State Farm 4-3

VFW Challenges Arctic Cat Fast Pitch Division Lead

VFW climbed within one-half game of first place Arctic Cat in the tight Thief River Falls fast pitch softball East Division pennant race Monday with a narrow 4-3 win over Nelson State Farm Insurance.

The VFW-State Farm clash was the only game played during the league's normally busy early week schedule. Monday's first game matching Arctic Cat against the Legion was postponed because of the death Sunday of Arctic Cat ball player Mike Neibauer. Rain-soaked wet grounds forced postponement of Tuesday's planned doubleheader.

State Farm 3

Wayne Liden snapped a 3-3 tie with a lead-off home run in the sixth inning to give his VFW ball club a 4-3 win over Nelson State Farm Insurance.

VFW matched East Division leader Arctic Cat in wins with the triumph, but still trail in the loss column. Arctic Cat owns a 13-4 record, the Vets are 13-5. State Farm, a serious title contender last week, fell out of contention with a last-place 9-7 record. Idle Legion slipped into third in the East with an 8-6 mark.

State Farm scored first when Mike Schmitz walked and scored on a triple by Mike Moran to start the second inning. Mark DuChamp scored Moran on an infield single.

VFW tied the game in the bottom of the second on Wayne Smith's lead-off home run, his sixth homer of the year, over the centerfield fence. Scott Klaven followed with a walk, went to second on Gary Lavalley's sacrifice bunt and scored on a base hit by Liden.

Paul Walker gave State Farm a 3-2 lead with a lead-off home run to start the third inning, a long clout over the left-centerfield fence.

VFW tied it once again in the fourth inning on an error, a bunt single by Bob Lundbohm and Nick Drees' infield base hit.

Liden then snapped the tie with his home run in the sixth. Liden's game-winning home run was the third round-tripper of the game—all lead-off homers.

Librarian Holds International Fame With Gun

by Ronaele Sayre
U of M News Service

Audrey Grosch learned to shoot a .22 caliber rifle on a farm in southern Minnesota. Her childhood enjoyment of target practice has continued and has brought to the University of Minnesota librarian national and international honors.

Grosch, an associate professor and special projects officer for university libraries, recently repeated as women's clay pigeon title-holder at the U.S. international shooting championships in Chardon, Ohio. She hit 284 of 300 targets.

Grosch will learn in a few weeks whether she will be competing in the world's moving target championships to be held in Munich in September. The competition in which she participates is the Olympic version of trapshooting. Last year she won the silver medal at the world championships in Switzerland.

She has also won top honors in 17 state competitions and has been awarded the highly prized gold medallion as a distinguished international shooter by the department of the army.

Shooting at a target moving from 60 to 70 miles per hour in national competition and up to 150 miles per hour in international competition requires an unusual amount of self-discipline and concentration that begins long before the first target is released.

"When I get on the plane to go to a meet, I blot out everything and plan strategy for the event," said Grosch.

While waiting in line for her turn, Grosch avoids watching the other competitors and keeps her eyes on the area where the targets will be released. She has seen instances of what she calls "telepathic misses," when one person misses a shot and all the others in line follow suit.

Grosch finds that target shooting provides a high degree of personal satisfaction, with each marksman in complete control of how the shotgun is held and fired. But she acknowledged that another shooter's misfortune can be distracting and result in missed targets.

A mechanical failure can also destroy even the most intense concentration. "I have the very best ammunition and I have a spare trigger assembly that I can just slip in," Grosch said.

Although she has proved herself as a marksman, Grosch still cannot compete in the Olympics, as the trapshooting event is open only to men. Women are also excluded from participation in the event at the Pan-Am games.

Women active in the sport in the United States plan to lobby to change the rules, but initial recommendations for changes in the Olympic rules must come from the host country for the Olympics. Grosch said the exlusion of women is the result of Erupoean attitudes toward women, and in Olympic voting, the Eurpoeans are in the majority.

Grosch said that separate categories for women in shooting events should be retained, but women also should have the opportunity to participate in open meets with men. Women have recorded high scores in competition than have men, although women generally have not been shooting as much as men, according to Grosch.

On the subject of gun control, Grosch said she agrees with the National Rifle association. "The existing laws are adequate if they are enforced and provide protection for everyone," she said. "Registration does not alter the use of firearms."

Grosch said she would like to see courses in marksmanship offered at more colleges and universities, including the University of Minnesota. She was already participating in shooting competitions while attending the university, where she received her bachelor's and master's degrees in library science.

Grosch has also received national and international recognition for her achievements in setting up computer information systems for libararies. She is one of 40 library experts invited to Iran next month to help set up the Iran national library.

Safety Permits Are Required Of Young Hunters

Deer hunters under the age of 16 need a firearms safety certificate before they can legally purchase a Minnesota big game license, the department of natural resources noted today.

The certificate verifies that the holder has completed a course in firearms safety administered by the DNR and taught by some 3,500 volunteer instructors.

Burt Elling, safety coordinator, said persons under the age of 16 who have lost their safety certificate should obtain a duplicate at once, instead of waiting until the deer season is about to open.

"We receive countless calls every fall from people who are about to leave on their hunting trip and suddenly find they have misplaced their safety certificate," he said.

A duplicate can be obtained by contacting the firearms safety coordinator, division of enforcement, department of natural resources, Centennial building, St. Paul, 55155.

Skating Group Formed To Aid Total Program

Recreational skating committee of the Thief River Falls park and recreation board has been appointed recently and will meet Thursday with the new arena scheduling committee. The scheduling session is planned for 7 p.m. in the city auditorium.

The skating committee, which consists of five couples, is interested in the development of a skating program which includes basic instruction, figure skating, pre-stick hockey skills and recreational skating in the new arena, old arena and outdoor rinks. Scheduling is aimed at getting the most use of available facilities with the least amount of conflicts with existing programs.

Serving on the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Myron Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Worth. Persons interested in the skating program and who would like to volunteer their services or receive more information may contact any member of the recreational skating committee.

DNR Establishes Regulations On Use Of Trails

Establishment of new rules and regulations governing the use of state recreational trails was announced last week by commissioner Robert L. Herbst, department of natural resources.

The regulations were finalized after reviewing testimony received at public hearings which were held at Grand Rapids and St. Paul during the past year.

Generally the regulations will clarify trail uses, traffic control, camping, hunting and trapping and protecting the environment along the trail.

The trails on which the regulations apply will be announced at a later date.

Don Ledin, DNR trail system coordinator said, "Although some trail users believe that we have too many rules, the regulations are definitely necessary for the protection and safety of the public on the trails and also will provide the authority needed for enforcement."

The trails are being designed to accommodate snowmobiling, cross country skiing, hiking, horseback riding, bicycling and other recreational uses, he said.

A copy of the regulations can be obtained by contacting the trail coordinator, division of parks and recreation, department of natural resources, Centennial building, St. Paul, as well as at the six regional DNR offices.

Safety Officer Named For DNR Northeast Region

Department of natural resources recently announced the appointment of conservation officer Gene Borud to the post of safety specialist for east central and northeastern Minnesota.

Borud, 33, will be responsible for coordinating the activities of volunteer safety instructors and supervising the firearms and snowmobile training programs for youth in the area.

He can be contacted through the DNR's region three headquarters at 217 N.W. Fourth street, Brainerd, phone 218-829-1455.

Borud is a native of Fosston, attended Bemidji state college, served in the U.S. Air Force and has a degree in wildlife management from the University of Minnesota.

He was a conservation officer in the field for two years, stationed in the Melrose vicinity, and for the past three years has been the information officer at the DNR's division of enforcement headquarters in the Centennial building, St. Paul.

Vaccination Of Dog Needed For Canada Entry

Americans planning to take a dog with them on vacation to Canada this summer are reminded by the Gaines dog research center to have the dog vaccinated against rabies before leaving. A recent certificate of vaccination should be kept handy.

Unlike the United States, where a rabies vaccination within the previous three years is sufficient to gain entry, dogs entering Canada must be vaccinated within 12 months of entry.

In recent years, the center notes, many American vacationers have arrived at the Canadian border only to be turned away because they didn't have a certificate or because the certificate wasn't dated within the previous 12 months.

"Touring With Towser," the Gaines directory which lists thousands of hotels and motels in the United States and Canada that welcome guests with pets, can be obtained by sending 50 cents to Gaines TWT, P.O. Box 1007, Kankakee, IL 60901. The vaccination certificate can be obtained from any veterinarian—after the dog is vaccinated.

Minnesota has over 4,000 square miles of water. An area larger than the states of Rhode Island and Delaware combined.

When only a day or two old, antelope fawns can run at speeds up to 25 miles per hour for short distances.

Foster Parent Plan For Whopping Crane Appears Successful

A unique experimental foster parent plan for the endangered whooping crane, initiated by the interior department's U. S. fish and wildlife service, the Canadian wildlife service, and the University of Idaho, is working, according to Keith M. Schreiner, head of federal endangered species programs.

Fourteen whooping crane eggs were taken from wild nests in Canada and placed in the nests of greater sandhill cranes in Idaho in late May in hopes that the sandhill cranes would hatch the eggs and raise the chicks as their own young. When the eggs hatched, biologists were elated when the parent birds defended the chicks from observers.

The idea behind the experiment is to establish a second population of whooping cranes in the wild, thus strengthening their precarious existence as a species.

Only 49 other whooping cranes exist in the wild. This population winters at one spot on the Texas Gulf coast and summers in the Canadian Northwest Territories. If a second population is successfully established, it is anticipated that it will winter in New Mexico and summer in the Idaho-Wyoming-Montana region.

Removal of whooping crane eggs from wild nests does not jeopardize the size of the original wild flock. Whoopers normally lay and hatch two eggs in a nest, but one chick almost always dies. This is thought to occur because one of the chicks becomes the dominant sibling and either gets all the food from the parents or pecks its weaker sibling to death.

Eggs have been taken from wild whooping crane nests five times since 1967. They have been hatched in incubators at the U. S. fish and wildlife service's patuxent wildlife research center in Laurel, Md., and today 19 of these offspring compose the bulk of the captive breeding flock of 21 birds.

The Canadian wildlife service supervised the egg-napping at the Wood Buffalo national park. They expected to pick up anywhere from six to 16 whooper eggs, depending on the number of nests with two eggs apiece. The eggs were placed in insulated suitcases supplied with oxygen and flown to Idaho where they were transferred to pre-selected sandhill crane nests.

The foster parents for the whooping cranes were handpicked by the U.S. fish and wildlife service. Their selection was based upon a six-year study of banding data and observations of marked sandhill cranes done by the Idaho cooperative wildlife research unit of the college of forestry, wildlife and range science of the University of Idaho.

Sandhill cranes are close relatives of whoopers. Moreover, these cranes form the same kind of strong family units that whoopers do. Parents stay together many years. Individual families that showed a particular fidelity to wintering on the Bosque del Apache national wildlife refuge in New Mexico and nesting each summer on the Grays Lake national wildlife refuge in Idaho were chosen because sites on the refuges should provide a greater degree of safety to the whooper chicks than would sites off the refuges.

The whooper chicks will regard the sandhill cranes as their parents. Many wild birds are "imprinted" with the sound and sight of the first living thing they encounter in the first hours after hatching. The birds become emotionally attached to any such creature and depend upon it through the first year. (This phenomenon was the basis for the film, "The Incredible Flight of the Snow Geese," in which goslings were "imprinted" on humans.) Next fall, while still dependent on their sandhill crane "parents," the young whoopers are expected to follow their foster parents from Idaho to New Mexico where they will spend the winter. Thereafter, they are expected to adopt these spots as their "summer and winter homes."

It is anticipated that the whooper young will remain with their foster parents throughout next winter and return with them to Idaho in the spring of 1976. At that time the young—now juveniles—are "liberated" by the parents. The sandhill crane foster parents will stake out a 40-acre territory for breeding and nesting and lose all interest in the whooper juveniles. The juveniles will almost literally be kicked out on their own by the foster parents. If they venture back onto their foster parents' territory they will be driven off with ferocity.

It is expected that the juvenile whoopers and sandhill cranes will spend the next four to five years congregating on the fringes of the adult flock.

They go through an adolescent period marked by occasional misbehavior such as trying to harass adult cranes on their territory or roaming off the familiar living space of cranes.

When the whoopers mature sexually in five to seven years, it is expected that they will naturally select whooping crane mates. In addition to plumage and size differences, the mating calls and ritual dance of whooping cranes are different from those of sandhill cranes, so a female of one species might be unresponsive to the courting of a male of another species.

Male sandhill cranes, for example, emit a rolling mating call that sounds like a stick running along a picket fence. The female, in response, adds a chop-chop at the silent intervals. Male whooping cranes, on the other hand, trumpet a continuous note that some say sounds like "guru," and the female joins in unison with him with a similar sound.

If, by some unforeseen set of circumstances, pairing of a whooper and a sandhill crane does occur, it is planned to separate these birds from the flock so that hybrids will not be produced.

During their first year with their foster parents the whooper chicks will have a human babysitter. Dr. Rod Drewien of the University of Idaho wildlife cooperative unit, under contract to the U. S. fish and wildlife service, will closely monitor their hatching and rearing at the nest sites throughout the summer. Next fall, he will travel in a pickup truck south along the Rio Grande as the cranes fly overhead to the Bosque del Apache national wildlife refuge in New Mexico. Additionally he will stay with them through their first winter.

Many questions remain to be answered in this experiment. The normal diet of whooping cranes differs somewhat from the sandhill cranes. Whoopers appear to prefer water crustaceans. Sandhill cranes prefer grain. However, it is a matter similar to one man preferring cornbread and another steak. Both birds have the same range of food tolerance, and can derive enough nutrition from either food to live a healthy life.

Nesting habits differ somewhat, also. Whoopers prefer marshy nesting sites. Sandhills prefer solid ground near the marsh's edge.

Behavior of the adopted whoopers is the phenomenon scientists will be watching most closely to answer timeless questions regarding instinctive versus conditioned behavior.

3 Auto Crashes Noted By Police

Three automobile accidents causing total estimated damage of $1,620 were reported to the Thief River Falls police department recently.

On the fourth of July at 10:56 a.m., James Powers of Viking was traveling east on Fifth street and Susan Hagge of Thief River Falls was driving south on Arnold avenue when their cars collided in the intersection. Susan Hagge sustained a cut on her head and Sherrie Helm, 3, a passenger in the Powers vehicle, received a bruised arm. Damages were estimated at $500 to both cars.

Sunday at 4:48 p.m., David Dahlstrom of TRF and Sharon DeFay of the city were traveling west on Highway 59. Dahlstrom was attempting to pass the DeFay car when the other driver attempted to turn left onto Barzen avenue, resulting in a collision. Estimated damages were $100 to the DeFay car (owned by Leonard Pietron of the city) and $200 to the Dahlstrom vehicle.

Paul Troska of Goodridge was traveling south on LaBree avenue at 3:36 p.m. Monday when his car met a vehicle driven by Lori Carlson of the city, which was attempting to turn left into Seventh street after heading north on LaBree. Damages were estimated at $300 to the Carlson car and $20 to the Troska vehicle.

Six other incidents, all thefts, were reported to the police department within the last week.

Three of the incidents were reported last Wednesday, July 16. Mrs. Douglas Main of the city reported their house had been entered while the family was out of town. A small amount of cash, a watch and a transistor radio were taken. The watch was later found in an alley down the block. A local business reported the theft of a set of sockets valued at $40. Mrs. Bruce Legg told police their home had been entered between 6 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. and meat was taken from the freezer. Other food items were also taken. Value of their loss was set at about $13.

Thursday, Larry Baumgartner, TRF, reported some items taken from a garage where he had stored them and which he was in the process of moving. A camera, cassette player and piggy bank valued at a total of $69 were missing.

In one of two thefts reported Monday, Darrel Schoff of the city said a camper damper (an item used on a pickup camper as a shock absorber) was taken while the vehicle was parked at the turkey processing plant. The loss was valued at $31.95. A local bulk plant reported the theft of three batteries valued at a total of approximately $80 from trucks during the night.

DFL Fund Drive Ends This Week

Pennington county Democrats will close a major fundraising effort this weekend as the DFL's state-wide Dollars for Democrats drive ends. The four-week long drive is comprised of telephone solicitation as volunteers request modest contributions from area residents, according to Pennington county co-chairpersons Fran Stromberg and John Steidl.

Unemployment Is Up 3,595 From Last Week

Persons in active claims status under the five unemployment programs currently in force in Minnesota totaled 88,681 for the week ending July 11, commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of employment services reported today. The total is up 3,595 from the preceding week.

Initial claims filed during the week for the regular program totaled 6,827, up 3,633 (114 per cent) from the previous week and up 4,191 (159 per cent) from the corresponding week a year ago. Total number of active regular claims was 59,503, up 3,693 (7 per cent) from the previous week.

Initial claims for extended benefits (paid when regular benefits are exhausted; totaled 1,441; for federal supplemental benefits (paid when regular and extended benefits are exhausted), 874; for additional federal supplemental benefits (paid when regular federal supplemental benefits are exhausted), 275; and for special unemployment assistance (paid to workers not ordinarily covered by unemployment insurance), 125.

For the week of July 4, the latest for which figures are available, the total amount of benefits paid under all programs was $4,212,209. Included in those benefits were $2,719,230 in regular benefits, up $1,542,158 (131 per cent) over the corresponding week a year ago. The average weekly benefit amount was $65.28, up $4.84 from a year ago.

During the week of July 4, payments for extended benefits were $829,159; for federal supplemental benefits, $474,795; for additional federal supplemental benefits, $149,402; and for special unemployment assistance, $39,623.

Since the first of the year, $113,843,387 has been paid, up $44,286,123 (64 per cent) from the same period a year ago.

In the Twin Cities metropolitan area serviced by five claims offices (Minneapolis, St. Paul, Hopkins, Bloomington and Fridley), the number of persons on active claims status under all five unemployment insurance programs was 46,658 for the week ending July 11. This was 1,921 or 4 per cent more than the previous week and 159 per cent more than the same week a year ago.

The number of persons filing initial claims for the regular program totaled 3,478, up 2,223 from the previous week. Initial claims for extended benefits totaled 791; for federal supplemental benefits, 456; for additional federal supplemental benefits, 156; and special unemployment assistance, 58.

Waive No-Fault Insurance On Stored Vehicles

Automobile owners who have a vehicle in storage are no longer required to show proof of no-fault insurance coverage at the time of registration, the division of motor vehicles reported recently.

An oversight in the original no-fault bill had in effect required that a vehicle, even if it were in storage, would have to be insured before new license plates or registration tabs could be issued to the owner.

Action by the most recent legislature has corrected this situation and will allow the owner of a vehicle in storage (not used or parked on public streets or highways) to maintain current registration of that vehicle without certifying insurance coverage as is required of all other automobile owners at registration time.

By filling out an affidavit for the waiver of proof of insurance, a form available at state vehicle registration and deputy registrar offices, and attaching it to the regular registration application, the owner of a stored vehicle may now keep his car currently registered but not necessarily insured.

The motor vehicle division emphasized that the vehicle must be stored off the public streets and must not be driven while registered in this status. The affidavit should be securely attached to the registration form as it is the only indicator of why the insurance information is not provided.

All other motor vehicle owners must provide the insurance information requested on the registration form every time they apply for new plates or stickers.

STRANDQUIST . .

Tina Larson celebrated her sixth birthday on Friday with a party at her home. Those who came to wish her a happy birthday were Dixie Sotreby, Angela Hahn, Tarek Oistad, Mark Koland, Corey Boen, Seth Borsvold and her brother, Dion was also present. Games were played and ice cream and cake was served. A good time was had by all.

Sunday evening visitors at Ella Thuns were Mr. and Mrs. Gunnor Sundberg and Mrs. Wayne Donarski.

Mr. Persson and Mrs. Nordstrom were first cousins of the late Edwin Lefrooth so they came as house guests of Mrs. Elsie Lefrooth June 2.

On June 7 the group accompanied by Mrs. Lefrooth left for an extended tour of 5,300 miles using Verne Lefrooth's car. They were able to visit with 19 of their first cousins in Canada besides numerous distant relatives and friends who had migrated from Sweden.

We spent one week in the Prince Albert, Kinistino and Saskatoon, Sask., area. In Calgary, Alberta, Mrs. Lefrooth spent two nights and Sunday with her cousins, the Jacobsons while the Swedes enjoyed the parks, zoo and the beauty of the scenery.

We stayed one week at Vancouver, B.C., as house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Skands. The highlights of that week were the tour to Victoria and the Haggstrom and Mickelson picnic at Stanley Park with over 50 relatives in attendance.

That day we found out why we had taken our warmer jackets along. We spent one night in Seattle with Mrs. Lefrooth's sister-in-law, Verona Morgan and then on to Longview, Wa., where we spent two nights at the Lester Isaacson home. In Longview, we visited with the following: Mrs. Minnie Isaacson, (Elsie's aunt) Fern Fick, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Isaacson, Alice and Dewayne Ostrand, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Oststrand and family, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Isaacson and Sandy and Melbelyne Underberg.

The next weekend we spent in Missoula, Mont., as guests of Victor and Dewayne Wilson, nephews of Edwin.

By now we were getting anxious to return home, but couldn't resist going to Yellowstone Park in Wyoming. Though we didn't see the traditional bears nor feel the earth quake which was reported for the night, we were there, the majesty of the mountains, Old Faithful and the beauty of the painted canyons, etc., will all be long remembered.

Senior Citizens

It was a warm, windy day July 17 when the senior citizens held their weekly gettogether at the hangout. Some came to work, some come to visit and some come for the lunch that is served about four o'clock.

Twenty registered on Thursday and our visitors wer Ruby Gibson of Emmetsburg, Ia., Mrs. Laurel Kline Sr., John Taylor, August Lindgren and little Tina Larson. It was like old times to have Donella Larson and Donna with us again and so nice to have Sarah back after being absent a few times.

Some more octopus dolls were made, also flowers worked on last Thursday were completed and a pink piece quilt was tied. This quilt and the blue one finished last week are already spoken for, so they won't be on display for long.

Mildred read the treasurers report for June. We come out ahead this month. It does help when we can give the furnace a rest. In winter that really eats into our savings, but we are proud and happy we can pay our own way. Florence Stennes was our hostess.

He is a mighty small man—almost too small to leave his footprints in the sand. But he is starting out on his own. He is exploring, seeking, learning. Where will his footsteps ultimately lead him?

There are so many courses a child may take—so many that a person of any age can follow. But it is never too late to change direction, even if it seems as if a dead end has been reached. The beauty of life is that the word itself is synonomous with hope.

If the direction your footsteps have been taking you is disappointing, then turn toward the Church. Remember, the Church has survived for centuries against odds that would have annihilated a lesser force. That in itself is reason enough to give it a chance—to see what it has to offer.

Events Calendar Helpful Aid For Vacation Plans

July and August are traditionally the height of the summer season in Minnesota. With beautiful warm days ahead, weekend excursions and camping or fishing trips fill summer schedules.

A helpful aid in vacation planning is Minnesota's "Calendar of Events." It lists community celebrations to fit everyone's interests.

During late July and August weekends, Pipestone's annual outdoor pageant is a major event of southwestern Minnesota. Citizens of the community present Longfellow's "Song of Hiawatha" as audiences view the pageantry in an amphitheater under the stars.

In August and September threshing festivals in Dalton, Rollag and Butterfield draw large crowds of visitors fascinated by huge steam engines and restored gas tractors. County fairs and tractor pulls further highlight the importance of Minnesota's agriculture.

One of the major craft and entertainment festivals in the state is the Renaissance festival on September weekends near Chaska. A 16th century mayfaire and marketplace is recreated complete with jousting contests, magicians, jesters, food, dance and craft sales.

Whether it be water carnivals or corn feeds, logging championships or rodeos, they are listed in the "Calendar of Events." Write the Minnesota tourist information center, box 109, 480 Cedar street, St. Paul, Mn. 55101 or call toll-free 1-(800) 652-9008.

Daughter Born

The Ray Solney's received a long-distance phone call Sunday from the Dalen Greens in Melbourn, Australia, announcing the birth of a baby girl July 13. (Due to 16 hours difference in time zones, it was July 13 there while it was still Saturday, July 12 here).

Since babies are not weighed until they are several hours old in Australia, we do not know her birth weight, but she will be named Susan Elizabeth, and joins one brother, Derek, 6 years old.

The Dahlen Greens will have been in Australia one year this coming August. It was also interesting to hear that with our 90 degree temperatures here, they are experiencing the height of their winter, with daytime temperatures in the 40's and 50's, and nighttime readings close to 30 degrees.

Congratulations to parents and grandparents of baby Susan!

"Congress is cumbersome, big and unwieldy. In a sense, it is the public reflection of 200-million Americans, self-centered, wanting to do right, not always knowing what is right, but trying. The voting behavior of a member of Congress cannot be explained by referring to the need for party loyalty. It can only be understood by a clear view of the constituency represented by the member. That constituency is not homogeneous: it is rural and urban, black and white, rich and poor, learned and illiterate. To fail to reflect these constituent differences is to fail to represent. The member of Congress was not elected to do the will of the President, nor the will of the Congressional leadership, but to act on behalf of the people. Representing the people is a sobering trusteeship, a responsibility that cannot be discharged to the satisfaction of all. So it has been for 200 years, and may it ever be so."

Communication Gap

"If you go into the Minneapolis public library," writes Minnesota Newspaper association manager Bob Shaw in a recent bulletin, "you will see, on the north wall of the main entrance, a series of very attractive displays titled 'Two Hundred Years of Communications'. The purpose of these displays is to remind us, in our bicentennial year, about the history and development of communications in America.

"The reason I went to look at this display was that a newspaper editor told me about it. 'Go down there,' he said. 'That display will make you mad'.

"I did, and it did."

In a lengthy editorial, Shaw explains why the display made him angry and gives some of his personal views about the printed word. He notes that the display deals with the dissemination of knowledge in America, including road and railroad building, coming of telephones, use of airplanes by the postal service and then radio and television. Then he continues as follows:

We are reminded that "news of Pearl Harbor came over the air to four out of five Americans." In the TV display we are reminded that this present period of our history is the "Triumph of the Tube"; that the average American family's TV set is turned on about six hours a day.

Then, in the final display which looks into the future, we are told the following: "If all the pages of the world's newspapers printed in one day were laid edge to edge, they would encircle the earth at the equator 250 thousand times. Visicomm would eliminate this waste of resources by showing any page of news on the screen . . ."

So in a display commissioned by the Minneapolis public library, whose intent is to refelct out nation's "200 Years of Communications", viewed by many persons in the general public, there is not one word about newspapers as being a form of communication in America except that they are a "waste of resources". I resent this slander.

Shaw continues:

Any newspaperman or woman seeing this display would be likely to think, as I did, "What about the work we do? What about all those nights when I used to sit up late at those city council and school board meetings, when I was the only person representing the public as I tried to cover the news? What about the large volume of public information which the 400 newspapers in Minnesota, the 9,000 newspapers of the nation, produce every day, every week? What about the part which newspapers played in the American Revolution? Triumph of the tube? Triumph of narcosis, of distraction, of headlines masquerading as news. Waste of resources? What better use of fibers than to make them into paper, print public information on that paper, and disseminate it for all to read?"

But when is somebody, for the sake of historical accuracy if for nothing else, going to remind the American public about the power of words on paper?

Words on paper, words printed carefully on those small Colonial journals, played a great part in the American Revolution. Indeed, there are some historians who believe that were it not for a small band of radical pamphleteers, the revolution might not have taken place at all. There were, there must have been, a lot of words in the air. But it was words on paper, laboriously put there by men operating hand presses and passed from person to person, which concentrated the arguments, put them into persuasive form, and united the population.

Words, printed on what the Minneapolis public library so contemptuously calls a "waste of resources", that is, paper, bound the colonies together as nothing else could have done. Tom Paine's "Common Se [illegible] its great inspirational messages to the common soldier, was passed from knapsack to knapsack, fireside to fireside, throughout the Continental Army.

From the tattered pages of "Common Sense", Paine spoke [illegible] Nobody argued: "I think [illegible] and-so", or "As I recall it when I heard him at Trenton, he said such-and-such." They would dig down in their knapsacks and fetch a copy of the newspaper and read what he said. They read Paine's words. They thought about them, discussed them, memorized them, took them to heart.

That's why words on paper have a special power. They stay there.

No civilization has made much of what we call progress unless it has learned to make some sort of permanent, phonetic record of its speech. Before men learned to put words on stone, or papyrus, or sheepskin or paper, mankind had no memory. There were, there always were, plenty of words in the air. But there was no way to fix them into a semi-permanent form, no way to store them. It was not possible for one generation to build on the experience of the former generation.

Words on paper, words in newspapers, magazines, books, all sorts of periodicals, words which tell readers what is going on about them, still have power. If two young police reporters hand't started to put words on paper, a very dangerous man might still be our President. If Rachel Carson hadn't written "Silent Spring", the whole ecological movement might not have had the dramatic start which it did. Take away newspapers, and you remove an enormous volume of public information, information which, for the most part, is not entertaining but factual. The power to write and the ability to read, the general literacy of a population, lie at the very basis of any hope for progress, if by "progress" we mean progress toward a more humane, democratic way of life.

Thanks to a fraudulent system of education, our population is steadily drifting away from reading and writing. The TV is, in a way, "victorious." The tube actually is turned on six hours a day in the average home. There is some evidence building up that large numbers of our people do not know how to read. The decline of the reading habit is starting to show up in the decline of newspaper circulation figures.

There will always be plenty of words in the air. But the process of reducing these words to thoughts on paper, if the thoughts relate to events of general importance; and the movement of these pieces of paper to the population are, I say, as important today as they were in the American Revolution. The issue is certainly broader than the interests of the newspaper industry. I say the continuing miracle is not Visicomm, but the phonetic alphabet which enables us to put our thoughts in permant form.

Just In Jest

Howard Doherty's column in the Cavalier County (N.D.) Republican carried an item entitled "Irish Mother's Letter To Her Son". It was written in humor and we trust you will get as much enjoyment out of it as we did.

Dear Son.

Just a few lines to let you know that I'm still alive. I'm writing this letter slowly because I know you can't read fast. You won't know this house when you come home. Because we've moved. It's a lot of trouble moving. The most difficult part was the bed. The man wouldn't let us put it in the taxi. It wouldn't have been half bad if your father hadn't been sleeping in it at the time. Your dad has a new job now, he has 500 men under him. He's cutting grass at the cemetery. Your sister got herself engaged to a fellow she's been going with. He gave her a beautiful ring with three stones missing. Our neighbors, the Browns, are keeping pigs. We got wind of it this morning. I got my appendix out and a new dishwasher put in. There was a washing machine in the new house when we moved in but it wasn't working too good. Last week I put 14 shirts in it, pulled the chain. I haven't seen them since. Your little brother came home crying from school yesterday. All the boys in school have new suits, so we are going to buy him a new hat and let him look out the window. Your sister Mary had a baby this morning. I haven't heard if it's a boy or girl. So I don't know if you're an uncle or an aunt. Your uncle drowned last week in a vat of whiskey at the Dublin Distillary. Four of his workmates dove in to save him, but he bravely fought them off. We cremated his body. It took three days to put out the fire. Kate is working in a factory in Birmingham. She's been working there for six weeks. I'm sending her some clean clothes. She says she's been working in the same shift since she started. Your father didn't have much to drink for Christmas, I put a bottle of caster oil in his pint of beer. It kept him going 'til New Years Eve. Last week I went to the doctors, your dad came with me. The doctor put a small glass tube in my mouth and told me not to open it for ten minutes. Your dad offered to buy the glass tube from him. It only rained twice last week, first for three [illegible] four days. Monday was so windy, one of our hens laid the same egg four times. We had a letter from the undertaker yesterday, he said if the last installment wasn't paid on your grandmother within seven days up she comes. I have to close for now, the plummer is [illegible] and there is a [illegible]

Your Loving Mother.

P.S. I was going to put in ten dollars, but I had already sealed the envelope.

Charles Bronson stars as a barnstorming Texas bush pilot and Jill Ireland is co-starred as the wife of an American businessman, unjustly imprisoned for life in a Mexican penitentiary, who offers the on-his-uppers flyer a small fortune to engineer a daring escape in "Breakout," action-adventure drama which also stars Robert Duvall, Randy Quaid and John Huston. GENERAL REVENUE SHARING

ACTUAL USE REPORT ⑤

Wendell R. Anderson

Minnesotans, as well as tourists from other states, are making increased use of the "Minnetours" program of the Minnesota Department of Economic Development.

And for good reason. These tours offer an opportunity to get away from the hot spots for a brief time, conserve the gasoline needed for longer trips, and treating yourselves to some of the most interesting sights and things to do that Minnesota has to offer.

One example is the Minnetour of the Arrowhead Country of northeastern Minnesota.

Start as you enter Duluth, with a breathtaking view of the city and its harbor, the largest inland seaport in the world. You might want to ride the chair-lifts at Spirit Mountain, or visit the famous lift bridge and watch ships from all over the world enter and leave the harbor.

Further north at Two Harbors, you'll see huge ore docks, and the Two Harbors Museum. Right next to the museum you can watch new furniture being made and old furniture being restored, in the Two Harbors Community Workshop. If you get there in the morning, there's a bakery on the corner where the rolls are fantastic.

Further along the shore of Lake Superior is Silver Bay. Along the way you'll see Gooseberry Falls and Split Rock Lighthouse. When you arrive at Silver Bay, you can picnic at Palisade Point, 350 feet above Lake Superior, where you can also look inland and see the jagged peaks of the Sawtooth Mountains.

Just north of Silver Bay, Minnesota Highway 1 heads for Ely through the Superior National forest toward the lush Boundary Waters Canoe Area. There you can visit the Voyageurs Visitors Center, take a nature walk through the woods and see the story of how Minnesota's lakes were formed.

Next stop on the tour is the Tower-Soudan Mine in Tower, Minnesota, the only underground iron mine in the United States open for tours. Bring a jacket, the temperature in the mine is a constant 51 degrees, and you'll be going more than 3,000 feet underground. The children's eyes will pop out when they ride on the underground mine train.

You'll also want to stop at the mining museum in Chisolm. There you can actually sit in the driver's seat of the huge iron ore mining steam shovels and have your picture taken standing in a giant earth scoop.

On to Hibbing, where you'll see the world's largest open pit iron mine, more than 600 feet deep and five miles long. From Hibbing west toward Grand Rapids, you'll pass taconite mines and processing plants, the booming industry of northeastern Minnesota.

At Grand Rapids you can visit a paper manufacturing plant, and perhaps even take an air ride over some of the taconite mines which surround Grand Rapids.

It's an exciting couple of days, whether you're young or old. And it's only one of 11 Minnesota Minnetours.

If you'd like more information on this easy and interesting way to enjoy Minnesota this summer, write to the Minnesota Department of Economic Development, Hanover Building, Box 113, 480 Cedar Street, St. Paul, 55101, and ask for their Minnetours booklet. It's free.

But there was no way to fix them into a semi-permanent form, no way to store them. It was not possible for one generation to build on the experience of the former generation.

Words on paper, words in newspapers, magazines, books, all sorts of periodicals, words which tell readers what is going on about them, still have power. If two young police reporters hand't started to put words on paper, a very dangerous man might still be our President. If Rachel Carson hadn't written "Silent Spring", the whole ecological movement might not have had the dramatic start which it did. Take away newspapers, and you remove an enormous volume of public information, information which, for the most part, is not entertaining but factual. The power to write and the ability to read, the general literacy of a population, lie at the very basis of any hope for progress, if by "progress" we mean progress toward a more humane, democratic way of life.

Thanks to a fraudulent system of education, our population is steadily drifting away from reading and writing. The TV is, in a way, "victorious." The tube actually is turned on six hours a day in the average home. There is some evidence building up that large numbers of our people do not know how to read. The decline of the reading habit is starting to show up in the decline of newspaper circulation figures.

There will always be plenty of words in the air. But the process of reducing these words to thoughts on paper, if the thoughts relate to events of general importance; and the movement of these pieces of paper to the population are, I say, as important today as they were in the American Revolution. The issue is certainly broader than the interests of the newspaper industry. I say the continuing miracle is not Visicomm, but the phonetic alphabet which enables us to put our thoughts in permant form.

Just In Jest

Howard Doherty's column in the Cavalier County (N.D.) Republican carried an item entitled "Irish Mother's Letter To Her Son". It was written in humor and we trust you will get as much enjoyment out of it as we did.

Dear Son.

Just a few lines to let you know that I'm still alive. I'm writing this letter slowly because I know you can't read fast. You won't know this house when you come home. Because we've moved. It's a lot of trouble moving. The most difficult part was the bed. The man wouldn't let us put it in the taxi. It wouldn't have been half bad, if your father hadn't been sleeping in it at the time. Your dad has a new job now, he has 500 men under him. He's cutting grass at the cemetery. Your sister got herself engaged to a fellow she's been going with. He gave her a beautiful ring with three stones missing. Our neighbors, the Browns, are keeping pigs. We got wind of it this morning. I got my appendix out and a new dishwasher put in. There was a washing machine in the new house when we moved in but it wasn't working too good. Last week I put 14 shirts in it, pulled the chain. I haven't seen them since. Your little brother came home crying from school yesterday. All the boys in school have new suits, so we are going to buy him a new hat and let him look out the window. Your sister Mary had a baby this morning. I haven't heard if it's a boy or girl. So I don't know if you're an uncle or an aunt. Your uncle drowned last week in a vat of whiskey at the Dublin Distillary. Four of his workmates dove in to save him, but he bravely fought them off. We cremated his body. It took three days to put out the fire. Kate is working in a factory in Birmingham. She's been working there for six weeks. I'm sending her some clean clothes. She says she's been working in the same shift since she started. Your father didn't have much to drink for Christmas, I put a bottle of caster oil in his pint of beer. It kept him going 'til New Years Eve. Last week I went to the doctors, your dad came with me. The doctor put a small glass tube in my mouth and told me not to open it for ten minutes. Your dad offered to buy the glass tube from him. It only rained twice last week, first for three [illegible] four days. Monday was so [illegible], one of our hens laid the same egg four times. We had a letter from the undertaker yesterday, he said if the last installment wasn't paid on your grandmother within seven days up she comes. I have to close for now, the plummer is [illegible] and there is a [illegible]

Your Loving Mother.

P.S. I was going to put in ten dollars, but I had already sealed the envelope.

Charles Bronson stars as a barnstorming Texas bush pilot and Jill Ireland is co-starred as the wife of an American businessman, unjustly imprisoned for life in a Mexican penitentiary, who offers the on-his-uppers flyer a small fortune to engineer a daring escape in "Breakout," action-adventure drama which also stars Robert Duvall, Randy Quaid and John Huston. Starts Sun., July 27 at the Galaxy Twin theatre.

notes from the governor

Wendell R. Anderson

Minnesotans, as well as tourists from other states, are making increased use of the "Minnetours" program of the Minnesota Department of Economic Development.

And for good reason. These tours offer an opportunity to get away from the hot spots for a brief time, conserve the gasoline needed for longer trips, and treating yourselves to some of the most interesting sights and things to do that Minnesota has to offer.

One example is the Minnetour of the Arrowhead Country of northeastern Minnesota.

Start as you enter Duluth, with a breathtaking view of the city and its harbor, the largest inland seaport in the world. You might want to ride the chair-lifts at Spirit Mountain, or visit the famous lift bridge and watch ships from all over the world enter and leave the harbor.

Further north at Two Harbors, you'll see huge ore docks, and the Two Harbors Museum. Right next to the museum you can watch new furniture being made and old furniture being restored, in the Two Harbors Community Workshop. If you get there in the morning, there's a bakery on the corner where the rolls are fantastic.

Further along the shore of Lake Superior is Silver Bay. Along the way you'll see Gooseberry Falls and Split Rock Lighthouse. When you arrive at Silver Bay, you can picnic at Palisade Point, 350 feet above Lake Superior, where you can also look inland and see the jagged peaks of the Sawtooth Mountains.

Just north of Silver Bay, Minnesota Highway 1 heads for Ely through the Superior National forest toward the lush Boundary Waters Canoe Area. There you can visit the Voyageurs Visitors Center, take a nature walk through the woods and see the story of how Minnesota's lakes were formed.

Next stop on the tour is the Tower-Soudan Mine in Tower, Minnesota, the only underground iron mine in the United States open for tours. Bring a jacket, the temperature in the mine is a constant 51 degrees, and you'll be going more than 3,000 feet underground. The children's eyes will pop out when they ride on the underground mine train.

You'll also want to stop at the mining museum in Chisolm. There you can actually sit in the driver's seat of the huge iron ore mining steam shovels and have your picture taken standing in a giant earth scoop.

On to Hibbing, where you'll see the world's largest open pit iron mine, more than 600 feet deep and five miles long. From Hibbing west toward Grand Rapids, you'll pass taconite mines and processing plants, the booming industry of northeastern Minnesota.

At Grand Rapids you can visit a paper manufacturing plant, and perhaps even take an air ride over some of the taconite mines which surround Grand Rapids.

It's an exciting couple of days, whether you're young or old. And it's only one of 11 Minnesota Minnetours.

If you'd like more information on this easy and interesting way to enjoy Minnesota this summer, write to the Minnesota Department of Economic Development, Hanover Building, Box 113, 480 Cedar Street, St. Paul, 55101, and ask for their Minnetours booklet. It's free.

UOP Sponsors New 4-H Environmental Program

Meeting in Washington, D.C., to discuss the new national 4-H environmental improvement program are (from the left) Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, UOP President and Chairman John O. Logan, and Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency Russell Train. Sponsored by UOP and announced by the National 4-H Service Committee, the program stresses the meaningful involvement of youth in projects aimed at improving environmental quality.

SPECIAL—A major new effort aimed at getting more young people involved in improving the quality of life on our planet is being funded by UOP.

Official announcement of the company's support of the new program was made at a conference (April 30) in Washington, D.C. Joining in the conference at the office of Secretary of Agriculture were: Secretary Earl L. Butz; John O. Logan, chairman and president of UOP; Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Russell Train and representatives of the Cooperative Extension Service, National 4-H Service Committee and National 4-H Foundation.

Noting that the national 4-H environmental improvement program is designed to encourage youthful participation in planning, carrying out and evaluating environmental projects, Secretary Butz heralded the UOP support. He called the program "a positive approach to youth involvement."

The cooperative aspects of the program were noted by Russell Train. "There isn't enough of this type of partnership between government and private industry," he said. "Government can't do all that needs to be done in environmental improvement. EPA stands ready to assist 4-H in this important new program."

UOP President and Chairman John O. Logan described the program as "a positive step in bringing UOP and 4-H into closer partnership. We know the actions of the 4-H'ers participating in this program will result in a better life for us all," he said.

In explaining the mechanics of the new 4-H program, Edwin L. Kirby, administrator, Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, emphasized innovative youth involvement. He noted that state and local funding of the program will be based upon environmental improvement proposals to be submitted by state and local 4-H groups. The proposals are expected to lead to action and the development of models usable nationwide, Kirby said.

"This is an unparalleled opportunity for youth and adults to work together in their communities to meet local needs, and to contribute to solutions at local, state and national levels," the extension administrator added.

Proposed programs may touch on one or more areas of ecological concern. Some popular, ongoing 4-H activities related to the environment include conservation of natural resources; wildlife conservation; forestry, range and grassland management; plant and soil science; and entomology.

In addition to grants, the program provides for training 4-H members and volunteer leaders in environmental improvement practices. Special emphasis also is to be placed on developing the leadership potential of 4-H teens who excel in environmentally-related projects.

Others participating in the program announcement conference included—Norman C. Mindrum, director, National 4-H Service Committee; Rhonwyn Lowry, deputy assistant administrator 4-H Youth, Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Grant A. Shrum, executive director, National 4-H Foundation.

Simplicity describes the design as well as the operation of this drying system. Fewer moving parts reduces 'downtime' and eliminates a lot of unnecessary worry. Controls are placed for easy use and identification. There is no need to stand by the controls adjusting and readjusting. Depending on field drying conditions, periodic moisture tests and compensating adjustments are all the attention that's required.

HEARING ASSISTANCE for the hearing impaired in the Thief River Falls public schools has been provided through the L. B. Hartz foundation of Thief River Falls. Equipment consists of a microphone which the student can bring with him to class and the teacher can wear. A wireless receiver is carried by the student who is then able to hear the regular class lesson. The hearing impaired student wearing the receiver can be contacted almost anywhere in the school building. Onealee Russell, instructor of the hearing impaired, is shown with Hartz and Matthew Josephson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn C. Josephson. Hartz was given a demonstration of use of the equipment during a visit to the hearing impaired class last week. The class was part of the local school district's summer school program.

City Sells Bonds On Water Improvements

Despite being faced with "by far the most unfavorable interest rate the city of Thief River Falls has ever paid," according to city attorney Robert Wurst, the city council, in a meeting Thursday noon in the city auditorium council chambers, awarded the sale of bonds for the EDA waterworks improvements and sewer and water additions project, and the 1974 sewer and water improvements project.

Three resolutions were passed, which: Awarded bond sale to the lowest bidder, Juran and Moody of Mpls., for proceeds of $1,470,000 and a net interest rate over a 20-year period of 6.8871 per cent; directed issuance of $245,000 improvement bonds; and directed issuance of $1,250,000 general obligation water and sewer bonds for the EDA project.

Wurst was unable to attend the meeting, but in a letter to the council dated July 23, he gave several reasons why the unfavorable interest rate was imposed.

He said bond term payments will extend over a 20-year period, with the great bulk of the payments to be made in the last few years when the maximum interest rates permitted by law will prevail. This was established in order to level out the total payments of principal and interest on general obligation water and sewer revenue bonds of all types payable over the next 20 years. The central goal is to distribute the payments from sewer and water department revenues, and leveling would supposedly allow sewer and water rates to be established and remain relatively stable until the bonds are paid.

Another factor contributing to the high interest rate, according to Wurst, is the mounting city debt coupled with the substantially increased overlapping debt of Pennington county caused by recent substantial bond issues.

Several councilmen expressed dissatisfaction with the high interest rate, but alderman Fred Sorensen maintained it was not surprising. "With inflation going up 10 per cent, a seven per cent interest rate will hardly keep up," he said.

After discussion, the council agreed that the city could not expect to receive more favorable interest rates at any other time and that since construction on the projects has already begun it was necessary to act rapidly on the matter in order to obtain needed funding.

The EDA project includes construction of a new water treatment facility and sewer and water extensions into the industrial park, south of the city.

OLD-FASHIONED melodrama is spoofed in the musical "Little Mary Sunshine", by Rick Besoyan, the final production of the 1975 Northland summer theatre, playing tonight (Monday) through Friday at 8 p.m. at the Northland college theatre. As in traditional melodrama, Mary, played by Kathy Wald, is troubled by a due mortgage, but is saved from the villain by ranger Jim Warington, played by Rick Erickson of Viking. As the scene pictured above indicates, any similarities to old Jeannette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy movies are entirely intentional.

Last NCC Production Tonight

"Little Mary Sunshine" will be presented Monday through Friday, July 28 through August 1, at the Northland community college theatre at 8 p.m. Tickets for the production are now on sale at Larson Music company in Thief River Falls or may be reserved by calling Northland community college, 681-2181. Ticket prices are set at $1.75 for adults, $1.25 for students and 75 cents for children under 12.

A musical about the romance and wit of old-time melodramas, "Little Mary Sunshine" has been one of the most popular summer musicals of recent years. It received rave reviews at its New York opening and has delighted audiences of all ages in many parts of the world.

This is the final production of the Northland summer theatre 1975, and its success will determine also the success of future Northland summer theatre productions, according to Director Michael Tillmann. The production is presented under the auspices of Northland college and with partial funding by the Minnesota State Arts Council.

Cast for the production are Kathy Wald as Little Mary Sunshine, Rick Erickson as Ranger Jim Warington, Charles Erickson as Billy Jester, Myrnelle Brussegaard as Nancy

545 Enrolled In Summer School

Summer school session for Thief River Falls elementary and secondary students ended Friday with record enrollment in the elementary classes and good attendance in secondary classes. William Desrocher directed the elementary program with Mrs. Adeline Vollan in charge of the secondary summer school.

Desrocher said the 310 students enrolled in the elementary summer school comprised the largest enrollment since the summer sessions were started over 10 years ago. There were 29 days of classes during the June 16 to July 25 schedule.

Secondary school enrollment for grades six through 12 totaled 235 full-time and part-time students in a dozen different courses taught by one part-time and 11 full-time instructors, Mrs. Villan said.

Sessions for elementary students were at Mark Twain elementary school with secondary classes at Franklin middle school. Remedial, make-up and enrichment classes were offered with the major portion of secondary students involved with make-up or remedial work.

Two new courses were offered for high school credit, both in the vocational agriculture department. They included landscape design and production agriculture cooperative training. The balance of the secondary curriculum included art, field trip science, industrial arts, typing, communications, mathematics, social studies and American history.

Desrocher said the elementary program is offered on a nongraded basis with students tested in reading and math at the start of the program and grouped by ability and age.

"This procedure has worked out very well," Desrocher said. "Due to the change of pace the children seem to enjoy themselves whatever their reason for attending."

Enrollment and number of teachers in each subject field included the following: Reading, 130 enrolled and four instructors teacher; mathematics, 121 and three; art, 136 and three; camping, 49 and two; community study, 65 and two; hearing imparied, seven and one; and speech therapy, nine and one.

Art Welter, instructor of the field trip science course, was joined by two other adults in directing 11 students from the sixth through eighth grades on a two-day tour of Winnipeg on July 22 and 23. The group visited the Assiniboine park and zoo with its animal exhibits and Victorian gardens; the planetarium and museum; Manitoba legislative building and its outdoor landscaping; and Lower Fort Garry, a restored fort about 15 miles from Winnipeg which gives an insight into life in the mid 1800's.

She was found unconscious about 7:15 p.m. and the ambulance was called. Transfer was made to the neuropsychiatric department of the Fargo hospital because of the head injury.

Arctic Annual Meet Expresses Optimism

Lowell Swenson

John C. Penn

Shareholders of Arctic Enterprises, Inc., heard of a first quarter loss, optimism toward a profitable year, a salute to L. B. Hartz and manufacture for the Sno-Jet company at the annual meeting of the corporation Thursday afternoon at the Thief River golf club. They also reelected three directors and approved expansion of the board to nine members.

Reelected to the board were Lowell T. Swenson, Thief River Falls, chairman and chief executive officer of Arctic; Samuel D. Addoms, executive vice president of Monfort of Colorado; and John J. Womack, Thief River Falls, secretary-treasurer of Toreq, Inc., of Thief River Falls.

Expansion of the board from eight to nine directors permitted the election of John C. Penn, company president, to a one-year term on the board.

Chairman Swenson introduced L. B. Hartz, Thief River Falls businessman who provided necessary financial assistance during the formative years of the company, in recognition of Hartz' 50 years in business. "If it had not been for L. B. Hartz," Swenson said, "there would not have been an Arctic Enterprises." Hartz' introduction was met with a standing ovation.

A consolidated net loss of $844,000 or 28 cents per share for the first quarter of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1975, was announced at the annual meeting. This is a reduction from a loss of $1,368,000 or 45 cents per share for the same quarter last year. Sales for the three-month period totaled $9,903,000—an increase from $7,390,000 a year ago.

Penn told the shareholders in attendance that "The reduced loss results from absorption of fixed overhead because of more production during the quarter than last year, together with the increase in sales for the period. This reduced loss is in line with our objective of being profitable in fiscal 1976."

Arctic had previously announced its plans to produce approximately 49,000 snowmobiles for the 1976 model year, including 4,000 units for another company. Board chairman Swenson announced at the meeting—apparently previously unknown to only a couple of those in attendance—that the 4,000 snowmobiles would be manufactured for Sno-Jet. The total 49,000 production for 1976 is up from 37,000 a year ago.

"A year ago, in our report to shareholders," Penn stated in his fiscal 1975 review, "we stated several objectives for fiscal 1975—a key year for Arctic and the snowmobile industry. These objectives included:

"To reduce the excess carryover snowmobile inventories, with the resultant reduction in

Chosen Generation Is The Theme At WCTU Meeting

July meeting of the Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance Union, held at the Longren home, had as its theme, "A Chosen Generation." Stressing the theme was the devotional meditation given by Mrs. Earle Ripley. She read I Peter 2:9-17 and Luke 12:48. Mrs. Ripley stated that a Christian is law-abiding and self-disciplined in spite of the form of government to which he or she is subjected. God expects honesty, good behavior, respect and honor from all Christians, who are just pilgrims in this life. She concluded by saying that Christianity does not give a person freedom to the extent that they have the right to do what they want to do, but it gives them the power to do what they ought to do. The devotional concluded with members participation in request prayers and prayers of thankfulness.

The meeting began with members signing cards for shut-ins, friends who have moved away, an anniversary card for the John Vielguths and a birthday card for Mr. Vielguth. The group also sang two hymns: "Save the Nation," written by Ellen Johnson, the state vice president; and "Christ for the World We Sing."

The history of the peace symbol displayed by many people in various ways was read by Mrs. Ripley. The article, published by Osterhus publishing house, revealed that the symbol, a broken cross, turned upside down, dated back to the middle ages and was used as a subtle sign opposing Christianity. The sumbol is also the central part of the national symbolism of Communist Russia. The article concluded by stating that the use of this symbol, known as "Crow's Foot," or "Witch's Foot," implys that America is anti-Christian.

It was decided to order a number of copies of the article, "Peace Symbol?" to be distributed at the next meeting.

Members also participated in a parliamentary law study, featuring the basic business meeting procedures. Leading the study were Mrs. Arnold Berg, Mrs. Emil Koglin, Miss Agnes Longren, Mrs. Otto Netteland, Mrs. Olga Larson and Mrs. Ripley. Adding interest to the meeting was the "Know Your Country Quiz," published in the Thief River Falls Times in May.

The state and national WCTU conventions were also discussed. It was noted that several were planning to attend the state convention to be held in Moorhead on August 25 through 27. Those planning to attend the National convention to be held at Glorieta, N. Mex., were asked to contact Mrs. Theo. Lee, Rt. 1, Cokato, MN 55321. Plans are that a bus will be chartered to take the delegates to New Mexico.

The next meeting of the local WCTU will be held August 15 at the Martin Mosbeck home in St. Hilaire.

Newly Purchased Homes Qualify For Tax Credit

A new law recently signed by President Ford is going to be of interest to many Minnesotans who have bought a new home that qualifies for the 5 per cent tax credit, according to IRS district director C. Dudley Switzer.

Under the old rules, the purchase price had to be the lowest price the home was ever offered for sale. With the new legislation, a qualified home is considered as "eligible property" if it was purchased at the lowest price it was offered for after February 28, 1975, Switzer said.

The new law also sheds some light on the type of certification a seller must provide to assure the buyer gets his credit. According to Switzer, a certification is acceptable as long as it shows that construction began before March 26, 1975, and that the purchase price was the lowest offered for sale after February 28, 1975.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Thoughts while picking up nails around the house after the carpenters finished the residing job. Now that the work is completed, we're glad that it is done; but believe me, there were many times that we wished that we had never started the project.

Those of you who have had any experience with carpenters lately, know just what I mean. Most carpenters are in the same category as plumbers. They are extremely independent. They begin a job and when everything is underway, they leave to work on other jobs that they started eons ago. In the meantime, the homeowner waits, waits and waits. When they return, the homeowner "darsn't" say anything to hurt their feelings or else they pack up their tools and leave in a big huff.

The homeowner is in a precarious position. He is supposed to be forever grateful that they came to do his work. Although he pays the bill, he is not supposed to tell them how he wants the work done. (I'm still fussing about the wiring we had done in our kitchen 20 years ago. I wanted a plug-in in a certain place for convenience when ironing clothes. The electrician wouldn't oblige. He said it was too costly. (I didn't ask him to pay the bill, I just wanted a plug-in on the south wall.) So where do I iron clothes? In front of the refrigerator. In the past years I've moved the ironing board zillions of times so someone could use the refrigerator.

Today, all my roses go to Rory, Kevin and "Lars", the carpenters who completed the siding, and to the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school, for the training they gave the boys.

Sidewalk superintendents thought we were absolutely crazy for entrusting "a bunch of kids, who know nothing, to put on that expensive siding." We weren't crazy. We were desperate. (Those of you who saw our house, with the old siding torn off and the building exposed to the rains, understood our situation.) When the young boys came and offered to do the work, we were apprehensive. They seemed so young. One of them summed up their situation by saying, "We're graduates of the local vocational school. We have full time work, but we would like to get extra work for two or three hours in the evening. We need experience. People don't like to give us work because of our lack of experience."

The boys were hired. They came every night like they said they would, were ambitious, conscientious and were exceptionally courteous. But above all, they knew what they were doing. We are completely satisfied with their work.

AVTI take a bow. You trained your carpenters well. Your boys are superb. We highly recommend them. How about adding a class for plumbers? The need is great. It seems sort of silly to call plumbers from neighboring towns to take care of emergencies.

Earlier in the year, I promised to publish the Kosher dill pickle recipe received from Lorene Freeman, home economist for the Speas company. Here it is:

Homestyle Kosher Dill Pickles

To each quart jar add:
1 head fresh dill
2 or 3 cloves garlic
1 small red or gree hot pepper (optional)
Bring to a boil:
2 quarts water
1 quart distilled or cider vinegar
1 cup non-iodized salt

Method: Select fresh, firm cucumbers. Wash and pack in jars. Cover with hot solution and seal. Pickles will be ready in three or four weeks, depending on the size of the cucumbers. For plain dill pickles, omit garlic. NOTE: Do not used iodized salt.

Arts And Crafts Popular Feature Of Folk Festival

One of the most popular features of the 28th annual Duluth Folk festival to be held in Leif Erikson park on Saturday, August 2, is the arts and crafts alley in which over 50 area artists and craftsmen will be participating.

Miss Bonnie Cusick, coordinator for the arts and crafts alley, has announced that participants will be accepted in the order in which the registrations are received. Since the space is limited, interested artists and craftsmen are urged to apply immediately through the folk festival office at 726-8258.

Participants have already registered from Duluth, Cloquet, Esko, Angora, Minneapolis, Pengilly, St. Peter, and Superior. Included in the sale, display, and demonstration will be oil painting, watercolors, acrylics, prints, plaques, collages, ceramics, pottery, stitchery, woodcrafts, handmade dolls, paintings on wood, weaving, handmade chamois shirts, leatherwork, batik, candles, driftwood arrangements, handmade knitted stockings and a variety of jewelry mediums.

Other folk festival areas of interest are ethnic markets which offer foods and handcrafts for sale; a children's fair with games and refreshments; festival booths which include books, a thieves' market, a bazaar, doughnuts, soft drinks, and an all-American food stand; a band concert; and a two-hour stage program.

All events of the folk festival are admission-free. The opening hour is 11 a.m. and the festival runs until 5 p.m. An alternate site will be announced in case of rain.

Economists say the total cost of owning a car rose a steep 15 per cent last year. Only part of the rise came from higher car prices. The rest resulted from jumps in the cost in gasoline, repairs and interest.

Family Reunion Day Observed On August 10th

Family picnics, outings, get-togethers and patriotic events will mark the eighth annual celebration of Family Reunion day on Sunday, August 10.

Family Reunion day recognizes the family as the cornerstone of society. The observance is supported by numerous service and fraternal organizations, veterans, patriotic, youth and religious groups to dramatize the family as the keystone of strength and morality in our nation.

In 1968 President Lyndon B. Johnson proclaimed Family Reunion day, saying: "I urge all people to support those actions that will strengthen the family, and to celebrate this day with such ceremonies as will emphasize our continuing belief that family life is the highest and most enduring product of our civilization."

Family Reunion day was originated by Kiwanis International and Freedoms foundation at Valley Forge. Freedoms foundation's president, Reed Harris, stressed the importance of the family in American today, saying, "Strong families are the nation's most valuable asset as we work to improve the quality of life for all our people. Family Reunion day is a time to spend with our families, to reflect on the value of our family ties. It is a time to learn more of our family histories, the history of our community and our nation."

Harris pointed out that "the family is the cornerstone of our social structure. It is the footing on which a youngster's ideas of honesty, integrity and concern for others is based."

Some of the activities suggested for families on August 10 include: Family dinners, picnics or outings with children, grandchildren, aunts, uncles and cousins; getting the family up-to-date on addresses, births, anniversaries, deaths and other family events; patriotic activities such as familiarizing the youngest family members with our historic documents and events in national and local history; the development of family research projects so that youngsters know more of their grandparents and great-grandparents; everybody in the family getting together for at least part of the day; family worship together in the manner of their choice; renewing contact with family members in other parts of the state or country by phone or mail.

Transcontinent Delivery To Be Provided By UPS

Transcontinental package delivery service by united parcel service (UPS) is beginning immediately, a company spokesman announced, recently.

"We are delighted to be able to provide customers with complete coast-to-coast ground parcel service for the first time in history," the company spokesman said.

The new authority permits united parcel service to provide package pickup and delivery in all 48 contiguous states, subject to certain preexisting and relatively minor restrictions.

The ICC order gives UPS authority to provide interstate service for the five full states in Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Utah. It also opens service between the Pacific coast states and the northeastern states from Virginia north through Maine.

The new 48-state service was originally scheduled to begin in mid-July, but was delayed by the appeal of a Utah carrier to the interstate commerce commission for a stay pending filing of a court appeal.

Last Monday the ICC rejected the requested delay, and recently issued a certificate to UPS authorizing the extended service.

Herbers Attend Church Meet In Vienna, Austria

Dr. and Mrs. Leo Herber have just returned from Vienna, Austria, where they attended the 52 session of the general conference of the seventh-day Adventist church. They were delegates representing Minnesota at the Stadthalle in this famous old city which was, for 450 years, the capital of the Habsburg Empire.

The Herbers report they found Vienna to be a "fascinating city, filled with history, museums and beautiful gardens". It was the home of men of medicine like Freud and Billroth, and for musicians like the Strausses, Mozart, Haydn and Schubert.

The Weltkongress was opened with a welcome address from the Adventist world leader R. H. Pierson and addresses were read from Dr. Rudolph Kirchschlager, president of the federal republic of Austria, and Kurt Waltheim, secretary teneral of the United Nations.

The, Seventh-day Adventist church works in 193 countries of the world and the meeting resembled a United Nations Assembly, Dr. Herber said. There were 1,729 delegates representing a constituency of over 2.5 million adult members. Of this membership 80 per cent live outside of the United States. Those world conferences are held every five years.

It was noted that the work of the church is carried on in 528 languages and dialects. It has the largest protestant school system in the world with over 4,300 schools, colleges and universities. It's medical work is carried on in 140 hospitals scattered over the globe and numerous mission clinics, launches, and airplanes extend the medical missionary work.

Of particular interest were the seven delegates that represented the U.S.S.R. This is the first time in 57 years that the church in Russia has been allowed to send delegates to a session of this type. Bulgaria's delegates were the first representatives ever to be allowed to come to a world church assembly such as this.

The Herbers also spent one week in Norway—visiting Oslo, Bergan, Flam, and Andalsnes. They state that the beauty of that country has not been exaggerated. Stockholm, reported to be the most expensive city in all Europe, also impressed the Herbers, with it's friendly and lovely people and places.

A visit to West Berlin was a high point in the tour. Berlin, sometimes spoken of as a "green island" in a "Red country", is indeed just that. Twenty per cent of the city is covered with parks and lakes and the city is completely surrounded by the Berlin wall. Dr. Herber stated that the wall was the most depressing sight of the entire trip. The greatest scenery was in Norway, the highest prices were in Stockholm and the most helpful people were in Vienna, the Herbers said, but the most welcome sight was the United States of America.

More Wheat And Corn For India And Bangladesh

Eight thousand metric tons of wheat pledged by CROP, the community hunger appeal of church world service, will be sent to India and Bangladesh in the last six months of 1975. This pledge was made by the CROP staff at the climax of their annual conference just ended in Dayton, Ohio. In addition, the staff has promised 757 metric tons of shelled corn for India, Indonesia and Niger yet this year.

These totals, the largest amount of commodities ever pledged by CWS-CROP, are part of a dramatic, worldwide effort to stem the tide of immediate starvation while building for a future free from hunger. CROP is appealing to people from all walks of life, all denominations and persuasions, to join with them in this effort.

These foodstuffs will be used in India and the other nations as wages on food-for-work projects—projects that represent the very "heart" of development for the future.

Food-for-work projects include the construction of earthen dams and irrigation systems which will provide water to grow bigger, better crops in the years ahead. Other food-for-work projects such as building roads allow villagers to transport their goods to market, gaining them a stronger foothold in the economy of their country. Food-for-work projects enable people to feed themselves by the sweat of their brow, the labor of their hands, while building the means of self-sufficiency.

Food to provide the wages is essential to these projects, and CSW-CROP with the support of participating denominations and people in communities across America, have accepted the challenge to furnish it.

The Rev. Ronald E. Stenning, national director of CROP, has just returned from Asia where he saw first-hand the utilization of CROP-CWS wheat in food-for-work projects. "The cooperation among agencies is fantastic . . . it was really heartening to see food from CWS-CROP, United Methodist committee on relief, Lutheran world relief and many other agencies being used on these projects. This outpouring of concern coming together at a food-for-work project is really what development is all about!"

In addition to the pledged wheat and shelled corn, CROP has already, in 1975, sent 1,000 metric tons of wheat and more than 275,000 lbs. of split beans to India, 500 metric tons of wheat to Bangladesh, 5,000 lbs. of non-fat dry milk and 50,000 lbs. of split beans to Niger, and more than 90,000 lbs. of split beans to Indonesia.

In Mr. Stenning's words, "After my trip, I realized that we'd just scratched the surface with the food we'd sent so far and that they could use every ton, every ounce we could get to them. That's why we've accepted the exciting challenge of procuring 8,000 metric tons of wheat and 756 metric tons of shelled corn. We hope that everyone across the United States will join with us in meeting this challenge. It's a goal we are committed to reach, the future of millions of people depends upon our reaching it, and I'm sure with the help of everyone we will meet this goal."

Caution About Attempt To Aid Drowning Person

Attempting to rescue a drowning person can be fatal, warns Minnesota's health commissioner Dr. Warren R. Lawson today. So far this year three of Minnesota's 57 drowning deaths had started as rescue attempts.

Rescuers often turn into drowners because they do not realize their swimming limit or because panicky drowning victims overcome them.

Dr. Lawson said the principal rule in rescue attempts is: "Don't jump into the water until all other livesaving measures have been attempted." He emphasized that "would-be rescuers should remember that lifesaving equipment surrounds most beaches if people would recognize it and use it promptly."

Floating objects that could be thrown to a drowning victim are: An empty, closed thermal jug; any large container with a tight fitting lid; a foam picnic basket or cooler (even its lid provides some support); air mattresses; live jackets; inner tubes; inflated toys; beach balls; and even wooden tables and benches.

After firmly planting your feet, it may also be possible to extend to the drowning victim a broom, an oar, a pole, a towel, an article of clothing or even a hand. Although it may seem that the person is too far from the shore to reach, Dr. Lawson explained that half of all drownings occur within 20 feet of the shore. That's less than the width of a normal two lane road.

If the victim is farther out from shore, a boat should be used in the rescue.

The last resort, Dr. Lawson said, should be to jump in. Even then the rescuer should pull some floating device, or even a shirt or towel, with him. Keeping his distance, the rescuer should only extend the towel or other device to the victim. In this way the victim can be towed back to shore while still preventing him from drowning the rescuer.

Only if the victim is unconscious, or if the rescuer has had lifesaving instructions, should a hand-held rescue be attempted.

Drowning deaths are the fourth largest cause of accidental death and last year one-third of all drowning deaths in Minnesota occurred in July. Therefore, as summer's hot and humid weather again drives people to the beaches, Dr. Lawson said to "remember that most drowning deaths are caused by panic—by both the victim and the rescuers."

Only Two of 10 Jobs Require College Degree

Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a recent study, pointed out that more than 75 per cent of our high school students are enrolled in courses emphasizing college preparation. Yet, only two of 10 jobs require a college degree.

The chamber has undertaken to foster career education to eliminate the barrier that too often exists between education and work. Broad public support is essential.

Quite interestingly, new emphasis in some communities on career-oriented courses has paid off in an unexpected dividend. Career education improves learning.

In recent testimony before a Congressional committee, the chamber related several instances where learning achievements were enhanced by the increased interest students showed in their studies when these were related to future careers and jobs.

In Lincoln county, West Virginia, elementary pupils participating in a career education program scored 11 per cent higher in language arts and 24 per cent higher in mathematics, than those students not participating in such a program.

In Dade county, Florida, fourth, fifth and sixth grade students participated in a one-year career education "activities center laboratory" advanced their mathematics ability more than 50 per cent beyond normal progression.

In a career education class, students take blood pressure, plan trips using railroad and airline timetables, and study price changes of stocks and bonds. In this way, arithmetic no longer is an exercise for its own sake, but rather a means to learn how adults do these jobs. Hence, improved computation and reading skills become a natural by-product as students read for knowledge. Further, the boredom that afflicts students is avoided, and discipline improves.

With the nation already spending $61.5 billion on elementary and secondary public education, greater emphasis on career education is largely a matter of redirecting some of our efforts and money. It's an objective deserving of the support of educators, business, labor, minorities and the community as a whole.

U Students Of Agriculture To Register In Aug.

Orientation and registration program for new students this fall quarter in the University of Minnesota's college of agriculture will be August 11-22, says college dean John A. Goodding.

Students who do not come to the August program may attend a similar program in September, but Goodding emphasizes that the selection of courses in September will be quite limited. "It is almost impossible to arrange a convenient schedule" in September and the problems associated with September registration can be avoided by selecting an August date.

New college of agriculture students have been notified by mail of their registration dates.

The official deadline for applying for admission to the college of agriculture is July 15, but applications will be processed almost until the time school starts. "The important thing is that a person make the decision and submit the application as soon as possible," Goodding says.

Fill out the standard Minnesota college form, available from high schools throughout the state. This form should be returned to the high school with a check for $10. The high school will send the application to the office of admissions and records, St. Paul, with a copy of the applicant's high school record.

Advanced standing students may get university advanced standing applications from community colleges or write: Office of Admissions and Records, University of Minnesota, St. Paul 55108, for a copy. A check for $10 and an official copy of the applicant's previous college work should be attached to the application.

Hagen Land Goes For $2,476,432 At GF Auction

In an auction believed to be the largest public sale of farm land ever held in the area, Vern Hagen, East Grand Forks farmer, sold 3,316 acres of land for a total of $2,476,432. The average price per acre was about $746.

All 20 parcels of land were purchased by Minnesota area farmers and landowners. Of the 150 persons registering for bid cards, however, addresses were listed from Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Largest buyer at the sale was Tom Ryan, East Grand Forks potato broker, who purchased a total of 400 acres sold in three separate parcels. Sales ranged from a per acre low of $410 on 56 acres located near the Red River in Higdem township of Polk county to a high of $1,010 on 240 acres located in Northland township in the same county.

The 20 parcels of land sold, located in Marshall and Polk county, ranged from 56 to 360 acres.

Terms on the land purchase required 10 per cent down with the balance payable in 90 days. Hagen retained ownership on all crops and produce currently on the land, with possession transfers effective after the harvest.

Special Patrol Squad Moving About The State

Minnesota motorists were reminded today by state patrol chief James C. Crawford that the saturation patrol program designed to reduce the number of fatal crashes in selected high accident areas within the state will continue through the remaineder of the summer.

Concentrating on accident causing violations such as high speed and driving while under the influence of alcohol (DWI), the special six-man squad has been moving throughout the state as a unit, supplementing existing state patrol units normally on duty during peak travel periods.

According to Crawford, each of the eleven state patrol districts in Minnesota has been analyzed, and certain stretches of highway that historically show a high accident rate have been pinpointed within each district. The saturation patrol concentrates its efforts within a different area each week with each of the men on the squad assigned a ten-mile length of highway that has been determined as particularly deadly.

"Similar programs in past years have shown marked reductions in fatal accidents," Crawford stated, "and our initial reports from the field indicate that this year's program should have much the same effect. Increased arrests for speed and DWI have been reported in the areas that this special squad has worked."

Each of the cars on the saturation patrol is equipped with the latest radar equipment, capable of taking speed readings from oncoming traffic while the patrol car is moving on the highway as well as from a stationary position.

Alcohol pre-arrest breath testing equipment which allows a trooper to pretest a driver suspected of operating his vehicle while under the influence of alcohol is also carried in each of the cars. The pre-test is given at the scene, and if it reads positive, the driver is then taken to a regular testing station where a precise determination of his blood-alcohol content can be made.

"Highway traffic deaths for the first six months of this year were down substantially from the same period last year," Crawford concluded, "and we hope that the people of Minnesota, by obeying speed and traffic laws, will carry this reduction through to the end of the year."

More than $16.4 billion will be paid to veterans and dependents during fiscal year 1976 by the Veterans Administration.

Arctic Annual Meet Expresses Optimistic Note

burdensome short-term bank debt and related interest costs;

"To continue to reduce overhead and minimize operating losses; and

"To provide a basis, by the accomplishment of the above objectives, for profitable operations in fiscal 1976.

"We have satisfactorily accomplished these objectives during the year and are now prepared to focus on attaining profitable operations for 1976."

Penn noted that reduction of inventories last year, coupled with reduced production for 1975, allowed the company to reduce short term bank debt by $17 million. "By accomplishing this," Penn said, "we have assured, we believe, the continued support of our banks and long-term lender in providing for our near term financing needs."

The company president also noted that Suzuki Motor company of Japan has been contracted to manufacture the newly-designed "Spirit" engine. Selection was made from several potential manufacturing candidates, he said. The engine was designed by the Arctic engineering department to meet high performance goals and operate under the 78 dBA sound level requirement the industry has imposed upon itself for the 1976 model season.

Report was made that Silverline boat company showed a profit of $141,000 for the year, compared with a loss of $213,000 for the prior year. The Moorhead manufacturing facility will introduce a 25-foot model for the coming year, it was stated since the over 19-foot segment of the boat market continued strong.

Board chairman Swenson stated that the company has actively sought work to be done for other manufacturers and will continue to look for outside contracts.

"We have studied the many economic forecasts available and have carefully considered them in our planning for fiscal 1976," said a prepared joint statement from Swenson and Penn in the company's annual report.

"While we are concerned about the level of unemployment, particularly in the important snowbelt state of Michigan, and the decrease in discretionary income caused by inflation, we believe there are other positive factors working to our benefit. First, the Canadian market is important to our industry and their economy appears strong. Second, more than 50 per cent of all snowmobilers live on farms or in communities of less that 25,000 people. We believe these areas are less affected by the economic down-turn and continue to enjoy the benefits of a strong farm economy."

Summer Theatre Last Production Opens Tonight

Twinkle, Paul Mehrkens as Chief Brown Bear, Joel Peterson as Fleet Foot, Donna Keck as Ernestine Von Liebedich, Billy Saetre as Yellow Feather, Judy Stoffel as Gwendolyn, Anne Saetre as Henrietta, Chris Cuppett as Cora, Jane Olson as Mabel, Jan Swanson as Maud, and Leigh Ann Harris as Blanche. Perry Bucholz plays Hank with Joe Dee playing Buster. Janice Thingelstad of Roseau is pianist for the production and Jim Peterson and Brian Scholin control the technical aspects.

Settings for the production have been rented from Tobins Lake studios in South Lyon, Mich., with costuming by Stage Right Costumes in Grand Meadow. Rights for doing the musical were granted by Samuel French, Inc., of New York.

This will be the first major musical attempted by the Northland troupe since its opening production of "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" in the summer of 1973. Other shows done in the past three seasons have included "Barefoot in the Park", "The Glass Menagerie", "Little Women", "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds", "Spoon River Anthology" and "The Ugly Duckling".

All eight productions have been directed by Michael Tillmann, who summarizes by saying, "We have always been fortunate here at the Northland summer theatre to have outstanding performers available and willing to put on fine productions. "Little Mary Sunshine" promises to be our best venture. The cast has done outstanding rehearsal work and I am sorry to see the summer season come to an end. But we have already made tentative plans for next summer, with possible plays including 'Alice in Wonderland' (Children's Theatre Production), 'The Thurber Carnival', and a serious show—either 'The Diary of Anne Frank' or 'Long Day's Journey Into Night' likely. We have tried to give the area a good variety of theatre productions and we hope to continue to do so. I hope that 'Little Mary Sunshine' is supported well and that audiences enjoy it as much as we are enjoying doing it."

Recent Decision Affects Married Female Veterans

A recent decision by Richard L. Roudebush, VA administrator, affects married female veterans who received VA education benefits between June 1, 1966, and October 24, 1972.

A female veteran who was married while attending school under the GI bill during this period may now file a claim for retroactive payments for her husband as an added dependent. Prior to Oct. 24, 1972, a female veteran was not able to claim her husband as a dependent for GI bill purposes unless he was seriously disabled.

Alan L. Rice, director, VA center, Fargo, N.D., stated that applications for retroactive payment, including proof of marriage and proof that the spouse was alive during the training period, must be filed on or before July 1, 1976.

Persons affected by this change should contact the VA center, Fargo, N.D. 58102, or they should contact Charles Durham, area VA vet rep., Bemidji state college, Bemidji, Minn. 56601.

Sen. Humphrey Comments On Soviet Relations

"I was privileged recently to head the first official U.S. Senate delegation to travel to the Soviet Union for a conference with their parliamentarians and other top officials," Sen. Hubert Humphrey stated in his weekly report to Minnesotans.

"Our delegation of 14 Senators spent over 20 hours with key members of their government discussing the upcoming European security conference, SALT II, arms control, trade, international environmental controls, export-import bank credits, agriculture and Jewish emigration.

"Our visit indicates the Soviets' recognition of the important role the U.S. Senate plays in shaping American foreign policy and that the implementation of executive level agreements depends on congressional support.

"When I met with Soviet Alexei Kosygin in December of 1972, I emphasized that many of the arms and trade agreements being negotiated would need congressional authorization and that the Soviet government should be aware of that fact.

"The following summer, Secretary Brezhnev broke with past practice during his visit to the United States by going beyond his summit activities with the President to meet with congressional leaders.

"This new Soviet awareness culminated in a visit to the U.S. last year by 22 Soviet parliamentarians for a meeting with leading Senators. Following their visit, the Soviets extended a formal invitation to the U.S. Senate to name a similar delegation to journey to the Soviet Union for a continuation of the discussions.

"Believing that in-depth, candid exchanges would benefit each of our countries' national security and other vital interests, we undertook the most serious preparations for this meeting.

"We were justified in our efforts, as Secretary Brezhnev's top advisor on U.S. matters informed me that they considered our visit equal in significance to that of some previous Presidential summits.

"Of course, these exchanges were not negotiations. We were not concluding formal pacts. That responsibility is vested in the executive branch of our government. But the exchanges were productive and frank and will be helpful to our country in its future dealings with the Soviet Union.

"I have been in the Soviet Union five times and have spent as much time with top Soviet officials as any living American. This time I felt we really were talking with each other rather than at each other.

"We had a prolonged discussion of the U.S. trade act and the Jackson amendment on Jewish emigration—which the Soviets consider an interferance in their internal affairs.

"On this issue we sought only to explain fully the position of the Congress and how deeply it feels about the question of human rights, as well as to expose individual emigration problems which had been brought to our attention.

"Soviet officials were assured that if there were movement on their part to improve the Jewish emigration situation, efforts would be made to achieve feasible modifications in the U.S. trade act. But action definitely would be required on the part of the Soviets.

"There is great concern among Soviet officials over the static state of detente. They are having economic difficulties. For the first time there has been a three-month delay in the issuing of their five-year economic plan. They want to concentrate their resources on developing their domestic economy and Siberia.

"But before they can proceed, the Soviets need to know what our actions will be on trade and credit and the extent to which current weather conditions will set back their crop predictions.

"And, most important, they realize they will be unable to achieve their domestic economic goals, unless our two nations are able to negotiate an actual halt in the arms race and a reduction of forces.

"I came away from two and a half hours of meetings with Secretary Brezhnev convinced that he personally is committed to continuing negotiations with the United States and that his political life depends on the success of detente.

"So there is necessity now for agreement with the United States—and we ought to take advantage of this opportunity to make peaceful gains. While the cold war is not over, in the sense of all problems being solved, the political climate is more conducive to a rational approach.

"Our delegation returned to the United States feeling that we had nudged ahead a little the conditions that might result in better understanding and a reduction of tensions between our country and the Soviet Union," concludes Humphrey.

Safety Group Offers Tire Selection Tips

More tires are being replaced these days because more cars are seeing longer service.

The tire industry safety council offers these guidelines for replacement tire selection and use?

Check the owner's manual or the tire instructions affixed to the car first before you consider any tire replacement.

If you pick a larger size than the original equipment tires, stick to the safe options recommended by the car manufacturer. He has taken into consideration load ratings, tire dimensions, fender clearances and rim size in making these recommendations.

Never select a replacement tire smaller than the original equipment tires on the car. A smaller size may affect the suspension system of the car, ground clearance and instrument accuracy, and is not designed to carry the vehicle load.

Stick to the same size and construction on all four wheels, if possible, for better car handling.

If you select a single replacement tire, make sure it is the same construction as the other tire on the same axle. If it isn't, erratic steering and irregular wear patterns can result.

If you buy two radial tires to pair with other constructions the radial pair must always be placed on the rear axle.

Unless mixed with radial pairs, new tires should go on the rear wheels for better car handling and safety.

If you need new tires before you think you should, have an expert check the old ones to see why. If they did wear out prematurely without material defect, improper inflation or other bad vehicle maintenance habits may be the priblem.

More information on selection and other tire care, safety and mileage tips is available in the tire industry safety council's consumer tire guide. For a free copy write to "Tire Safety", Box 726, New York, N.Y. 10010. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope.

Radiation Studied As Cure For Cancer

by Markie Harwood
U of M News Service

A center to study radiation as a means of curing cancer has been established in the University of Minnesota department of therapeutic radiology with a three-year $1.1 million renewable grant from the national cancer institute.

According to Dr. Seymour Levitt, professor and head of the department, much of the research conducted at the radiation oncology research and clinical center will combine radiation treatment with surgical, drug and immunological treatments in an effort to find the best combinations of treatments for various types of cancers.

One type of cancer—cancer of the pancreas—will be studied by Dr. David G. Smith, assistant professor of therapeutic radiology. Smith will compare the effectiveness of drug therapy alone with the effectiveness of a combination of drug therapy and radiation to see which is the better treatment method.

Although cancer of the pancreas is "one of the less frequent cancers," research on its treatment is important because of the poor results obtained with the surgical treatment currently used, Smith said. Studies done at the Mayo clinic have suggested that a combination of radiation and drugs may be a reasonable approach to the treatment of this cancer, which predominantly affects people over 50, he said.

Smith is also working with other researchers on the treatment of head and neck cancer by a combination of drug therapy, surgery and radiation in the hope of imrpoving the low cure rate.

Head and neck cancer, which affects the tongue, tonsils, larynx and upper throat, occurs relatively frequently and most often affects people over 40, Smith said. Its incidence often seems to be related to smoking and heavy alcohol intake, he added.

At this point, Smith said, combining radiation and surgery in the treatment of head and neck cancer seems to be more effective than using radiation or surgery along. Use of drugs for treatment of this type of cancer is fairly new, however, and has not yet gained a significant position, he said.

Subjects for the center's clinical research will be drawn from the 1,200 patients examined by the department of therapeutic radiology each year, 1,000 of whom generally require radiotherapy, Levitt said.

Animal and cell research on situations with applications to the treatment of humans will also be carried out, he said.

In addition, research at the center will be directed toward improving the accuracy and safety of radiation techniques, "the most utilized and useful method of treatment of cancers today," Levitt said.

Radiation makes use of ionizing particles or rays that destroy cells or fluid from the cells to prevent cell reproduction. It is useful in cancer treatment because tumor cells are more sensitive to the radiation than are normal cells. Thus, radiation can be limited to the area of treatment, Levitt said.

Research will continue on the linear accelerator, a machine that uses the radiation from supervoltage electrons and photon beams. First used and largely developed at the university, the machine is more effective than other kinds of radiation treatment because it gets more radiation to the tumor, Levitt said.

The center is also participating in a national study of pion radiation, which is believed to be more effective in cancer treatment than are regular Xrays and cobalt treatments, Levitt said. Pion radiation is produced only in a large accelerator in Los Alamos, N.M., but staff and patients from the University of Minnesota will make use of it, he said.

Another function of the center will be to train residents and medical students. The university has one of the few postgraduate programs in therapeutic radiology, attracting scholars from all over the country, Levitt said.

The center plans to survey Minnesota communities to determine the feasibility of establishing six radiation centers in the outlying areas of the state. Doctors a therapists from the university's center will serve as consultants to the community centers, Levitt said.

A major strength of the university's center is that a number of disciplines will be working together in one area, Levitt said. Participating in research projects with the department of therapeutic radiology will be the departments of neurosurgery, medical oncology, pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, surgery, otolaryngology and medicine.

The center will be one of ten in the country for radiation cancer research. Besides its complete program proposal, the department's demonstrated excellence in research was an important factor in its receipt of the grant for the center, Levitt said.

The department is a nationally recognized leader in the treatment of children's tumors and leukemia. For example, Levitt said, the department developed one of the first radiation treatments to prevent the spread of leukemia to the central nervous system.

In the past, 50 per cent of children with leukemia who were treated by drug theapy developed headaches or other central nervous system disorders after remission of the leukemia was though to have taken place, Levitt said. Examination revealed that the leukemia had actually spread to the central nervous system.

The department began to treat children who had had drug therapy for leukemia before symptoms of central nervous system disorders appeared. It was found that the symptoms rarely developed then, Levitt said.

Improvements Underway

Settlement reached in the construction strike and passage of a supplementary bond issue have combined to turn loose work on construction programs which will greatly improve Thief River Falls facilities. Of specific concern are Oakland Park nursing home, the law enforcement center and the medical office building addition to Northwestern hospital services.

Oakland Park ground breaking on Friday was slightly belated but none the less significant. Ground had been substantially more broken by heavy equipment than the shovels used by ceremonial participants. It was good to see the satisfaction and enthusiasm of principals involved in that ceremony as they viewed the start of a long-awaited project.

Ground was broken for the law enforcement center some time ago but the construction strike halted that activity. It now looks like work will be resumed in earnest within a very short time.

The medical office building, delayed when bids received above estimate required a supplementary bond issue, is really not too far behind the other projects because of the strike. Starting date will be later than projected earlier and the timetable for completion will be set back accordingly. The finished product and service it provides should be well worth the wait.

We have noted several other additions, remodelings and improvements being made around the community—several being of considerable size and cost. Add to the afore-mentioned activity the airport road improvement and highway 59 resurfacing and you have quite an improvement package for the community. And all this in spite of those who tell us the economy is on a downturn and the country is in trouble. Maybe a little more optimism is what is really needed.

Economic Illiterates

"If the American system ever dies, it will be because in our ignorance we didn't know it was dying—or that we were killing it. In our Congress today, policies vitally affecting the survival of our form of economic system are being made by economic illiterates."

Strong words? Perhaps. They were spoken by Sylvia Porter, nationally syndicated financial columnist, upon being inducted into the Sigma Delta Chi Deadline club's golden anniversary hall of fame.

"We are a nation of economic illiterates," Porter was quoted as saying, "and our illiteracy is a threat to the survival of the system we profess to love so much.

"In the executive suites of great financial and business concerns and in union headquarters across the nation, decisions directly involving our paychecks, profits, prosperity are being made by men who have only the vaguest idea of what creates paychecks, profits and furthers prosperity.

"In our high schools and colleges, the future leaders of America are being taught either nothing about our economic system or are being given courses woefully superficial, appallingly inadequate."

An article by Paul Petrotta in SDX magazine "The Quill", notes that Porter said the vast majority of American adults are not only ill-informed on economic issues but, worse, because they are not informed, they don't care about being better informed.

"This indictment goes to the very top of our nation at a time when understanding of our own economy and what's right with it, what's wrong with it, what might be done to make it stronger, more virile, more productive of basic values as well as of just things which make everyday life more comfortable is absolutely imperative," Porter said.

We respect the columnist's assessment of a situation on which she is undoubtedly eminently qualified to speak. Even in recognition of a lack of knowledge by those empowered to make economic decisions would be a good start in correcting the problem. We don't expect it from Congress or the federal administration, however, and therein lies reason for much of the nation's financial worries.

Danger in the lack of economic knowledge is shown in the following editorial which appeared in a recent issue of the Wadena Pioneer Journal:

Two independent surveys—one by Opinion Research corp. (ORC) and the other by the Gallup Poll—provide conclusive evidence that our schools and colleges in America are turning out students whose ignorance in the field of economics is complete.

Unfortunately, the record also indicates that many adults tend to learn no more about what makes the wheels of industry turn than they did in high school—which was nothing.

When we consider that the riches of America come specifically from our fantastic system of free enterprise, which has been unique in all history, and which has enabled America to surpass all other nations in material wealth, it is difficult to understand why many Americans should know so little about it.

An ORC survey conducted in February and March of this year revealed that people guessed the average manufacturer's profit after taxes is 33 per cent. They were wrong by six times more than the actual. Their estimate of oil companies' after tax profit was 61 per cent. That guess was eight times more than the actual.

When it came to automobile companies, people estimated the after tax profit to be 39 per cent, more than 20 times greater than the actual. Famed pollster George Gallup found that "lack of knowledge and understanding of the free enterprise system is widespread. And it is really frightening."

Such ignorance is as unnecessary as it is unforgiveable. Every public school should have at least one fundamental course in the American free enterprise system. And no student should be allowed to graduate or be given a diploma without first having passed such a course of study. Maybe they would then have a little more knowledge of the whys and hows that brought about the great accomplishments of our country.

Law Is Important

Following editorial is from the Wall Street Journal:

During an announcement that the state was about to install special radar units on its highway patrol cars, Arizona Gov. Raul Castro added that they would be used against speeders and the 55 mph speed limit would be enforced.

The main issue is not the energy crisis, cost of inconvenience, said Mr. Castro, one of two Chincano governors in the U.S. Rather, he said, it is compliance with a duly constituted law. "If there are doubts, excuses, or conflicts about the wisdom of 55 mph, they should be argued in the legislature, they shouldn't be debated or defied on our highways."

Actually, that speed limit probably makes more sense on crowded Eastern turnpikes than on sparsely traveled western roads. And we're confident Governor Castro doesn't believe that the motorist who occasionally exceeds the speed limit is necessarily a menance to society, any more than the jay walker or litter-bug a menace. The best of laws tend to have a built-in flexibility.

Still, it's nice to hear such talk from Mr. Castro, a moderate liberal. How different from the view, so fashionable only recently, that the law is little more than whatever one considered it to be. Although that claim was usually couched in language suggesting appeals to individual conscience and an undefined, higher morality, too many abusers tended to act out of self-interest rather than high principle.

Thankfully, we don't hear too much of that kind of talk today, especially since some Watergate conspirators claimed similar dispensation from the law on somewhat the same grounds. Instead, there seems to be a growing appreciation that society is imperiled whenever people routinely take upon themselves to decide what laws to obey, or when they arrogate to themselves the method for changing the law.

One of the big improvements in recent years is that more and more people who once scored the law as repressive are discovering the importance of obeying duly constituted laws. This discovery hasn't been accompanied by any sudden insights or bursts of illumination, but then traditional wisdom rarely ever is.

Borrowed Nonsense

One of the local parts men got a call from a farmer who was having trouble with his tractor. A little excited he proceeded to explain the problem—he wanted to finish his seeding, it looked like rain. "I need a 'whatchamacallit' for the 'doohinkey'." Trying to keep calm, the parts man asked him, "Which side of the tractor is the problem on?" Without a moment's hesitation the man answered, "The west side."

Did you hear about the young fellow riding a train through an eastern state who asked a middle-aged man next to him what time it was?

"No, siree," came the unexpected reply. "If I told you the time, we might strike up a conversation and find we have mutual interests. I might get to thinking you're a nice young man and ask you home with me for dinner. You'd meet my daughter and maybe the two of you would fall in love and want to get married. And let me tell you this, no daughter of mine is goin' to marry some bum who can't even afford a watch!"

Spanish music with guitars, a dungeon in Seville and a band of dancers are all a part of the latest musical comedy to open at the Chanhassen Dinner Theatre. Guy Paul, left, plays the dual role of famous author Miguel De Cervantes and his most famous literary creation, Don Quixote. Don Amendolia, right, plays Quixote's faithful servant, Sancho Panza.

With a cast of 16 and a full orchestra, "Man of La Mancha" will be performed nightly except Mondays. There is a Wednesday matinee also and an early show as well as a late performance Saturdays. Tickets are on sale for the next six weeks of performances at Dayton's or the box office.

Senate Report

— by —

Senator Richard Fitzsimons

Minnesota District One

Natural gas rates have been very much on the minds of many people in Senate District 1 during the past year.

Last winter I asked the Minnesota public service commission if they had any power to regulate the rates that Minnesota communities using Canadian supplies could charge. I was informed that they had no control over the Canadian government. They did indicate to me that they were reviewing the increases being proposed by the national energy board of Canada.

As a result of this review, the Minnesota public service commission did appear before the energy board on June 24 in Ottawa, Canada, and filed a protest in regard to the proposed August and November increases of 40 to 60 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Most of the communities in Northwest Minnesota that use natural gas are totally dependent on Canadian supplies. If these new increases are put into effect, as well as even further increases in the future, real hardship for many residents will develop.

The public service commission pointed out that where a community can blend the lower priced domestic gas with the high priced Canadian gas, a competitive advantage exists for industry and business in that community. Likewise, people on fixed incomes with homes equipped for heating only with natural gas face extreme difficulty in paying for this necessity.

I was pleased with the strong stand taken by the Minnesota public service commission. Their testimony, together with that of numerous mayors and city councils, will surely make the Canadian government realize the peril they place so many of our people in with these rapidly escalating prices for natural gas.

Fargo, N.D. Wind Power Strongest In The Country

In a recent speech to a convention in Des Moines, Ia., Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the president's council on environmental quality, predicted that in the 21st century windmills will be used to produce electricity for home heating, cooling and lighting.

Peterson jocularly added: "The switch to wind power will, of course, favor some locations over others: Chicago will be the Saudi Arabia of the 21st century."

Peterson was not entirely correct, however. The U.S. city that would benefit most by a shift to wind power is Fargo, North Dakota, according to the current issue of "National Wildlife" magazine.

Despite its reputation as the "Windy City," Chicago finished a poor tenth among 32 metropolitan areas checked for their wind power potential by the national wildlife federation publication. Based upon hourly observations by the national weather service over a 10-year period, the conservation magazine found that Fargo, Wichita, Boston, New York, Ft. Worth, Des Moines, Honolulu, Milwaukee and Cleveland are all breezier.

Fargo recorded an average wind velocity of 14.4 miles an hour during the period studied while Chicago had an average of only 11.2 miles an hour, tying with Minneapolis and only slightly ahead of Indianapolis.

Among the cities checked, Los Angeles and Anchorage, Alaska, each with an average velocity of only 6.8 miles an hour, proved to be the least windy and therefore the least desirable as sites for power-producing windmills.

The potential for electric power from windmills is promising, the "National Wildlife" article says, despite the fact that it is "largely ignored in the U.S. by federal energy budget planners."

So far the federal government's only sizeable effort has been the award of $1 million in contracts for the preliminary design of large wind energy systems. With these funds the national aeronautics and space administration (NASA) is building a windmill with 62-foot blades to be mounted atop a 100-foot tower near Sandusky, Ohio. When its blades reach their designed speed, the contraption is expected to produce 100 killowatts for the Sandusky light and power company.

Meanwhile, at least five major U.S. universities are moving ahead on wind research and Honolulu has become the first U.S. city to invest municipal funds in a wind power project. The Hawaiian city plans to build a $50,000 windmill that will produce each year as much power as $7,000 worth of oil or coal—thus paying for itself, hopefully, in seven years.

The "National Wildlife" article, one in a series of energy reports to the national wildlife federation's 3.5 million members, divides wind power projects into three categories:

Small windmills for remote areas. About 175,000 of these are still standing out of the 6.5 million that were built on U.S. farms between 1880 and 1930. Though they were designed primarily to pump water from underground, some rural dwellers now see them as a supplementary souce of electricity. Power can be stored (for calm days) but storage equipment is expensive.

Medium-sized generators for small communities. Producing up to 100 kilowatts, as in NASA's Sandusky experiment, these machines are not designed with storage systems. Instead, excess power produced on windy days is sold by the community to the local utility company.

Huge generators operated by utility companies. A giant pinwheel built atop 2,000-foot Grandpa's Knob, in Vermont, generated up to 1,250 kilowatts before conking out in the 1940's. This prompted the design of a skyscraping 6,500 kilowatt generator by a government engineer, but it was never built. Now a Massachusetts professor predicts that by the year 2000 we will have 2,000 huge windmills stretching from Texas to the Canadian border and producing 1.5 trillion kilowatt hours annually.

If the professor's prediction comes true, one of those giant windmills will undoubedly be built near Fargo.

Based on hourly observations by the national weather service over a ten-year period, the average mile-per-hour wind speeds in the most breezy U.S. metropolitan areas are as follows:

Fargo, N.D., 14.4; Wichita, Kans., 13.7; Boston, Mass., 13.3; New York, N.Y., 12.9; Ft. Worth, Tex., 12.5; Des Moines, Ia., 12.1; Honolulu, Hawaii, 12.1; Milwaukee, Wis., 12.1; Cleveland, Ohio, 11.6; Chicago, Ill., 11.2; Minneapolis, Minn., 11.2; Indianapolis, Ind., 10.8; Providence, R.I.- 10.7; Seattle-Tacoma, Wash., 10.7; San Francisco, Calif., 10.6; and Baltimore, Md., 10.4;

Also, Detroit, Mich., 10.3; Denver, Colo., 10.0; Kansas City, Mo., 9.8; Atlanta, Ga., 9.7; Washington, D.C., 9.7; Philadelphia, Pa., 9.6; Portland, Maine, 9.6; New Orleans, La., 9.0; Miami, Fla., 8.8; Little Rock, Ark., 8.7; Salt Lake City, Utah, 8.7; Albuquerque, N.M., 8.6; Tucson, Ariz., 8.1; Birmingham, Ala., 7.9; Anchorage, Alaska, 6.8; and Los Angeles, Calif., 6.8.

Final Summer Art Series At U Begins August 4

Seventh and final series of this year's University of Minnesota summer arts workshops is scheduled to begin at Quadna Mountain Lodge in Hill City, Minn., on August 4.

Courses in technical theater, jewelry making, studio arts and folk sculpture will meet August 4 to 8, as part of the University's seventh annual summer arts study center.

All of the summer workshops are open to anyone, without prerequisite, and most are available for university credit.

The theater workshop will be taught by Larry Foreman of the theater arts department of the University of Minnesota, Duluth. The course will concentrate on stage makeup, settings and properties and will include time and money-saving approaches to providing settings and props for modern and period plays as well as various materials used in the composition of stage settings and properties. Students will also learn the basics of stage makeup for a variety of characterizations. Total tuition and lab fees for the two-credit course are $75.

The jewelry-making workshop will be taught by Joseph Ordos of the university's department of design. The course will focus on the basic techniques in the fabrication of sterling silver jewelry and will include methods of soldering, hinging, riveting, forging, repolsse and chasing. Projects will be assigned and dealt with on an individual basis. Total tuition and lab fees for the three-credit course are $80.

The studio arts course will be taught by Herman Somberg of the university's studio arts department. The course, with media and concepts as its theme, will center on an overview of studio arts from the artist's viewpoint and will include the media and environment of the practicing artist. The workshop will include lectures, demonstrations and discussions to help students gain a thorough knowledge of the creative process. Fee for the three-credit course is $65.

The folk sculpture workshop will be taught by Richard Abell of the university's department of design. The course will explore such personal creations as wood assemblage sculptures, marionettes and crochet puppets, masks and papier mache and clay reliefs. Students will observe a variety of construction techniques as well as design and build their own creations. Total tuition and lab fees for the three credit course are $85.

For further information and to register for any of the workshop, contact the Summer Arts Study Center, University of Minnesota, 1128 LaSalle ave., Minneapolis, Minn. 55403, or call (612) 373-1925.

Swanson Takes California Post

Lee Swanson, Lincoln high school head basketball coach for the past four years before stepping down from that post at the end of the 1974-75 season, has been named head basketball coach at Paso Robles high school in Paso Robles, California.

Swanson will also serve as an assistant varsity football coach at the central California coast city. Swanson served as an assistant football coach at Lincoln for three years before taking over the basketball program.

Paso Robles, a community similar in size to Thief River Falls, is not entirely new to Swanson who served as an assistant basketball coach at the school during the 1969-70 season when he was a teacher at nearby Cal Poly University.

The Swanson family—Lee, his wife Pat and sons Kevin and Jay, will leave Thief River Falls August 8. School is scheduled to start at Paso Robles August 27.

"We're real pleased with the job and the move," announced Swanson. "We're going to miss Thief River Falls, but it's (Paso Robles) is a super basketball job with good facilities and tremendous community backing."

Four of the five starters on the 1974-75 Bearcat varsity will be on hand for Swanson when he takes over the coaching reigns this winter, including 6-7 star center Tim Harris, reportedly one of the best ball players in the area.

Paso Robles, the largest school in the California Class A division, was a conference runner-up finisher a year ago. In football, the Bearcats were state champions with a perfect 13-0 record.

Swanson said he was surprised when he was selected for the Paso Robles position, citing heavy competition for the job with some 53 applicants reportedly vying for the spot. Kermit Young, a one-time professional basketball player with the Minnesota Pipers in the ABA, and now head basketball coach at Santa Maria, California, high school, telephoned Swanson about the Paso Robles opening. Swanson coached the Paso Robles junior varsity when Young was the Bearcat head coach.

Swanson applied for the position, was contacted by Paso Robles superintendent Dr. James, traveled to California by plane for an interview and was notified last week that the job was his. Pat was also given a job as an elementary school teacher in Paso Robles. Lee will be a high school counselor.

Swanson took over the Thief River Falls basketball program in the 1971-72 season. His four Prowler teams posted a combined won-lost record of 70-25 for a sparkling .736 winning percentage. His teams won District 31 titles in 1974 and 1975 and his 1974 team won the Region Eight crown. His last Prowler squad posted a 20-5 record, bowing to Mahnomen 39-37 in the Region Eight championship game.

Glen Peters, Prowler assistant coach under Swanson all four years, will take over as Prowler head coach in the 1975-76 season.

Pigskin Preview Plans Announced

Second annual Thief River Falls Sports Booster's Prowler Pigskin Preview will be held Sat., Aug. 23, on the Prowler athletic field.

Final plans for the event were announced last week. The Pigskin Preview, a huge success a year ago, will feature five events this year.

The activity gets underway with a 1 p.m. scrimmage involving the Thief River Falls junior varsity and varsity squads from Goodridge, Newfolden and Plummer. Varsity teams from Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Grand Forks Central and Warren will entertain the crowd beginning at 4 p.m. A picnic-style supper featuring a charcoal broiled pig on the spit with all the trimmings will be served at 6 p.m. At 7, the Prowler coaching staff and the Thief River Falls officials association will present a demonstration. A Jim and Joel rock-hop will cap off the day-long activity for the younger generation from 9 p.m. until midnight on the Prowler field.

A $2 donation for the supper and a $1 admission to the rock-hop are involved in the event.

Raiders Win Lake Agassiz Slow Pitch Tournament

Arctic Raiders of Thief River Falls produced the big plays when they were needed Sunday to win the third annual Lake Agassiz slow pitch softball tournament played in Thief River Falls.

Perfect weather and an abundance of close, well-played ball games made the 16-team tournament a rousing success, especially for the Raiders who took home top honors.

Those before-mentioned big plays produced Raider wins over Schmidt Beer of Crookston 8-7 in eight innings, Red River Implement of Breckenridge 12-9 and Arctic Power of Thief River Falls 4-1. The Raiders did away with Golf Terrace Sales of Crookston 9-5 in the championship game.

The Crookston ball club advanced into the championship finale by beating Northland Electronics of Thief River Falls 12-3, Hartz of Thief River Falls 11-1 and Hartz of Fosston 12-10 in eight innings.

Schmidt Beer of Crookston took home the consolation championship trophy with a high scoring 24-17 decision over the Red Lake Falls Jocks in the consolation round title game.

Schmidt Beer lost to the Raiders 8-7, but bounced back to beat Furuseth-Nelson Inc. of Thief River Falls 12-6, Robert's Restaurant of Crookston 13-4 and the Red Lake Falls Jocks 24-17. The Jocks bowed to Hartz of Thief River Falls 6-4, but came back to beat Northland Electronics of Thief River Falls 14-3 and Solheim Furniture of Thief River Falls 20-10 before losing to Schmidt Beer.

The biggest big play turned in by the Raiders yesterday was a sensational first game catch by leftfielder Kurt Gigstad. Without Gigstad's game-saving catch in the bottom of the eighth inning the Raiders only hope for a trophy would have been of the consolation variety.

The Raiders led Schmidt Beer of Crookston 8-7 with two out and two runners on base in the bottom of the eighth inning. A sure Crookston win appeared to be in the making when the next batter drilled a line drive that was headed over the leftfield fence. Gigstad, however, made the day's most remarkable defensive play by reaching well over the fence and hauling in the would-be game-winning home run for the game's final out.

The Raiders also received a big play in their second round win over Red River Implement of Breckenridge—this time of the offensive variety. The Raiders trailed 9-7 going into the top of the seventh inning when Jim Rogalla connected for a three-run home run that produced a 12-9 Arctic Cat win.

Raider first baseman Bill (Bobo) Dicken capped the Raider big-play production with a pair of unassisted double plays in a 4-1 semifinal game win over Arctic Power.

There were no sensation game-winning or saving big plays in the 9-5 win over Golf Terrace Sales of Crookston, only back to back solo home runs by Denny Dinius and Dicken in the fifth inning and a three for four batting effort by Rogalla. The Raiders out-hit the Crookston squad 18-9, with Len Devos and Bob Normandin hitting home runs for the losers. Crookston jumped out to a 2-0 first inning lead, but surrendered the advantage to a three-run Raider third inning.

Solheim, Pizza Hut Clash In Key Slow Pitch Contest

A busy week of slow pitch softball action found few if any changes taking place in the league standings as the 1975 regular season nears its end.

Friday's Major Division results held one surprise as Northland Electronics knocked off the already-crowned division winning Arctic Raiders 5-3. Elsewhere, Hamms-Pizza Hut beat Arctic Power 13-8, Hartz dumped Modern Woodman 18-8 and Solheim Furniture edged Hydra-Mac 14-13.

In Friday's Commercial Division play, Furuseth-Nelson Inc. stopped Popplers 10-8. Warehouse Foods whipped Professional Building 18-8, the Jaycees outlasted Times-KTRF 14-12 and Grain Belt tripped Kat Haus 6-5.

A pair of Wednesday night Commercial Division games found Grain Belt beating Times-KTRF 13-2 while Popplers defeated Kat Haus 15-2.

Crookston edged East Grand Forks 2-0 Friday in the championship game of the 1975 area Sub District Four American Legion baseball tournament played at Warren.

However, both Crookston and East Grand Forks will advance into this week's Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament based on Thursday night semifinal wins when Crookston blanked Warren 3-0 and East Grand Forks clobbered Oslo 10-3.

The Ninth District tournament, matching championship and runner-up teams from four northwestern Minnesota sub districts, is scheduled to be played Thursday through Sunday at New York Mills.

Crookston's entire Sub District Four tournament success included wins over Hallock 16-3, Thief River Falls 6-4, Warren 3-0 and East Grand Forks 2-0. East Grand Forks advanced into the championship game with wins over Argyle 8-6 and Oslo 10-3.

The count climbed to 6-0 before Oslo scored in the bottom of the sixth on a lead-off home run by losing pitcher Bill Solem.

Randy Derrick matched Solem's homerun feat in the top of the seventh, however, as East Grand Forks scored four more times to back the five-hit pitching of Scott Rousseau.

Crookston 3, Warren 0

Crookston edged Warren 3-0 in a semifinal game highlighted by strong pitching.

Both teams collected but three base hits, but Crookston bunched two of its hits in the second inning to go along with a walk, an error and a fielder's choice play. A one-out single by Paul Bakken scored Crookston's only needed run.

Wildlife Group Supports Senate Rail-Trail Plan

Recognizing the recreational potential of abandoned railroad rights-of-way, the national wildlife federation has voiced support for a Senate bill that would provide money for the conversion of old rail lines into bicycling and hiking trails.

"Railroad rights-of-way offer a fine potential as bicycle trails as well as for access to hunting and fishing locations, camping sites and for hiking purposes," said Louis S. Clapper, NWF conservation director.

The conversion of abandoned railroad rights of way act, would help identify abandoned railroad rights of way suitable for recreational use and channel $75 million into existing programs over a three-year period to assist in land acquisition.

In a recent report on the possible use of abandoned rail rights of way, the citizens advisory committee on environmental quality noted that more than 50,000 miles of railroad lines have been abandoned, and thus far, only 350 to 500 miles have been converted to recreational use.

An estimated 850 farmers sustained crop and hayland losses on some 170,090 acres of wheat, flax, oats, barley and corn with an estimated 65 per cent loss for each type of crop and an estimated 80 per cent to 100 per cent loss of hay.

An estimated 30 farm homes along with 100 other farm buildings have sustained damage as well as 30 to 40 pieces of farm machinery.

An estimated 75 miles of County, State Aid and Township roads received severe to moderate damage by washouts and erosion with an estimated eight bridges and two large culverts being damaged with a total of some $90,000.

In addition an estimated 158½ miles of public drainage ditches have been extensively damaged by erosion and siltation in an estimated total amount of $132,300.

The estimated damages are $20,422,527 per attached documentation.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Board of County Commissioners for and on behalf of the citizens of Pennington County, request the Honorable Governor, Wendell R. Anderson to petition the President of the United States to declare the County of Pennington, Minnesota to be a major disaster area through the appropriate channels.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and declared unanimously carried.

A group of landowners from along the Red Lake River appeared, about 45 in number, and requested the County Board to be cautious in proceeding with drainage projects along the river because of the problems the over abundance of water causes to the landowners living along the river.

After considerable discussion Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the Red Lake River as it drains from the Red Lakes and proceeds through Pennington County is totally within the boundaries of the Red Lake Watershed District, and

WHEREAS, it appears that there are problems relating to the Red Lake River that should be aired at a joint meeting of the Pennington County Board and the Red Lake Watershed District Board, as the entity charged with the management of the Red Lake River.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Red Lake Watershed Board be petitioned to meet with the Pennington County Board at a time agreeable to both Boards at which the following questions asked of the County Board by those present at this gathering be discussed:

(1) Should the Corps of Engineers be petitioned to continue with the original plan for dredging the Red Lake river?

(2) Should the Corps of Engineers be petitioned to make a study of the Red Lakes in regard to their present use in the scheme of impoundment of water, to protect the downstream landowners at high water periods as opposed to the apparent containment of water to the point that there is no reserve for excess water when it occurs?

(3) Is it possible to provide for more adequate and timely reports of water levels at check stations so that immediate action could be taken rather than a three day delay because of the necessary time to have a post card delivered by mail?

(4) Is it feasible to construct a ditch and-or a ditch and dike on the Eastern boundary of Pennington County along the West boundary of the Red Lake Indian Reservation?

(5) Is it possible to enter into agreements with the Red Lake Tribal Council for a ditch and-or a ditch and dike to the mutual benefit of parties on both sides of the boundaries?

(6) Is it feasible to construct a ditch and dike on the East boundary of Pennington County and provide for an impoundment area so that water could be drained into the Red Lake River under controlled conditions?

(7) Is is possible to mutually agree to the point that a grant could be procured to provide adequate controls of the water levels to the mutual benefit of all parties?

The foregoing resolution was seconded by Commissioner Naplin and declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Christianson seconded by Hanson that the Road & Bridge Committee inspect roads, bridges and culverts at 10:00 A.M., July 21, 1975. Motion carried.

In response to request from the Northwest Regional Development Commission, Commissioner Art Christianson was appointed to a regional task force to study the mental health needs of the region over a 2 year period.

Moved by Naplin seconded by Stenberg that the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. be permitted to bury cable along C. R. 57 and 64 as described in Job orders 32172 and 32196. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Christianson seconded by Stenberg that meeting recess to reconvene at 9:30 A.M., July 15, 1975. Motion carried.

July 15, 1975

The Board reconvened at 9:30 A.M. July 15, 1975 to complete the meeting of July 14, 1975.

D. H. Steward, consulting Engineer reported on the progress in the Solid Waste problem. The Soil Conservation Services were in a position to give assistance on limited basis in a search for a sanitary landfill. A more definitive report would be forthcoming very soon.

Moved by Christianson seconded by Stenberg that the sum of $8,200 be appropriated to the Pennington County Fair Association according to prior request and pledged in the budget to assist in promotion of the County Fair. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Christianson that purchase of a riding mower from Coast to Coast Stores be approved after reception of quotes and the sum of $1,585 be an appropriation to the Pennington County Historical Society. Motion unanimously carried.

A proposed Job classification and Personnel program as presented by representatives of the Association of Minnesota Counties some time ago was studied and because of the press of time laid over for adoption at another time. As a part of this study and in line with commitments limited adjustments were made in wages according to schedule on file in the Auditor's Office with the entire matter to be reviewed at the earliest opportunity with the avowed intent of adopting a Personnel Policy, upon motion by Stenberg seconded by Christianson and declared unanimously carried.

Card of Thanks

Words are very insufficient to express my gratefulness to all the wonderful people I have met and made friends with in my short stay in Thief River. Kay Lee Kelley, my wonderful wife, loved this town and was grateful to be a part of this community. God, in His wisdom, has seen fit to take Kay from all of us at this present time. His reasons unknown to us all will be understood in the future. I pray that all my friends in Thief River Falls will remember Kay and I as friends.

God be with you all and thank you very much.

Uptown Art Fair In Minneapolis Has 470 Artists

This year's 12th annual uptown art fair will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 8, 9 and 10, in the Hennepin avenue and Lake street business district of Minneapolis. It will include a record high of over 470 exhibitors, and will be the largest outdoor art show ever held in the Upper Midwest, according to Gene Nieland, founder of the show and administrative director.

Sponsored annually by the Uptown Commercial club, the businessmen in the Hennepin Lake shopping district, the uptown art fair is the "original grandaddy" of all the sidewalk art shows now being held in this area. First uptown art fair was held in 1964, and included the work of 146 mostly local artists.

Since that time this unique annual art event has grown in both stature and participation, until this year when the huge three-day show will include the work of over 470 artists. There will be exhibitors from many different states, from as far away as Arizona, California, Missouri and Kansas, as well as from Michigan, Illinois, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Iowa and the Dakotas and over 3000 artists from all over Minnesota.

More than 30,000 pieces of artwork will fill the sidewalk and mall exhibit areas located throughout the uptown business district. Art being offered for sale will include oils, acrylics, tempras and water color paintings, charcoal and pen and ink drawings, prints, sculpture, ceramics and pottery, weaving, wood carvings, handmade jewelry, stained and blown glass and many other art and handicraft objects. Each artist who is participating in the fair will show and sell his or her own work. Items on display will be priced from under a dollar to hundreds of dollars. There will be items in every price range and to meet a wide variety of tastes.

The fair will continue from noon until nightfall each day. Public is invited, and there is no admission charge. A crowd of over 80,000 is expected to attend during the three days of this event.

Ask Farmers To Search For Oat Cyst Nematodes

Cooperation of Minnesota farmers is requested by state and federal agricultural authorities to combat an increasing threat to farm food production and consumer grocery bills by microscopic insects known as nematodes or eelworms.

Small grain farmers are being asked to help in the search for outbreaks of oat cyst nematode, a new and highly destructive variety of the nematode family that also threatens Minnesota potatoes, soybeans and carrots.

Robert Flaskerd, director of the plant industr division of the Minnesota department of agriculture, state coordinator for the national survey, said the oat cyst nematode attacks the roots of oats, wheat, barley and rye crops, sharply cutting yields.

While the new insect threat was discovered only last year in distant Oregon, Joseph T. Koski, regional director of the U.S. department of agriculture plant protection and quarantine program, warned that the oat cyst nematode could have been present for years earlier and have been spread to other states via movement of infested plants, seed or soil before the current national and state quarantines were imposed.

Flaskerd said the presence of the oat cyst nematode in Minnesota could be very serious, as this is the nation's leading state in oats production and one of the important suppliers of all small grains.

He added that recent heavy rains and flooding have made the task of detecting any oat cyst nematode more difficult for both farmers and state inspectors. The symptoms of menatode damage, flooding, or cexessively alkaline soil are similar—stunting of plant growth, discoloration of leaf tips and yellowing of the plant stalk. Below ground, roots are often thickened and overly branched.

Farmers are asked to look for yellow stunted plants with red or purple tipped leaves, and to pull up and examine the roots for unusual thickness, branching and tiny cyst like lumps. Any such symptoms should be reported immediately to the nearest county or state agricultural inspector or directly to the division of plant industry in St. Paul (telephone 612-296-3347).

Minnesota also is maintaining previously established surveys for nematodes in soybeans, potatoes and commercial carrots.

Private Pension Industry Grows In Past Century

Private pension industry in the United States, which today has over $200 billion in assets, began 100 years ago, according to the U.S. labor department.

In 1875, a subsidiary of the American Express company, the United States and Canada Express company, instituted the nation's first private pension plan. The company funded the program and allowed all of its employees to become members, regardless of age.

Compared with today's plans, however, this first program was quite limited.

To be considered for a pension, an employee had to be at least 60 years old, have 20 years continuous service with the company, and have a permanent disability preventing him from carrying out his duties. After meeting these requirements the employee had to be approved by the executive committee of the board of directors, upon the recommendation of the general manager. If accepted, the employee would receive one-half of his average annual salary over the last 10 years before his retirement, with a maximum payment of $500 per year.

Thirty years after its creation, the American Express company's plan had had only 310 employees qualifying for pensions, with 160 of these still receiving payments in mid-1904. Of the 160, approximately 25 per cent had been messengers, and 75 per cent were former officials, clerks, drivers and stablemen. Their average monthly compensation was $62.50 and the average length of time between retirement and death was five and one-half years.

Since this first plan, the private pension industry has grown extensively, benefitting both labor and management.

The implementation of the 1974 employee retirement income security act—ERISA (pension reform) on Jan. 1, 1975, has marked a centsry of advancement in this field.

Funds totalling $8,011 will be used for laboratory instruction in the areas of astronomy, chemistry and music. Equipment to be acquired will include two telescopes and a variety of astronomy laboratory equipment by the physics department, an infrared spectrophotometer for the organic chemistry laboratory, and string and woodwind instruments and two studio pianos by the music department.

A second title VI grant totalling $4,610 has been awarded to the audio-visual department at Concordia. Television, photographic, projection and audiovisual equipment will be acquired to meet the increased student and faculty demands for creative work with these media.

BRAKE FAILURE Wednesday afternoon at the Eighth street launching area resulted in a close call for the driver of this station wagon and a thorough soaking for the car. The car went into the river backwards with the trailer attached and settled in about 10 feet of water. The driver swam to safety and a wrecker was summoned to retrieve the car. Dave Colby, employee of Bugge's Oil service, donned swim trunks and mask to dive and attach a cable to the car. Dave Bjorkman operated the Bugge's wrecker to pull the car and trailer out of the river. Driver of the car—who chose to remain unidentified—is shown at the right of the photo. A broken brake line is reported to have caused the brake failure.

Future Farmers Holding Session On Leadership

Ninety state and district officers and 30 chapter officers of Future Farmers of America (FFA) will hold a five-day leadership training session at the state vocational education camp at Britt July 28-August 1.

In addition to studying and putting into practice the latest techniques on youth leadership and citizenship development, the officers will plan the following state-wide programs: building our American communities (BOAC), career opportunities in agribusiness-natural resources, and organizing local alumni chapters of former FFA members.

The five-day session will also serve as an official kick-off to expand present state-wide FFA program in developing habitat for wildlife, stocking game birds, and expanding "Operation Precipitation" reporting. The legislative commission on Minnesota resources appropriated funds to Minnesota high school FFA chapters to purchase game birds and granted matching funds toward purchase of rain-snow gauges. The LCMR funds are obtained from a two-cent tax on cigarettes.

During the past two decades, members of FFA raised and released over 300,000 upland game birds and 90,000 waterfowl. Minnesota FFA chapters planted over five million tree seedlings during the past seven years.

Tuesday has been designated "Living to Serve" day with emphasis on the community service, charitable, citizenship and international programs of FFA. Over 160 chapters of FFA contributed over $100,000 to Camp Courage in 1974 for camperships, equipment for the speech therapy building (originally funded by FFA chapters) travel camping program and the Handi-Ham radio training program. Minnesota FFA chapters in southeastern part of the state provided funds for a swimming pool at Camp Winnebago near Caledonia. Over 100 chapters contributed to the Christmas drive for the mentally retarded, Camp Winnebago, and the march of dimes campaign.

Safety and health will receive careful study on August 30 with emphasis on refurbishing slow-moving vehicle emblems (SMV), distribution-installation of caution—high wire decals, snowmobile safety classes, defensive driving courses, encouraging home fire drills and surveying rural communities on fire prevention facilities and equipment, and plans for October 21 state-wide D-Day (Don't smoke).

The theme for August 31 is "Environmental Improvement". Minnesota automobile association's "Be a Gas Watcher" project will be expanded. The national-state FFA foundation proficiency awards in fish and wildlife management, forestry and ornamental horticulture will be evaluated and expanded.

The officers will formulate plans to install a plaque at the site of the first FFA chapter meeting held in Minnesota at Esko on Oct. 29, 1929.

Sally Nepper Receives Staff Scholarship

Sally Nepper, a 1975 graduate of Lincoln high school, has been awarded a $300 staff supported educational scholarship at Moorhead state college for this fall.

She is among the recipients of a new scholarship program established this spring by the staff of MSC. This is the first such program ever offered by college staff to the college officials' knowledge.

Sally is the daughter of Mrs. James Nepper of Thief River Falls. She was active in concert choir, pep club and high school musicals.

Samuelson And Beito To Attend Language Village

Sarah Samuelson and Kathy Beito, both of Thief River Falls will be attending the Concordia college Spanish language village this summer near Detroit Lakes.

Sponsored by Concordia college, Moorhead, the language villages introduce young people to a foreign culture in an informal lake setting specially designed to recreate the atmosphere of the adopted country. Through the use of passports, foreign currency and names, each villager experiences a lifestyle similar to that of Spain.

Bergland Plan Would Help In OSHA Program

U.S. Representative Bob Bergland today co-sponsored legislation providing a three-year program to aid employers in complying with the occupational safety and health act (OSHA).

The bill, according to Bergland, would allow employers to request OSHA consultants to visit businesses and offer assistance and suggestions prior to OSHA's inspections of the enterprise.

In co-sponsoring the legislation Bergland said: "The theory behind OSHA is a good one— 'to assure safe and healthful working conditions' for employees. The enforcement of the law by the department of labor," he continued, "has left much to be desired." Bergland said that small businesses "who lack the resources to hire private consultants to explain the complex requirements" were faced "with fines for not complying with regulations they had no way of knowing existed."

Bergland emphasized that under his bill consulting personnel would be separate from the inspectors. "No citation or civil penalty could be assessed by a consultant although employers would be expected to correct immediately 'imminent dangers' that could cause death or serious physical harm to employees." The consultants would be required to give employers a written report of their findings to avoid misunderstandings.

"I know of no employer who does not want to provide safe, healthful working conditions," Bergland said, "and it is my hope that this legislation will give them the tools necessary to accomplish their goal."

Expect Choice Cattle Prices To Be Pushed Down

With current uncertainties in the grain market, placements of cattle on feed and marketings of cattle during this quarter will probably be below U.S. department of agriculture estimates, says Paul R. Hasbargen, University of Minnesota extension economist.

The July 1 USDA cattle on feed report indicates continued strong fed cattle markets for months. Placements during the second quarter were less than the trade expected and the USDA report projects marketings during the third quarter to be down only five per cent from a year ago.

There are 20 per cent fewer cattle in weight groups that would normally be marketed during the July-September quarter and even with a fairly large increase in short-fed cattle, Hasbargen says he thinks fed cattle marketings will be down about 10 per cent from year-earlier levels. He says he expects choice steer prices to trend downward during all of the next 12 months, but the drop in August and September should not be more than a few dollars.

Choice steer prices should still be in the low to mid-forties in December.

With normal weather patterns and subsequent large placements of yearlings this fall, Hasbargen, expects choice cattle prices to be pushed down to the mid to high thirties by next June. He suggests that producers use planning prices below $40 a head on choice cattle that will be marketed after February 1976, but current wide margins between choice and lower grades will likely continue through 1975. These margins will narrow next winter when marketings of cows and grass cattle taper off, Hasbargen adds.

Cow slaughter is currently running almost twice as high as a year ago. Continued high cow slaughter will keep hamburger at bargain prices for consumers for the rest of the year, but, according to the economist, choice beef cuts will be expected to stay near current levels until 1976.

Summer Travel Boom Continues In Minnesota

Minnesotans are taking vacations by car in record numbers this summer, according to the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA). Travel requests during June were more than 25 per cent above the same month last year.

"Travel requests during June were heavier than any time in our history," said Gene Haustein, auto travel manager. "Minnesotans are continuing to travel despite the rising price of gasoline."

Despite the large increase in vacation travel, Haustein said, state gasoline consumption figures show only a two per cent increase this summer, considerably below the national average increase of 5.5 per cent. "Motorists are definitely conserving gas."

Travel requests processed in June generally indicate what the travel is likely to be in July, said Haustein. "From business conducted so far in July," he said, "it looks as though travel will remain heavy through the first week in August."

Since October 1 of last year, Minnesota AAA has processed more than 40,000 travel requests for a 25 per cent increase over the same nine-month period last year. Contrary to expectations, auto trips do not appear to be any shorter than in past years. Out of the top 20 destinations this summer, 15 of them involve distances greater than 2,000 miles round trip.

The most popular destination this summer is Los Angeles followed closely by the Black Hills, Minnesota and other upper midwest areas. The least popular destinations this summer have been Mexico and Central America.

Weed Controls At Experiment Station Viewed

Researchers from the University of Minnesota experiment station, Crookston, St. Paul and University of North Dakota, together with their fellow researchers in industry inspected results of yet unreleased chemical weed-control materials at the Crookston station recently.

Chemists and agricultural representative from several states and Canada toured the experiment station plots at Crookston in their efforts to decipher the elements of modern weed control.

Researchers from North Dakota included: John Nalewaja, Larry Mitch and Alan Dexter. Major research persons from Minnesota were Dick Behrens, Jerry Miller and Ollie Strand.

Approximately 68 different combinations of chemicals and treatments were represented in the plots planted and supervised by Dr. Larry Smith, agronomist at the Northwest experiment station.

Cooperative research of this type in past years has resulted in complete testing of chemicals in major soil types and is a guard against premature release of some chemicals.

Study of application techniques, very important with today's farming methods, can also be evaluated.

Forage Day Held At Crookston

Over 200 farmers attended the second annual forage day recently at the Northwest experiment station, Crookston. Forages, often overlooked as a valuable crop, furnish over 75 per cent of the annual feed ration for most livestock.

Farmers heard from university extension forage specialist Dr. Neal Martin, Dr. George Marx and Dr. Harvey Windels and shared information with others on the extension and experiment station staff.

James Jacobson, farm foreman at the station, demonstrated new equipment and forage handling systems as the final portion of the day's activities.

Increased Revenue Noted By Hospital

Increase in net revenue of 16 per cent to $3,560,140 and an excess of revenue over expenses of $60,220 was reported at the annual meeting of Northwestern Hospital association held Monday evening in the hospital's convalescent and nursing care chapel. The meeting was open to the public and a total of 23 people attended.

Reelected for three-year terms on the board of trustees were James Engelstad, Marvin Lundin and James Winjum. Under by-laws of the association, directors may serve no more than three consecutive three-year terms. The board of trustees will meet in the near future to reorganize for the coming fiscal year.

Board president Lundin presided at the annual meeting with reports given by Dr. Jerome Bray, chief of the medical staff; Mrs. Barbara LaSalle, president of the hospital auxiliary; Arnold Carriere, controller; and Norman Peterson, executive vice president. Wallace Tunberg, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the committee report. Proof of notice of the meeting was read by secretary Robert Bredeson and treasurer's certification of the annual audit was read by treasurer Terry Courneya.

Carriere's financial report showed acute hospital patient days were up during the past year to 23,872—an increase of 7.4 per cent from 22,233 the previous year. All other activity indicators—including surgical procedures, X-ray procedures, lab tests and other items—also showed increased numbers during the fiscal year ended April 30, 1975. Hospital occupancy ran as high as 90 per cent in some months, the controller added.

Carriere said a change in accounting procedures (with which the auditors concurred) reduced the excess revenues over expenses by $45,495 to a final reported figure of $14,725. This compared with a 1974 fiscal year loss of $22,634. The procedure change is to account for vacation pay as earned rather than as paid. This caused a doubling up affect in this fiscal year for vacation expense, he said. Besides being a proper accounting procedure, Carriere added, there is a cash flow benefit to be derived from third party reimbursers, and it was believed this would be the best year to make the change.

Approximately half of the net revenue increase to $3,560,140 from $3,065,003 was due to increased activity and the remainder due to higher rates which went into effect for the 1975 fiscal year. Operating expenses were $3,499,920 or an increase of $412,283 (13 per cent) over the prior year expense of $3,087,637.

A large deduction from revenue of $66,702 was reported as a result of reimbursement to the hospital by the department of public welfare for patients in the convalescent and nursing care unit being substantially lower than either costs or charges. This situation existed throughout the fiscal year although some relief was received by means of department of public welfare rate revisions effective Sept. 1, 1974, and Jan. 1, 1975.

Carriere said an improved cash position of the hospital resulted from a number of items, including better control of accounts receivable and better handling of accounts. Accounts receivable balances were decreased by 12½ per cent although net revenue increased by 16 per cent.

Despite the cash position, there was actually a decrease of $103,474 in working capital, resulting primarily from expenditure of $191,771 for property acquisition and architect's fees on the new medical office building.

Total assets of the hospital increased by $306,233 from $4,165,110 to $4,471,343. Of this total, $3,355,252 is in plant, equipment and real estate with the remainder being in cash, receivables and inventories.

Corresponding liabilities consisted of $536,403 in current obligations, $943,000 in long term obligations and $2,991,940 in the fund balance.

The controller also noted that approximately 69 per cent of the hospital's patients were covered by medicare, medicaid or Blue Cross programs which reimburse the hospital on the basis of cost formulas rather than charges, resulting in substantial reductions from revenue.

Dr. Bray reported for the medical staff that several SEASON'S BEST actor and actress for the Thief River Falls summer theatre are Kathy Wald and Rick Erickson, currently holding the lead roles in the theatre's production of "Little Mary Sunshine". The play will continue through Friday at 8 p.m. each evening. Awards were announced at an awards reception Tuesday evening.

Wold, Erickson Theatre's Best Actress, Actor

Tuesday evening the 1975 Northland summer theatre company held its annual reception to honor the outstanding performers of the summer. Three judges had viewed the company's three productions and had chosen a "Best Actor," "Best Actress," "Most Colorful Performance," and "Most Memorable Performance," while the company members themselves had elected a "Company Member Most Enjoyable to Work With."

Kathy Wald of Thief River Falls, currently a music major at Moorhead state college, was selected as the season's best actress for her portrayal of the leading role in "Little Mary Sunshine," while her loading man, Rick Erickson, recent Warren high school graduate from Viking, was selected best actor for his performance of Captain Big Jim Warington in the same show. Heidi Bornholdt, who won the "Best Actress" award last year for her portrayal of Beatrice Hunsdorfer in "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds", presented the two awards.

Selected to be honored for the most colorful performance of the season was Myrnell Brusegaard of Thief River Fal,s, for her performance at Nancy Twinkle in "Little Mary Sunshine". Chris Cuppett, Thief River Falls, was cited for giving the season's most memorable performance in her role as the singer in "Spoon River Anthology". Mrs. Charles Lund presented these awards, and also the congeniality award, both of which she won last year. The congeniality award was presented to both Chris Cuppett and Donna Keck, as they tied in the voting.

"Little Mary Sunshine" is playing each evening through Friday this week at 8 p.m. at the Northland community college theatre. Tickets are on sale at Larson Music company in downtown Thief River Falls and may be reserved by calling the college ticket office at 681-2181. Remaining tickets will be sold at the door each evening. This is the last production of the season.

According to director Michael Tillmann, "Little Mary Sunshine" is a delightful comedy for audiences of all ages. "Our opening night crows was very responsive, but unfortunately, not very large," he said. "We are hoping that area citizens will choose to support the production by attending later this week. We are having fun doing the musical . . . and we'd like to share the fun."

In addition, Tillmann indicated that he wished to thank all the company members, supporting businesses, advertisers and the college personnel "who have supported the summer theatre so generously over the past three summers. It will be difficult for me to leave Northland. People have been very good to me here. The past three summers have held extremely pleasant memories for me. Thanks to all who made this possible."

Lawn Sprinkling Halt Requested

Because of continued hot and dry weather, the city water system is taxed to a maximum capacity. Until there is a change in demand or weather, the water department requests the discontinuation of all sprinkling in the city, according to Harold Anderson, water plant superintendent.

If the voluntary curtailment is not effective, the water department will have to consider compulsory curtailment of sprinkling, Anderson said.

Social Services Employees Vote To Join Union

By a unanimous vote Monday, the 15 employees working under Pennington county social services director Gary Erickson decided to unionize. They are joining the American Federation of State and County Municipal Employees council 65 of Hibbing.

Erickson, who as director was restricted from attempting to influence his employees before the vote, said he wasn't aware of any specific reasons why the social services department personnel joined the union other than anticipated wage increases and additional benefits believed to accrue from union membership. Department employees contacted said they have not formed any negotiation objectives at this time and declined to make any further statements.

The next step in the unionization will be the process of certification by the state bureau of mediation. When this is completed, a date for the beginning of contract negotiations will be considered.

Harold Schmidt, AFSCME representative from Fergus Falls, is in charge of future negotiations for the employees (secretaries, social workers and welfare case aides).

The vote by the department personnel to join the union was said by one employee to have been under consideration by the group for some time. A petition for the vote, which required the signatures of 30 per cent of the employees, was submitted May 23.

St. Bernard's To Hold "Right To Read" Program

Sister Gabriel, principal of St. Bernard's school in Thief River Falls, has completed the "Right to Read" course program and is now a certified reading director. St. Bernard's, one of the schools chosen for the program, is now taking steps to implement the program for this fall.

The "Right to Read" program is designed to help an individual child to progress at his or her instructional level regardless of age or grade level. Children who need more time to master a skill are given time and those who are ready are given more advanced work according to their level of instruction. All students will be tested and placed in their instruction level groups.

An advisory council will be formed to evaluate the program and to help the teachers in implementing the program.

The program, which was promoted by Governor Anderson and the Minnesota state department of education, requires that all teachers attend 30 hours of in-service education throughout the year.

For further information on "Right to Read" contact Fred Landis, reading director for this area, or Sister Gabriel.

74th Annual County Fair Opens For Five-Day Run

CHILDREN'S BARNYARD will be located in this new log building at the Pennington county fair. The barnyard will be handled by 4-H club and Future Farmers of America members and will be open Thursday through Sunday with farm animals on display for youngsters of all ages.

Seventy-fourth annual Pennington county free gate fair gets underway today with entries being made in both 4-H and open class competition, according to Milan Borsheim, secretary of the sponsoring Pennington county fair association.

Many of the 4-H club and open class exhibits will be on display in the city arena where they can be viewed at the public's leisure regardless of the weather. A new feature of the fair this year will be the children's barnyard, a new 20x30 log building which will be operated by the county 4-H clubs and Thief River Falls FFA chapter. Young animals will be on display for viewing by youngsters, and the building will be open Thursday through Sunday.

Borsheim also said that bleachers had been moved to provide for better spectator viewing and that all grandstand shows have been slated for outdoors with the exception of Sunday night's professional wrestling show. The big name grapplers will grunt and groan in the arena beginning at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Saturday night's Grand Ol' Opry show with Tony Ingraham will be held outdoors weather permitting with the city auditorium as an alternate site in case of inclement weather.

Fair association president Fred Dallmann, treasurer Wilbur Hallstrom, secretary Borsheim and other directors have lined up a full entertainment schedule for area fair-goers. Opening event will be the Joie Chitwood auto thrill show tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m.

Smash 'em up artists will continue in action Thursday at 7:30 p.m. when area drivers will take to the track in the annual demolition derby. The scene changes from autos to animals Friday when the Gene Holter wild animal show will be held in front of the grandstand at 2 and 7:30 p.m. The show will feature a number of animal acts including local drivers competing in an ostrich race at each performance.

Drivers in the ostrich races Friday afternoon will be Lonnie Richards, Goodridge, Sandy Wilson, Larry Belmont, Milton Reierson, George Schwartz and Robert Poissant, Thief River Falls. Evening drivers will be Marvin Koop, Arnold Engelstad, James Muzzy and Oliver Molstad, Thief River Falls, Gordon Henrickson and Ernest Swanson, Goodridge.

Friday night's Grand Ol' Opry show with Toni Ingraham is slated for a 7:30 p.m. start. Sunday night's professional wrestling show will include such match-ups as Billy Robinson vs. Nick Bockwinkel, Baron Von Raschke vs. Ivan Putski, Buddy Wolff vs. Pierre LeDuc and Bull Bullinski vs. Kim Duk. The eight wrestlers combine well over a ton of strength and talent, ranging from Bullinski at 240 pounds to LeDuc at 294 and Putski at 290.

Sunday afternoon entertainment will be provided by horse enthusiasts from a wide area as the Thief River Falls saddle club sponsors its annual horse show. Reported cancellation of a scheduled show at Crookston is expected to increase the number of entries at the show here considerably.

Kiddies day will be observed on both Thursday and Friday when a $2 ticket will permit youngsters to ride as many rides as they like from 1 to 6 p.m. on the William D. Stanley Shows midway. Senior citizens day will be held Friday when persons 65 years of age and older will be given free admission to the grandstand and free popcorn, Borsheim said.

A number of new exhibitors will be included with many of the regular exhibitors at booths in the arena this year. Among these will be a booth arranged by the Pennington county Bicentennial commission and manned by members of the Jaycees and American Legion auxiliary. Orders will be taken for either 2x3 or 3x5 nylon Bicentennial flags which are reportedly in short supply and difficult to obtain. Persons who would like to have a Bicentennial flag for the coming year are advised to place their orders at the fair booth.

Copies of the Bicentennial events book for Pennington county will be available at the Bicentennial booth Saturday and Sunday for individuals holding sustaining membership cards in the Bicentennial commission. Membership cards may also be purchased at the booth for $1

Council Requests Funds

Thief River Falls city council held a brief noon meeting in the city auditorium council chambers Monday to pass a resolution authorizing city clerk-treasurer Gerald Wigness to file an application for Federal disaster assistance for the city.

The application will be made at the request of parks and recreation superintendant Michael Mongoven, who is seeking compensation for city damages caused in early July, when the rain swollen waters of the Red Lake river flooded L. B. Hartz park, located on the western shore of the river behind the National Guard Armory.

Mongoven said the funds would be used to compensate for playground equipment and picnic tables which were lost or ruined in the flooding, overtime payed to parks and recreation employees for the clearing of felled trees and other debris; and other damage to public and private property in the vicinity. The total amount of damage caused by the flooding has yet to be determined.

The parks and recreation superintendent said that even though the flooding did not occur between June 28 and July 3, when the heavy rains fell and when most of the flood damage in the northwestern Minnesota area took place, the city was eligible to apply for benefits.

Alderman Arnold Narverud moved on the resolution and Ole Engelstad seconded. In approving the resolution, the council authorized the clerk to provide the state, the federal disaster assistance administration and the department of housing and urban development all necessary assurances and agreements pertaining to the disaster assistance.

Concerning another matter raised by Mongoven, the council passed a resolution directing him to proceed with plans for mosquito spraying within the city limits. The spraying, which must be approved by the state, would likely be limited to areas by the river, parks and outlying rural areas.

PARKING

DROP BOXES have been installed at four locations in the downtown area to provide city residents a convenient method for paying parking fines. Beginning today (Wednesday) parking tickets placed on the windshields of cars will be small yellow envelopes. Violaters may enclose the amount of the fine in the envelopes and insert them in boxes in front of First Northwestern state bank, First Federal savings and loan association, Falls vision clinic and the post office. Residents may also use the utilities box at the front door of the city auditorium building to drop off envelopes. If current postage is attached, the envelopes can be deposited in the mail. Police chief Ken Froschheiser (pictured above with one of the new boxes) said that the four new boxes can only be used to pay parking tickets.

Coreene Kloubec Marries Dale Hanson At Trinity

Vases of white daisies and carnations graced the altar at Trinity Lutheran church for the wedding of Miss Coreene Catherine Kloubec and Dale Gilbert Hanson. Forming the chancel setting were spiral candelabra entwined with corresponding flowers and greens. At the kneeling rail was the prayer book the bride's mother had carried at her wedding and which had also graced the kneeling rail at the wedding of the bride's sister, Nicolette Kloubec Almquist. Marking the pews along the center aisle were white candles and peach colored bows.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kloubec of Moorhead and formerly of this city. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin Hanson of this city.

The double ring, candlelight ceremony took place on June 14 at 8 p.m., with Rev. Berton Hushagen and Rev. Keith Prekker officiating. Mrs. Max Jensen was the organist. She played Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," for the recessional. She also accompanied Mrs. John Schlenk as she sang, "I Love You Truly," which had been sung at the weddings of Mr. and Mrs. Kloubec and Mr. and Mrs. Hanson, "Whither Thou Goest" and "Wedding Prayer." At the close of the ceremony, Mrs. Schlenk sang Felice and Henry Mancini's "Sometimes," as the bride presented single yellow roses to her mother and the mother of the groom.

The bride, was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white silk organza over satapeau, floor-length gown featuring a princess skirt and a full chapel train. The fitted bodice of pearl embroidered Venice lace was fashioned with a high neckline, ruffled bibbed front and long, fitted lace sleeves, studded with pearls. A wide lace ruffle encircled the skirt and train. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a face-framer caplet, edged with matching Venise lace. She carried a cascade of yellow sweetheart roses, Tropicana roses, babies' breath, lime green carnations and Springaire. She also carried a handkerchief made for her wedding by her grandmother. Her only jewelry was her diamond earrings, her gift from the groom.

Julie Almquist of Fargo, N.D., and Peggy Burrell of Thief River Falls, served the bride as her personal attendants.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Gary Almquist of Thief River Falls. Other attendants were Miss Julie Sjoberg of Naples, Fla., cousin of the bride, Mrs. Julie Hanson of Thief River Falls, sister of the groom; and Mrs. Donald (Karen) Hanson of Jackson, Mich., sister-in-law of the groom. All were attired in floor-length gowns of peach colored organza with ruffled high necklines, ruffled sleeves and a self ruffle forming a bib effect on the bodice. A similar ruffle, beginning at the waistline, flowed down the side of their skirts and encircled the hemline, ending in a softly flowing train. Their headpieces were white floppy hats, accented in back with pale peach streamers and a flower. To complete their attire, they wore white gloves and sandals and carried white baskets of yellow and white daisies, babies' breath, peach-tipped carnations and trailing Springaire. Their gold bracelets were gifts from the bride.

Stacy Bergdahl, a cousin of the groom, was the flower girls. She wore a white, floor-length polyester gown with white lace edging the scooped neckline and sleeves. Several rows of matching lace trimmed the bottom of her skirt and a wide pale peach sash accented her waistline. She carried a white basket of yellow and white daisies, peach-tipped carnations, babies' breath and Springaire, corresponding with the flowers and flowing ribbons that were in her hair. Her necklace and bracelet were gifts from the bride.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Donald Hanson of Jackson, Mich. Groomsmen were Mike Hammerlinck, Mark DuChamp, both of Thief River Falls, and Mike Rasch of East Grand Forks, friends of the groom. Serving as ushers were Gary Almquist, Jon Pream, Bruce Halbasch, all of Thief River Falls, and Marck Schoolmeesters of Litchville. The groom wore a white tuxedo, white trousers, white ruffled shirt and a boutonniere of three yellow roses taken from his bride's bouquet. His attendants wore orange sherbert jackets, piped with matching braid, black trousers and bow ties; white ruffled shirts and lime green carnation boutonnieres.

Bradley Olson of Thief River Falls, a friend of the couple, carried the rings on a white heart-shaped pillow centered with a cluster of yellow daisies and green carnations. He wore white shorts and a white ruffled shirt, accented with a pale peach cummerbund, matching the sash on the flower girl's dress. His boutonniere was a yellow rose.

The mother of the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of pale turquoise print with a matching ruffled stole. The mother of the groom wore a floor-length gown of pale mist green with a lace bodice and matching lace jacket. Their corsages were yellow and white daisies and babies' breath.

Honored guests were Mrs. S. B. Nichols of Ypsilanti, N.D., grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Gilbert Burstad of Thief River Falls, grandmother of the groom. The groom's grandfather was unable to attend.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors with Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sjoberg and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hanson as hosts and hostesses. Centering the serving table was a five-tiered, peach and white marble wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with clusters of daisies, peach-tipped carnations and greens. Surrounding the base were babies' breath and Springaire; and topping the cake was a cluster of fresh flowers and a Chi Rhogram. On either side of the cake was a corresponding floral arrangement and tall candles.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Art Brown and Mrs. Delphus Bergdahl of Thief River Falls. Joni Nicholls and Christi Orr of Ypsilanti, N.D., poured. At the guest book was Mrs. David Odette of Thief River Falls. Serving punch were Mrs. Mike Lundgren and Miss Chris Amundgaard of this city. Mrs. Larry Lee of Minneapolis presided at the gift table. Waitresses were Linda Hanson of Detroit Lakes, Beverly Hanson of Warren and Gayle Anderson of Thief River Falls. The rice packets and scrolls were distributed by Jared and Arin Kolden of Red Lake Falls.

Carpenter And Mostue Vows Spoken At Oregon

Marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Emily Carpenter and Brian Mostue on June 14 at 4:30 p.m., at a garden ceremony at Medford, Ore., at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mostue of this city. They attended the ceremony.

Rev. Robert Larson, pastor of the Ascension Lutheran church at Medford, officiated at the ceremony; and Mrs. Stuart Allan of Eugene, Ore., sister of the bride, provided music by playing Bach selections.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of Swiss embroidered lawn with pleated trim at the hemline. She wore summer flowers in her hair, similar to those in her bouquet. The flowers were arranged by the groom's parents.

A picnic reception followed in the Carpenter home and garden with a chamber music trio playing in the garden.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Mostue of Cambridge, Mass., brother and sister-in-law of the groom; Miss Grace Mostue of San Diego, Calif., aunt of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar Scott Carpenter of Salem, the bride's brother and sister-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Van Horne, of Carmel, Calif., uncle and aunt of the bride; Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rubinstein of New York City, Beatrice Van Horne, cousins of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Allan, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

Following a trip on the Rogue River, the couple is at home in Portland. The bride is arts administrator for the Metropolitan arts commission of Portland and Miltnoman county. She earned her bachelor of arts degree in theatre at Newis and Clark college at Portland, and her master of arts degree in modern dance at the University of Utah.

Donna Mae Helland And Ted W. Julius Are Wed

Miss Donna Mae Frances Helland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Helland of this city, became the bride of Ted William Julius, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Julius of Phoenix, Ariz., on June 27, at 2 p.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city.

Rev. James Bernauer officiated at the double ring ceremony with approximately 175 relatives and friends in attendance. Chris Broker, a friend of the bride, served as organist and soloist. During the ceremony, she sang, "We've Only Just Begun," "Our Prayer," and "Wedding Song"

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white peau de chine, styled in princess lines. A full train added back interest. An overlay of lace on the bodice formed a sheer sweetheart yoke and bordered the rounded neckline. Matching lace marked the side seams, encircled the skirt at the hemline and bordered her long tapered sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held by a profile headpiece featuring the same lace that trimmed her gown. She carried a nosegay of red roses, white carnations and starflowers, with a detachable corsage.

Miss Mary Jo Helland attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Julie Ann Flynn, a friend of the couple. Serving as flower girl was Alicia Elaine Julius of Show Low, Ariz., a niece of the groom. All wore identical floor-length gowns of a pastel violet and blue floral print, styled in empire fashion with short puffed sleeves, gored skirt with a wide flounce around the bottom, and a square neckline edged with lace. The attendants carried nosegays of white and pastel blue and violet flowers matching the flowers in their gowns and corresponding with the flowers in their hair.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Thomas John Julius of Show Low, Ariz., Steven Michael Helland of Sunnyvale, Calif., brother of the bride, was groomsman and Hilary Nowacki of Grand Forks, N.D., and David Flattum of Thief River Falls, friends of the couple, were ushers. Carrying the rings was Chad Steven Helland of Sunnyvale, Calif., nephew of the bride. The groom wore a light blue tuxedo with matching trousers, a white ruffled shirt with navy trim and a rose boutoniere. The groomsmen were attired in similar tuxedos with navy blue trousers and white carnation boutonnieres, and the ushers wore white tuxedos with purple shirts.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of apricot lame' styled with a high neckline, long sleeves, a half belt in front and a flowing back.

Special guests at the wedding were Mrs. Frances Schmidt, grandmother of the bride, and Arlene Walker, the bride's personal attendant.

A reception at the church followed with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Markstrom as host and hostesses. Pam Helland, a sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest book as Diane Poole, a cousin of the bride, and Denae Stromlund, a friend of the couple, served the punch. The four-tiered wedding cake was cut and served by Marshal Helland, sister-in-law of the bride, and Darlene Eliason, a friend of the couple. Pouring was DaLonna Wiskow, a friend of the couple. The groom's cake was distributed by the flower girl. At the gift table were Linda Brown and Keith Erickson, friends of the couple.

The reception continued at the bride's parental home with a smorsgasbord. For the convenience of the guests, tables were set up in the yard. The gifts were opened in the yard with the bride and groom sitting on a blanket.

Several events added to the activities. The bride tossed her bouquet, which was caught by Chris Broeker. Mike Froehle caught the bride's garter shot into the crowd by the groom. The bride and groom were also kidnapped by friends of the groom and bride, respectively. Following approximately 15 minutes of driving around, they were released near the Legion club to walk back to the reception in their wedding attire. They left on their wedding trip, wearing their wedding attire.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Yellowstone National park, Idaho City and Disneyland in California, the bride wore a sleeveless, green pantsuit with a matching coat.

The couple is now at home in this city at 707 North Horace Avenue. The bride, a graduate of Lincoln high school, is employed at Oakland Park Nursing home as a nursing aid. The groom, a graduate of Washington high school in Arizona, is employed as a mechanic by Bob Ostermeier service station. Photo, Neal Fox Studio.

Thomas Gall of the city was practicing on the racetrack at 12:30 a.m. Wednesday, July 23, when he lost control of his car, dipped into a ditch at Barzen avenue, struck a small tree, spun around and came to a stop. Gall was treated for abrasions at Northwestern hospital and released. Damages to the car totaled $600.

At 4:50 p.m. Monday, July 21, Mrs. Jarvis Olson of the city and Robert Spaeth of Mahnomen were traveling south on Highway 59. Mrs. Olson stopped at the Country Kitchen driveway and waited for traffic to clear in order to make a left hand turn, when she was hit from behind by the Spaeth car. Damages were estimated at $1,000 to the Olson car and $900 to the Spaeth car.

Heavy damages were reported in a two car collision at Third street and Red Lake boulevard at 12:32 a.m. Friday. Mrs. Norman Hanson of the city was attempting to turn left from Red Lake boulevard into Third street. She had stopped for traffic and had almost completed the turn when she was met by a car driven by Gerald Trickle of the city, which was traveling west on Third street. After the collision, the Trickle car proceeded on to strike a light pole. The Trickle car was totaled (owned by John Trickle of Moorhead), $600 damage was estimated on the Hanson car and $150 damage was estimated on the light pole.

Sunday at 2:30 p.m., a semi driven by Christopher Roller of Cass Lake (owned by Ray Knutson of the city), was traveling west on Third street and making a right turn into Main avenue when the truck went over the curb and bumped the front wheel of a bicycle driven by Ann Dougherty of the city, age 12, who was waiting for the traffic light to change. Ann and her passenger, Michelle Sandsmark, age 2½, fell to the ground and a truck wheel ran over the Dougherty girl's foot. She was taken to Northwestern hospital for treatment and released. Damage estimated at $15 was reported on the bicycle.

Two incidents were reported Tuesday, July 22. Mrs. Alf Loken of the city told police that in the early morning 20 plants in her flower bed were torn up, causing $20 damage. It was the third such occurrence at her home this year.

Paul Rambeck of the city said a rock was thrown through the driver's window of his car at 8:30 a.m. Damage was estimated at $60.

Wednesday, July 23, Oliver Molstad reported his wallet taken while he was at the VFW club. It was later found minus his money at the Casino club.

In one of two incidents Thursday, Mrs. LeRoy Lien of the city said that some money had been taken from her home. Two female juveniles, ages 14 and 15, were apprehended for the crime.

While serving time in jail under the Huber law, Bruce Slager, 21, of the city allegedly took a jacket other than his own valued at $20 from the coat rack at the police station upon his release for work.

Friday, Eloise Gilbert of the city reported that a watch valued at $150 was taken from her home, probably during the last week of June.

School Board Holds Meeting Monday Evening

Thief River Falls board of education awarded bids on several items, accepted resignations, hired personnel and acted on other business at the regular meeting held Monday evening at the school district service center.

The board accepted the bid of Ace Hardware corporation in the amount of $9,098.04 for carpentry tool sets for the vocational school with the individual price for 42 sets being $216.62. The Ace bid was accepted over a lower bid of Adams Incorporated ($216.48 per set or $9,092.16) because it contained less substitution according to bid specifications.

Haldeman-Homme, Inc., bid of $7,990 was accepted for electronics equipment among three bidders. Sale of a piece of body shop equipment to Tom's Body shop of Greenbush at $850.69 was accepted.

The board also purchased real and personal property on the elevator site south of Lincoln high school for $6,800. The price excludes equipment, fixtures and internal items. Sale of the unfinished carpentry class house at the corner of Cardinal drive and Sherwood avenue was authorized, as was bidding on two-way radio equipment for school buses and metered gas pumps.

A resolution was approved directing that all cash be deposited in appropriate accounts daily by the business manager. The manager is to develop procedures, regulations and accountability for the handling of all cash in the district and will submit the proposal to the board for adoption. The district has experienced cash loss and building damage in recent months from break-in thefts.

Approval was given to extending television training to the AVTI communications course with hiring of either a half-time television instructor or a full-time instructor devoting half-time to audio visual repair and maintenance.

Rail Service Discussed By NWRDC Monday

Rail service in the seven county area of region I was discussed Monday night at the meeting of the Northwest Regional Development Commission's transportation committee in Warren. Larry Graham, W. R. Essex, Gordon Mott, and Gerald Dohm from Burlington Northern railroad were present to explain the operations of B.N. and to respond to questions and concerns of the committee.

Stan Wieber of the NWRDC staff explained the main objectives of the transportation commitee to the B.N. representatives. He said the committee's purpose is threefold: To evaluate existing transportation systems within Region I (railroads-highways-airports-bus-pipelines); to identify local problems in using these transportation systems; and to formulate policies to guide transportation development within the seven County region.

W. R. Essex, B.N. ass't superintendent of administration (Wisconsin division) said no further railroad abandonment was planned for the region by Burlington Northern. Larry Graham, B.N. industrial development representative, talked about track improvements. He mentioned that old rail tracks are being replaced with ribbon-type rails with welded joints which significantly improves the ride and speed capacity of trains. Gerald Dohm, B.N. area sales representative in Crookston described the new computerized system called "compass" which the railroad is using to quickly identify and locate any of its railroad cars within the nation.

Wayne Juhl, committee member from Roseau county, said rail service was slow and track conditions were substandard in his area. Gordon Mott, B.N. ass't superintendent of transportation (Wisconsin division) said the financial costs of improving tracks were so large that railroads are forced to upgrade tracks on a piece-meal fashion.

Lee Selnes, chairman of the committee, asked about the railroad's involvement in shipping potatoes. Dohm responded by saying Burlington Northern has special cars for handling potatoes, which represented a large investment for equipment used only seasonally.

Harold Thomforde, Mayor of Crookston, mentioned the city's effort to explore the possibility of acquiring some of the abandoned railroad right-of-way within Crookston. He said the negotiations were not successful but they were given fair treatment by the railroad. Essex said the railroad relies on the competitive real estate market in disposing of right-of-way.

Everyone agreed on the need for better communications between local units of government and the railroads. By having a better communications link, local problems would be responded to more quickly and cooperation would be encouraged in future transportation development activities of the seven county area within Region I.

FHA Emergency Loans Available To Co. Farmers

FmHA county supervisor, Loren D. Luschen, reported that farmers in Pennington county who sustained production or physical losses as a result of severe storms, rainfall and flooding which occurred during June 26 to July 3, 1975 may be eligible to receive emergency loans from the Farmers Home Administration.

These loan applications will be taken under the terms of public law 93-237 enacted January 2, 1974. Individual examination will be made of each application to determine the date of the disaster occurrence and the type of emergency loan benefits for which the applicant is eligible. This year, it will also be possible to obtain guaranteed emergency loans through conventional lenders. The lender submits the loan proposal to the FmHA and requests the FmHA to guarantee the loan. The rate of interest and the terms would be the same as if it was obtained directly from FmHA. Luschen stated that if the farmer's lender is interested in granting a guaranteed emergency loan, the lender pick up the necessary forms from the local FmHA office.

Farm emergency loans may include funds to repair or restore damaged or destroyed farm property, as well as reimburse applicants for expenses already incurred for such purposes. Loans based on qualifying production losses may include funds to reimburse applicants for production expenses which went into damaged or destroyed crop and livestock enterprises, but not to produce new crops. Payment terms depend on the purposes for which the loan is used and the applicant's payment ability. Emergency loan interest rates are five per cent. No loan may exceed the actual loss sustained.

Luschen stated that applications for losses involving production expenses will be accepted until April 19, 1976. Applications for physical losses, for example, damaged or destroyed buildings or equipment, must be filed in the Thief River Falls FmHA county office no later than September 15. It was also noted that a new emergency loan program will be coming in the near future pending signature by the President. Are tax-free municipal bonds a good thing for the average investor, or do they hold real benefits only for the rich? A rule of thumb in the investment industry is that anyone in the 35 per cent income tax bracket or above should look into tax-free securities. Below that, the tax-free aspect may not be so important.

New State Law Affects School Buses, Licensing

A change in Minnesota law adopted by the 1975 legislative session will require that first time registration of school buses in the state be accompanied by an inspection certificate from either the state patrol or the dealer showing that the bus conforms with all provisions of applicable law and regulation, the state division of motor vehicles announced recently.

Effective August 1 of this year, the new law in intended to protect owners, operators and passengers of new buses against built-in defects that could go undetected for six months, the period of time formerly established before inspection was required.

Under Minnesota law, all school buses must be inspected at least semi-annually to acertain whether construction, design, equipment and color comply with all provisions of law.

In a separate piece of legislation relative to the licensing of school bus drivers, the state driver license division reports that it is now legal for a person possessing a valid driver's license, but not a school bus endorsement, to drive a vehicle with a seating capacity of ten or less persons used as a school bus but not outwardly equipped or identified as such.

Operators of normally recognized and equipped school buses holding more than ten passengers must have a valid class B or class A driver's license with a school bus endorsement.

Mondale Cited For Support By PWP Group

Senator Walter F. Mondale has been presented with the 1975 annual award of Parents Without Partners, Inc. for distinguished service to children, international president Norman Sirnic of PWP has announced.

Mondale, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on children and youth, committee on labor and public welfare, was recognized by PWP in particular for his efforts to sponsor and guide through Congress for presidential signature a bill providing for head start child development, including a provision for federally funded day care, Sirnic explained.

A bill by that title, sponsored by the senator, passed both houses of Congress in 1971, but was vetoed by then President Richard Nixon.

A similar bill, sponsored by Mondale jointly with Rep. John Brademas (D-Ind.), and known as the child and family assistance act, is currently undergoing hearings before the subcommittee on children and youth. Executive director George B. Williams of Parents Without Partners stated recently that the proposed law is "not only long overdue but meets tolerable minimums for the number one priority identified by the 1970 White House conference on children and youth.

"Perhaps no other element in our nation is so affected by the lack of those things which the bill provides than the children of single parent families . . . nearly eight and one half million of them," declared Williams.

" . . . the act is an investment similar to the GI Bill of Rights. The GI Bill, in providing for increased educational attainment, enabled higher earning power for those who participated. The gross national product and tax coffers were enriched in turn. Your act is a similar investment in people that can't help but pay off in the same way."

Ethnic Variety Set For Duluth Folk Festival

Schultz, will open the program at the 28th annual Duluth folk festival to be held in Leif Erikson park on Saturday. Jerome Blazevic.

After the opening events, Harry Dack, master of ceremonies, will introduce Mayor Robert Beaudin to present the greetings from the city and the Reverend Father Thomas Radaich to give an invication.

Dancers in colorful costumes will present American square dances, as well as Hawaiian, Tahitian, Italian, Greek, and Spanish folk dances. An additional dance attraction will be the appearance of the Kotzatcke dancers from the international institute of St. Paul who will present traditional Russian dances.

Singing and instrumental music will include Norwegian folk music by the Thureen family singers, Swedish folk music by Alice Carlson, folk songs in a variety of languages by the New Day singers and American folk music by Ernie Storey. The program will be concluded with Polish music and dances by the Chmielewskis.

Ethnic markets, festival booths, a children's fair, and the works of over fifty area artists and craftsmen will be located throughout the park. The hours of the folk festival are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., with free admission for all. In case of rain the events of the folk festival will be held in the national guard Armory and on the lower floor of the former J.C. Penney store building on 12th avenue east.

TRF Bank Debits Down 4 Per Cent From Year Ago

Bank debits in Thief River Falls during May showed a decrease of four per cent from the same period a year ago, according to statistics released by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis. In dollars, bank debits volume during May was $31,152,000. In the same month of 1974 the total figure was $32,286,000. However, the cumulative January through May bank debits total of $155,864,000 was up three per cent over 1974.

For Minnesota the May volume of bank debits for reporting cities decreased six per cent from May of last year. Debits for the 12 months through May, 1975 increased nine per cent from the previous 12 month period.

Bank debits are mainly checks against depositors' accounts and thus represent payment for goods, services, debts and other costs. They also include all debits against checking accounts of individuals, partnerships and corporations, and of states and political subdivisions. They do not include debits to savings accounts, the accounts of other banks, or the United States government.

The volume of bank debits reported by the total sample of ninth Federal Reserve district cities for May decreased three per cent from a year ago. The cumulative total for the 12 months through May, 1975 indicated a 10 per cent increase from the previous 12 month period.

MEA President Says Teachers Are Victimized

President of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) warns teachers that "history could be repeating itself" and that "they're being victimized by boards" that fail to properly order priorities.

President Donald C. Hill of the MEA points out that early settlements have been averaging increases of about nine per cent for 1975-76 and about six per cent for 1976-77.

"This," Hill declares, "in full view of CPI (Consumer Price Index) figures that show increases of almost 10 per cent, with projections of six to seven per cent through the foreseeable future."

Hill reminds that after the last two-year contracts were negotiated—for 1972-74—the inflation rate was more than double teacher salary increases.

Many school districts in Minnesota, Hill contends, will have additional revenues during the 1975-77 biennium that will be substantially in excess of salary increases reflected in the early settlements.

"The trouble is," Hill explains, "that school boards, despite assertions that they believe in local control, are not asserting themselves to exercise that control and are going along with the crowd. They seem to prefer turning their responsibilities over to outside arbitrators."

He said there are substantially more petitions for mediation that last year at this time, with only about half as many settlements.

"This is deplorable for teachers," Hill continues. "In effect, they're being victimized by boards that feel teachers might be the soft spots in their budgets. They apparently manage to handle the hardware. But their greatest resource is their teachers."

All this proves, Hill concludes, is that such boards, "fail to organize priorities properly."

NFO President Claims Victory Over Government

Albert Kotrba of Goodridge, president of the Pennington county chapter of the National Farmers organization, recently received a statement from Oren Lee Staley, president of the national organization, regarding the NFO encounter with the securities and exchange commission (SEC).

Kotrba noted that a meeting of area NFO chapters will be held tonight (Wednesday) at 9 p.m. at the Catholic church basement in Mahnomen. The SEC situation and other matters of NFO interest will be presented. A part of Staley's statement is as follows:

"This is NFO's greatest hour of victory. Judge Stuart denied SEC's request for a receiver over the NFO," Staley said.

"The fact that NFO has whipped the SEC twice should prove once and for all that NFO is sound, stable and able to meet all challenges. It is a victory for people because it proves that people can beat the government if they are right and fight hard enough to win. It was time someone beat government bureaucrats.

"The NFO has no problems with the conditions that Judge Stuart included in his decision. Criticisms of record keeping were of some past procedures of the Members Iowa Grain Trust which were discontinued by that trust for modern, central computerized methods some time ago.

"The NFO has always been audited annually by certified public accountants using standard accounting procedures. Our records are in excellent shape and we welcome the opportunity to report to the court. This will increase confidence even further in the NFO.

"Now NFO can give its full attention to putting together 30 per cent of the nation's production so farmers can price their products based on cost of production plus a reasonable profit," Staley said.

"The NFO ability to raise $3.1 million in five days was an astounding success and showed people that farmers care. The NFO has its bills current as of June 30, 1975, has a sizeable amount of cash in the bank and has reduced its notes to members from $8 million a year ago to below $1.6 million now."

Need Available Contractors In Flooded Areas

U.S. department of housing and urban development (HUD) is making a plea for available contractors on the Moorhead-Crookston flood disaster areas.

According to Henry Meliga, HUD contracting officer, "we are in dire need of available builders who can perform the necessary minimal repairs to residential property." Meliga is responsible for getting contractors to bid on some $200,000 worth of repair work on homes damaged by recent storms and flooding in the Red River Valley.

He said current projections by the HUD disaster field office headquarters in Moorhead indicate an estimated 160 homes in the Moorhead-Crookston areas may be found eligible under the "mini-repair" program.

He said he is working with the Fargo-Moorhead homebuilders association, and individual contractors who may be interested in bidding on available jobs. However, Meliga is finding the availability of local builders a serious problem.

He is requesting assistance from contractors with the capacity and capability to perform the minimal repair work immediately and who are willing to move into the disaster-damaged counties of Clay, Wilkin, Norman, Polk and Pennington.

Under HUD's program certain essential minor repairs or replacement that affect security, safety and sanitation of an owner-occupied dwelling may be made at no cost to the applicant. The MRP is intended to permit a displaced individual or family to reoccupy the repaired dwelling in lieu of receiving any other form of temporary housing accomodations.

Eligible repair work will be paid for with federal funds, Meliga said. Applicants have 60 days from the date of the presidential declaration (July 17) to apply, he added.

Meliga can be contacted by calling HUD's disaster field headquarters, 2421 Brookdale shopping center, Moorhead (236-7801).

Shumway Served As Medic For Viet Refugees

Debra Kay Shumway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hermanus Shumway of Thief River Falls, has recently returned to Fort Lewis, Wash., where she is stationed as a medic with the United States army after spending about three months on the island of Guam.

Debra departed for Guam on April 22 with the 49th and the 423rd medical companies from Fort Lewis to take part in "Operation New Life", a project designed to aid South Vietnamese refugees before their move to the continental United States. The medics from Fort Lewis immediately upon arrival on Guam set up three small hospitals and handled an average of between 30 and 40 inpatients each day.

Debra, along with other medics, was involved in administering 3,300 shots the very first day to children between one and five years of age. It was reported, during Debra's stay on Guam, that during one 24-hour period the island had received some 17,000 refugees.

Pro-Life Group To Demonstrate Against Ruling

A protest demonstration "Liberty and Justice for All" will be staged by Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life on August 2 in St. Paul.

Focal point of the demonstration will be Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun, author of the Jan. 22, 1973 supreme court decision which legalized abortion during the entire nine months of human pregnancy.

Justice Blackmum will be in St. Paul the evening of August 2 to attend the 50th reunion of the Mechanics arts class of 1925. The demonstration will start at 5:30 p.m. at the entrance of the St. Paul Town and Country club, 2279 Marshall Avenue, St. Paul, scene of the reunion banquet.

According to Marge Telschow, Minneapolis, state secretary of MCCL and rally spokesman, the protest will take its theme from the Declaration of Independence. "The supreme court decision, which Justice Blackmum wrote, has the effect of denying the right to life to human beings during the first nine months of their life", she said.

"We wish to remind Blackmum that the Declaration of Independence says that all men are created equal. And, it also says that all men are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights . . . among them the right to life.

"It seems that the supreme court, in its desire to be relevant and popular, forgot about the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution and the other principles upon which American democracy is based."

Thank you from Bemidji State College
Dear Thief River Falls area residents:
After the legislature recognized the growing dimensions of the state colleges' educational impact in Minnesota and granted university status to the seven institutions, Bemidji State College ran an advertisement in the Thief River Falls Times to seek your views of proposed new names for the college.
Using the replies we received from the Thief River Falls area as well as those received from students, faculty, alumni and residents from other communities in North Country, we have decided that our future name will be Bemidji State University.
The change of names is a small one on paper, but a large one in the minds of people associated with BSC. We feel that our educational programs, directions and goals warrant university status, and appreciate the action the state legislature took in granting university designation.
We appreciate your participation in selecting a new name for Bemidji State College. While looking over the various surveys and questionnaires, we at BSC were gratified to see that a large majority of those polled felt that the school should maintain its commitment to outreach programs in Minnesota North Country. We will continue our involvement in North Country, and as Bemidji State University, we will better be able to serve the people and communities of North Country.
Thank you for your interest in Bemidji State University, your university in the North Country.

Northland To Play Football In 1976

In a surprise statement Monday, Northland community college dean of students Ken Wiebolt announced that Northland will field its first intercollegiate football team in the fall of 1976.

Wiebolt cited interest shown among college people and the community itself as prime reasons for initiating a football program at the school.

"We've been working on it all winter with students, faculty and administration personnel involved in the decision," said Wiebolt.

At the present time, Northland and Rainy River of International Falls are the only schools among the state's 18 community colleges not fielding football teams. Rainy River has not yet announced any intentions of following Northland's football move.

Unless reorganization takes place by 1976, Northland will become a member of the Northern Division of the Minnesota state junior college athletic association (MJCAA) football conference. The University of Minnesota-Crookston, Vermilion at Ely, Mesabi at Virginia, Itasca at Grand Rapids, Brainerd and Fergus Falls currently make up the Northern Division.

"The league (MJCAA) plays a very high caliber of football," pointed out Wiebolt. "Minnesota champions have done very well in national competition."

In Crookston, Northland will have a built-in rival, and a very tough one at that. The Trojans were 1973 MJCAA state champions and were runner-up finishers a year ago.

No coaching positions have been filled yet, but Wiebolt hopes to have that task completed sometime this fall to allow the staff an opportunity to scout the area high school football teams in preparation for recruiting chores.

Announce Coaching Resignations

Denny Dinius, head football coach at Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden the past two years, has stepped down from the Nordic post to accept a similar position at Langdon, N.D. Newfolden officials have not yet announced the appointment of a new coach.

In another coaching resignation, John Jacobson has stepped aside as head hockey coach at Detroit Lakes. Jacobson coached the Lakers four years and posted an accumulative 51-53 won-lost record, including an 8-7 win over Thief River Falls in the semifinals of the 1973 Region Eight tournament in the sports arena.

Region 8 Represented In Shrine Game

Lincoln high school head football coach Jim Sims, taking care of last minute details before beginning the 1975 football drills August 12, was in attendance Saturday at the second annual Shrine high school football all-star game played at Memorial Stadium in Minneapolis.

Four Region Eight athletes took part in the game, including Rick Lavoy of Mahnomen, Scott LaCoursiere of Bemidji, Mark Kotowski of Park Rapids and Jim Singer of Fisher.

"The kids represented Region Eight very well," offered Sims. "I thought Lavoy did a nice job and Kotowski played a fine game too. LaCoursiere played well, but Singer didn't play much."

All four Region Eight ball players were members of the North Squad that beat the South for the second straight year, this time 14-7 after winning 30-0 in 1974.

Lavoy and LaCoursiere played as defensive tackles, Kotowski was a tight end and Singer was a defensive back.

"I was impressed with the number of talented ball players in the game," added Sims. "It was a good game."

About 35,000 fans attended the game, contributing about $50,000 to the Shrine hospitals.

Tony Dorn, Jr. of Thief River Falls played for the North squad in last year's game.

LEGION BASE runner Rob Almquist tried to avoid the tag by Nelson State Farm Insurance catcher Mike Schmitz, but to no avail Tuesday as umpire Jerry Parnham signaled an out on the play at the plate during the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league game. State Farm jumped out to a 6-0 lead, but was forced into nine innings before claiming a 9-7 win.

Week's Schedule

Fri., Aug. 1—(3) North. Electronics vs. Arctic Power; Pizza Hut vs. Arctic Raiders. (4) Solheim Furniture vs. Hartz; Hydra-Mac vs. Modern Woodman.

Pizza Hut 6, Solheim 5

Hamms-Pizza Hut scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to post a dramatic come-from-behind 6-5 win over Solheim Furniture.

The win strengthened Hamms-Pizza Hut's grip on second place in the Major Division, keeping the winners' state tournament hopes alive. The second place finisher in the Major Division will play the first place Commercial Division team for a state tournament spot.

A two-out bases loaded single in the bottom of the seventh inning by winning pitcher Roger Ness was the game's deciding blow. Ness and Lyndon Pream both went three for four at the plate for the winners who finished with a 12-9 base hit edge off losing pitcher John Drury. Paul Williams enjoyed a perfect four for four night at the plate for Solheim Furniture.

Power 20, Woodman 19

Arctic Power recovered from an 11-0 first inning deficit to edge Modern Woodman 20-19 in a wild offensive show.

John Olson hit three home runs for the winners as he picked up four hits in five at-bats and drove in six runs. Arctic Power also received batting support from Rex Rugland who belted a grand slam home run in a 10-run Power fourth inning and finished the night with three hits in four trips to the plate. Ray Bengtson stroked four straight base hits for the winners who finished with a 21-18 base hit edge. Power also topped the error charts 8-5.

Jim Myrah also homered for Hartz and Brouse was three for three at the plate. Losing pitcher Brian Nelson had three base hits for the Raiders. Jon Looker was the game's winning pitcher.

Warehouse 11, Grain Belt 8

Warehouse Foods handled Grain Belt's Commercial Division pennant hopes a severe setback with an 11-8 decision.

A six-run third inning sparked the Warehouse Foods victory. Larry Kaiser belted a two-run home run in the fourth inning and Greg Evenson enjoyed a perfect three for three night at the plate as the winners posted a 16-10 base hit edge. Grain Belt committed six of the game's nine errors.

Sullivan was called out on the play and State Farm won the nine-inning game 9-7.

Blank Falls Diesel 7-0

Arctic Cat Maintains East Division Fast Pitch Lead

Arctic Cat blanked Falls Diesel 7-0 Tuesday in Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league play to maintain its first place position atop the league's tight East Division standings.

Nelson State Farm outlasted the Legion 9-7 in Tuesday's doubleheader opener. The Legion edged Falls Diesel 3-2 and State Farm defeated Pepsi-Cola 9-4 in a pair of Monday night games.

Arctic Cat's win over Falls Diesel maintained Arctic's slim half-game margin over second place VFW in the East Division standings. Because of the Pennington county fair, there will be no fast pitch softball league games played the rest of the week. The league's final regular season games will be played next week.

The Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league post-season playoff activity will take place the week of August 11-15.

Pepsi-Cola 4

Nelson State Farm defeated already crowned West Division champion Pepsi-Cola 9-4 to remain unbeaten against West Division foes this summer.

State Farm jumped on Pepsi starting pitcher Vern Lindquist for four runs on just one base hit in the first inning as Lindquist suffered through control problems, giving up six walks in the opening stanza. A bases-loaded triple by Scott Engelstad highlighted the State Farm first inning uprising.

Lindquist issued a base hit and two walks to load the bases in the second inning before being replaced on the mound by Howard Dalager who got out of the jam. However, Dalager was later touched for 11 hits and five runs in the five innings he pitched.

Crookston, EGF Enter District Legion Tourney

Crookston and East Grand Forks will represent northwestern Minnesota this week when the 1975 Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament gets underway at New York Mills.

The state tournament-qualifying district tournament will start tomorrow (Thursday) and will be completed by Sunday. The eight-team tournament will feature a single elimination first round, with the four first round winners advancing into double elimination semifinal play.

The Ninth District tournament features the champions and runner-up finishers from the four area sub district tournaments. Crookston is the area Sub District Four champion, blanking runner-up East Grand Forks 2-0 in last week's title game at Warren.

First round Ninth District tournament pairings Thursday will find Sub District Three winner Red Lake Falls playing Sub District Two runner-up Detroit Lakes at 1 p.m.; Crookston will face Sub District One runner-up New York Mills at 3 p.m.; East Grand Forks will play Sub District One winner Fergus Falls at 6:30 p.m.; and Sub District Two champion Moorhead Blues will take on Sub District Three runner-up Gonvick at 8:30 p.m.

The Ninth District champion will advance to the state American Legion baseball tournament scheduled to open Thurs., Aug. 7, at Ely.

Youth Baseball

Thief River Falls summer youth baseball program was scheduled to complete its 1975 season today (Wednesday) with post-season playoff championship games being played in three different leagues.

9-10-Year-Old

The unbeaten Yankees were scheduled to meet the once-beaten A's today at 1 p.m. in the championship finale of the double elimination 9-10-year-old playoff.

The Orioles ousted the Mets and the A's did away with the Orioles in games played in the tournament's loser's bracket earlier this week.

11-12-Year-Old

White Sox and Indians were scheduled to clash at 3 p.m. today in the championship game of the single elimination 11-12-year-old playoff.

The tournament began Monday when the Expos beat the Angels and the Indians downed the Reds. The top-seeded White Sox drew a first round bye and defeated the Expos in a Tuesday semifinal game.

13-15-Year-Old

Unbeaten Brewers were scheduled to clash with the once-beaten Rangers at 1 p.m. today in the championship match-up of the double elimination 13-15-year-old league playoffs.

Earlier this week the Brewers upset the top-seeded Rangers. The Dodgers ousted the Royals, but the Rangers beat the Dodgers in loser's bracket games.

Uniform Note

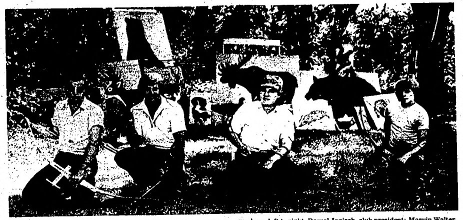
All Thief River Falls summer youth baseball uniforms must be returned to the Thief River Falls park and recreation department during the week of August 4-8.

Uniforms should be washed and ironed before they are turned in.

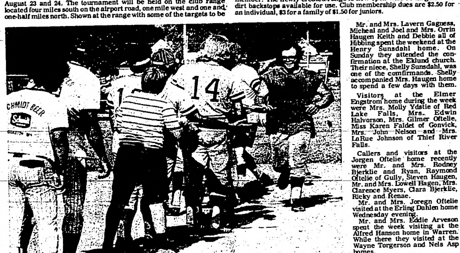
Plummer Girls Start Volleyball Practice Aug. 18

Plummer high school girls' volleyball team will open its 1975 practice sessions at 10 a.m. Tues., Aug. 19, it was announced this week.

All girls in grades 7-12 planning to compete in the volleyball program must have signed physical slips before taking part in the practice drills.



HAND PAINTED TARGETS will be used for the broadhead archery tournament to be sponsored by the Thief River Falls archery club August 23 and 24. The tournament will be held on the club range located four miles south on the airport road, one mile west and one and one-half miles north. Shown at the range with some of the targets to be used are, left to right, Darrel Janisch, club president; Marvin Walter, vice president; Tom Lykken, club member; and Steve Geatz, junior member. The newly-created range is now open with 14 targets with dirt backstops available for use. Club membership dues are $2.50 for an individual, $3 for a family of $1.50 for juniors.



AN UNUSUAL scene developed Sunday in the championship game of the third annual Lake Agassiz slow pitch softball tournament played in Thief River Falls. Arctic Raider first baseman Bill Dicken belted a fifth inning home run against Golf Terrace Sales of Crookston and was in the process of receiving congratulatory handshakes from teammates as he headed down the third base line toward home plate. The unusual twist in the photo is that a pair of ball players from the Schmidt Beer team of Crookston are shown at the end of the line waiting to congratulate Dicken. In most cases once a team is ousted from further tournament competition, team members will cheer for other home town teams. Not in this case, however. The Raiders won the game and the tournament title 9-5.

CLUB PRESIDENT Darrel Janisch fires an arrow at one of the targets on the newly-created course of the Thief River Falls archery club. The course is located south of Thief River Falls on the airport road and then west and back north to the river. There are 14 target positions with ranges up to 80 yards.

MCC Basketball Camp Scheduled For Newfolden

Basketball camp for boys and girls in grades 4-6 will start Wed., Aug. 9, at the Marshall County high school gymnasium in Newfolden.

The program will be conducted from 8-11:30 a.m. Questions can be answered by calling Gary Borg at 874-2711.

Fast Pitch League Faces Wild Finish

Because of the Pennington county fair currently being held on the fairgrounds in Thief River Falls, there will be no games played the rest of the week in the Thief River Falls men's fast pitch softball league.

The league's final regular season games will be played next week, with the newly announced abbreviated slate of games centering entirely around East Division rivals Arctic Cat and VFW and the one state tournament berth both teams are seeking.

Already crowned West Division winner Pepsi-Cola is assured of a berth in the state recreation fast pitch softball tournament scheduled to be played August 16-17 at Blaine. The East Division champion—either Arctic Cat or VFW—will play in the Class A state tournament scheduled to be played August 9-10 at Owatonna.

Arctic Cat currently sits atop the East Division standings with a 14-4 record, but VFW is just one-half game behind the leaders with a 14-5 mark. Pepsi owns an uncatchable 13-7 record in the West. The regular season Division winners represent Thief River Falls in state tournament play.

A pair of crucial league games are on tap Tuesday when VFW will play the Legion at 7:15 p.m. and Arctic Cat tangles with State Farm in the doubleheader nightcap.

No definite schedule is planned beyond Tuesday's games, explained league commissioner Richard Bjerken. "Depending on the outcome of these (Tuesday) games, we may have another game with Arctic facing American Legion," explained Bjerken. "If Legion beats the VFW in the first game Tuesday, Arctic only has to beat State Farm for the right to go to state. If we finish the season with a tie (if Arctic should lose to Legion or State Farm while VFW beats the Legion), we will have a playoff," said Bjerken.

The one-game state tournament deciding playoff game would probably be played Thurs., Aug. 6.

LHS Swim Team Practice Starts On August 18

Lincoln high school girls' swimming coach John Hustad issued a reminder this week that practice for his team will begin Mon., Aug. 18.

In Memoriam

In memory of our dear mother, Mary Matovsik who passed away one year ago, Aug. 5, 1974.

Loving memories, your gentle face and patient smile,
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each of us,
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
You are not forgotton dear loved one,
Nor will you ever be.
As long as life and memory last,
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore.
As time goes by we miss you more.
Your living smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Deeply missed by Helen, Lillian, Della, Douglas and Rudy. 1t61c

In Memoriam

In memory of our dear mother, Mary Matovsik who passed away one year ago, Aug. 5, 1974.

Loving memories, your gentle face and patient smile,
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each of us,
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
You are not forgotten dear loved one,
Nor will you ever be.
As long as life and memory last,
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore.
As time goes by we miss you more.
Your living smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Deeply missed by Helen, Lillian, Della, Douglas and Rudy. 1t61c

Fitting Bicycle To Child Is Important

There's more to buying a bicycle than getting a spiffy banana seat or high-rise handle bars. It's more important for the bike to fit your child.

Most bicycle injuries occur because the child's body and mind were not mature enough to handle the bicycle he was riding say emergency room staff members at St. Paul Children's hospital.

A child should feel comfortable and in control of his bicycle at all times. That is determined by the correct size. He should be able to turn the handle bars freely without reaching or stretching. The height of the seat should be adjusted to allow his feet to rest on the pedals without tiptoeing. The handle grips should be level with his hands for easy steering, not slanted up or down.

If you are buying a 'first' bike for your child, keep it simple. Bicycles with hand brakes, speed gears, highrise handle bars and banana seats are made for experienced riders, not beginners.

In at least nine of Minnesota's 15 fatal bicycle-motor vehicle accidents last year, the bicyclist was at fault. In all cases, the person was 13 years old or under.

Safe bicycle riding is no accident. Tell your child that he has to obey the same laws you do when driving. The bicycle is a vehicle just like any other on the road and has safety rules to follow. Your child's bike is not a toy.

The children's hospital emergency room staff urges you to make sure your child has lots of off-the-street practice before he rides on the street. Then he should follow these rules:

—Study hand signals and use them. Be sure you signal soon enough for motorists to see you.

—Keep both hands on the handle bars except for changing gears and signaling.

—Recognize all traffic signs and understand what they mean.

—Always ride with the traffic.

—Stay as far to the right as you are able to safely. Watch for parked cars turning out or car doors opening suddenly.

—Ride in single file if you are riding with others. Follow a full bike's length behind.

—Don't take your bicycle out if the streets are icy or unsafe.

—Freeway riding is definitely out. Busy streets too.

—Don't speed, race or weave in and out of traffic.

—Give pedestrians the right-of-way.

—Stop for school buses that have stopped to load or unload.

—Ride in the daytime. If you must ride at night wear something white and be sure your headlight is bright and your rear reflector is clean and visible. You should have white reflective tape on the front and sides of your bicycle and red reflective tape on the rear for more protection.

—Ride alone and without big bundles. Another person or a package on your bike can block your vision and throw you off balance.

—STOP at all Stop signs, Yield signs and red or amber traffic lights.

—Stop, look and listen before entering a street from a sidewalk, driveway or alley. Drivers may not see you.

—Get off and walk your bike across busy streets.

—Be ready to put on the brakes at intersections—no pedal pumping as you approach.

—Use your own power. Hitching onto a moving vehicle is against the law.

—Keep your bicycle in good repair. It will be safer and easier to ride.

Good safety habits learned today will last your child's lifetime . . . a happy bicycling one!

NORTHERN MINNESOTA, with its harsh landscape and harsher winters, may seem an unusual location to raise pleasure horses. But Darryl and Carol Dodds of Virginia have built a thriving family business breeding and training sturdy American Saddlebred horses, one of which was named champion stallion foal at last year's Minnesota State Fair.

The Dodds began their enterprise with only four horses on the farm, and now usually keep about 15. Carol had never worked with horses before, but now does about three-fourths of the work while Darryl, who grew up on a farm with horses and works full time as a meat-cutter, helps evenings and weekends.

Because they believe that fairs give good publicity to their horse breeding skills, the Dodds have shown in halter competition at the State Fair for the past seven years, and plan to show last year's champion as a yearling this year. It may be an indication of their success with training that for the first time the Dodds also plan to enter the performance classes in the horse show competition. They will bring several animals, and as usual, they will split the work, with Carol riding in the English shows and Darryl in the western shows during this year's Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 21 through Sept. 1.

Plans Made To Monitor Federal Budget Activity

Budget watching is not likely to replace televised sports as a national pastime; yet Americans could do worse with some of their spare time than to follow the current battle of the budget in Washington.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, many years in the forefront opposing exessive government spending, announced recently plans to monitor budget activity and to report to the public in understandable terms, the impact of spending beyond budget limits.

This is a unique time for budget watching—actually deficit watching, since the federal budget for fiscal 1976, which started July 1, calls for a deficit of $68.8 billion—largest in U.S. history.

What is so unique about deficits? We've run deficts 15 of the last 16 years.

First, the size of the next deficit is going to be critical in our recovery from the recession. Properly handled, the deficit can pump out a steady flow of money to perk up the economy. Allowed to get out of hand, a deficit could trigger another round of inflation.

Second, the size of the deficit and its impact comes on top of an already heavy tax burden. Forty per cent of our national income is collected and redistributed by governments at the federal, state and local levels. If you had a friend or associate handling 40 per cent of your income, wouldn't you be interested in how the friend or associate manages his own budget?

Third, budget watching has some teeth in it for the first time. Prior to 1921 the federal government operated without a budget. Congress simply passed appropriation bills without any overall accounting. It went on this way for years. Today, thanks to a new law, the budget control act of 1974, Congress must set target ceilings or guidelines on its spending, based on priorities, and must establish an overall budget total and subceilings.

How will the new law work? Will we pump more money into the economy than is needed to bring about a solid recovery?

As a public service, the national chamber is following spending activity closely to see how effectively the new law is applied. As an advocate of budget reform, the chamber feels it has an obligation to help ensure the law's success.

Here is what the chamber plans to do:

—Report regularly on how new spending affects the size of the budget, in terms of cost per household. For example, the $68.8 billion budget agreed upon by Congress will cost Americans $962 per household.

—Carry out research, education and action projects designed to create broad—understanding and public support for the new budget process.

—Track and study major spending bills to indicate their status and potential impact, if passed, on budget ceilings and the size of the deficit.

In announcing its special scorekeeping program, the chamber said: "Unless people take an active interest in following developments and legislative activities, the budget process will fail, and the Congress will revert to its previous disorganized, uncoordinated method of lumping together all of the appropriations recommended by different committees to come up with a total cost that is unpredictable and unrealistic in terms of available revenues."

Chamber analysis indicates Congress currently is considering spending proposals which, if enacted, would send the deficit soaring over $106 billion.

If that happens, according to the chamber projections, the deficit would cost Americans $1,490 per household, instead of $962—an increase of $528.

Budget watching can be fun, if you like the idea of saving yourself money.

Handicapped Now Have Insurance Rights By Law

During its 1975 session, the Minnesota state legislature acted to secure the right of people with physical or mental disabilities to obtain life, health and accident insurance.

The law, which becomes effective August 1, makes it an illegal discriminatory practice for an insurance company to reject an application for coverage or to rate up as a substandard class people with disabilities unless claims experience, actuarial projections and other data establish significant and substantial differences in class rates because of the disability.

Despite the practices of most insurance companies, denials of coverage and higher than standard rates continue to be experienced by some individuals without justification. Additional documentation of the need for legislative assistance was provided in a survey conducted early this year by the Minnesota Commission for the Handicapped in which over 225 people with disabilities indicated unresolved insurance problems.

Active support for the new law authored by Sen. Skip Humphrey and Representative Russell Stanton, in addition to the commission, came from all major organizations of people with disabilities including Independence for Impaired Individuals, the Mental Health association of Minnesota, National Federation of the Blind of Minnesota, United Handicapped federation and United Cerebral Palsy of Minnesota.

Enforcement of the anti-discrimination law will be under the jurisdiction of the state insurance commissioner. Informational meetings have already been held between the insurance division, industry representatives and the commission for the handicapped to develop plans for law implementation.

Additional information may be obtained from the Minnesota Commission for the Handicapped, 492 Metro Square, Seventh and Robert, St. Paul 55101, telephone 612-296-6785 or from the Minnesota Department of Commerce, Insurance Division, 5th Floor, Metro Square.

University Zoology Prof Studies Clones

by Louise A. Rollins
U of M News Service

While frog reproduction occurs automatically in nature every year, it is now also occurring, less automatically, in the laboratory of Robert G. McKinnell, a University of Minnesota zoology professor.

But his are not ordinary frogs. Unlike frogs in nature, each one of which is unique, McKinnell's frogs are genetically identical. They are all alike, with the same features and the same chromosomes. In a way, McKinnell's frogs might all be the same frog.

McKinnell's identical frogs are produced through a technique called nuclear transplantation. The nucleus, which contains the chromosomes, is removed from an unfertilized egg by "microsurgery" or by irradiation with a very intense beam of light called a laser. It is replaced by the nucleus of a cell from a very young embryo. Since all the cells of one embryo contain the same genetic information, all the eggs receiving nuclei from that embryo will develop into identical animals. Such a group of identical animals is called a clone.

This may sound like a complicated way to produce experimental animals. McKinnell agrees that it is. But these clones of young frogs will help McKinnell and his graduate students answer some basic questions about the relative importances of genetic make-up and environment in determining how an individual will develop.

Theoretically, the frogs in a clone would all develop in exactly the same way. But experimentally introduced differences in their environments as they develop could produce biologically important differences.

"For example," said McKinnell, "there has been one clone of five human beings—the Dionne quintuplets. These five individuals are thought to have developed from a single fertilized egg that split into five parts, each of which developed into a baby. These babies grew up to be distinct individuals with distinct personalities. And one of them died of an epileptic seizure, while the others were not afflicted with the disease."

The production of clones of higher animals is a rather frightening prospect in the minds of some people. Ever since the possibility became known, science fiction writers have extended it to the production of clones of human beings.

Although it is now possible to produce clones of frogs, it is not yet possible to produce clones of human beings, McKinnell said. However, "the techniques for nuclear transfer in mammals are now available," he said. "Someone will soon produce clones of mammals, opening the door to the possibility of the production of clones of human beings."

McKinnell is not alarmed by that prospect. He feels that it is highly unlikely that a large number of human beings would be produced by cloning.

Not only is cloning by nuclear transplantation technically very difficult, he said, but "major expenditures of time and money in this country generally aim at providing a benefit to large numbers of people. Thus, we spend great sums of money on the military, on health research, and on homes and schools.

"How would a cloned man enhance our defense effort? How would a cloned man permit greater insight into basic medical problems (other than providing experimental material—and cloned mice would probably be better for that purpose)?

"While I agree to the ultimate feasibility of cloning man, I doubt if the payoff of such an endeavor would be worth the expense," he said.

The nuclear transplantation technique could have some possible beneficial uses to human beings in the future, McKinnell said: "If a piece of tissue from the arm of a man with a fatal heart disease could be grown outside his body in a nutrient solution, then cells from that piece of tissue could donate their nuclei to unfertilized eggs.

"A small embryo replica of the man would begin to develop, and the portion of the embryo that would normally produce a heart might then be grown at an accelerated pace in another nutrient solution and provide a new heart for the man," he said.

"A heart produced in this manner would never be rejected as foreign. Ordinary heart transplant recipients have to be medicated to depress the immune response that tends to reject all tissue other than self. A cloned heart is self."

Of course, this scheme of events is not now possible, and whether such manipulations will be possible in the future is unknown. Cells from an adult organism have thus far been unable to "program" for complete development. "But," said McKinnell "organs can be grown for a considerable length of time in organ culture, and they do grow more rapidly in culture."

Would it be ethical to use cloned tissues in this way? "Perhaps," McKinnell said. "In a sense they are cells of the 'self,' and an adult should be ethically and legally able to guide their use in a creative way. But profound ethical issues would be raised if they were cells of another person or if the cloned cells were allowed to develop into another human being."

These questions are exciting to biologists. Manipulation of cells, organs, the very genetic fiber of an individual are now possible. Just how far this new biotechnology will go or should go is a matter for thought and discussion by scientists and laymen alike.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I was discharged about 25 years ago after three years of military service. Is it too late to apply for a GI home loan from the Veterans Administration?

A—No. There has been no deadline for applying for this benefit which is available to veterans of World War II and later periods since enactment of the Veterans Housing Act of 1970.

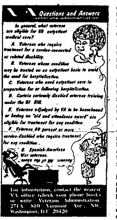
Q—Does the compensation check I receive monthly from the Veterans Administration for a 20 per cent service-connected disability include allowances for my children?

A—No. A veteran's service-connected disability must be rated 50 per cent or more before allowances can be paid for dependents.

Q—I was honorably discharged last month after three years of military duty, none of it in Vietnam. Am I eligible for the GI Bill?

A—Yes. Veterans separated after January 31, 1955, with an other than dishonorable discharge after at least 181 days of active duty, have eligibility for 10 years or until May 31, 1976, whichever is later. Geographic location of service has no bearing on eligibility.

Q—The Veterans Administration provides special housing benefits for some veterans who suffer severe service-connected disabilities. What are they?



Questions and Answers

In general, what veterans are eligible for VA outpatient medical care?

A. Veterans who require treatment for a service-connected or related disability.

B. Veterans whose condition may be treated on an outpatient basis to avoid the need for hospitalization.

C. Veterans who need outpatient care in preparation for or following hospitalization.

D. Certain seriously disabled veterans training under the GI Bill.

E. Veterans adjudged by VA to be housebound or having an "aid and attendance award" are eligible for treatment for any condition.

F. Veterans 80 percent or more service-disabled who require treatment for any condition.

G. Spanish-American War veterans.

For information, contact the nearest VA office (check your phone book) or write: Veterans Administration, 271A, 810 Vermont Ave., NW, Washington, D.C. 20420

A—Eligible veterans are provided grants of not more than 50 per cent of cost of specially-adapted housing ("wheelchair homes") up to a maximum of $25,000.

Q—I keep hearing about "vet reps" on campuses of major colleges around the country. Who are they, and what do they do?

A—They are, as the name implies, specially-trained Veterans Administration representatives. They assist college-going veterans by expediting educational assistance payments and in many instances, perform "outreach" motivational counseling and other services.

Q—I worked in a medical laboratory before I was discharge from military service last month. How should I go about getting a similar job with the Veterans Administration?

A—Contact the personnel office of the nearest VA hospital for information on employment opportunities at the agency's hospitals and clinics. If you qualify for a Veterans Readjustment Act Appointment, this would eliminate much of the paperwork usually associated with Civil Service appointments.

Q—I'm an 18-year-old son of a World War II veteran who died two months ago. Am I eligible for a GI home loan from the Veterans Administration?

A—No. Only unmarried widows or widowers of service personnel killed on active duty, or of veterans who died from service-connected disabilities, and spouses of service personnel missing in action or prisoners of war for more than 90 days, are eligible for GI home loans.

Q—Do Veterans Administration hospitals and clinics take care of reservists injured reporting to, or returning from military training?

A—Yes. Medical care is available for injuries and illnesses which occur during travel time as specified in the reservist's military orders. Both active duty and inactive duty training are considered active duty for this purpose.

Q—Some six million veterans were released from military service between 1955 and 1966. Is it true that these veterans have an additional two years to use their GI Bill benefits under a recent law?

A—Yes. Under a law approved in July 1974 (PL 93-337), veterans released during that period who have not exhausted entitlement have 10 years or until May 31, 1976, whichever is later, to complete training. Farm cooperative, flight, apprenticeship and on-the-job training are available to them until August 30, 1977.

Q—When is the deadline for veterans discharged on or after April 3, 1970, and before August 1, 1974, to apply for the low-cost Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI) offered by the Veterans Administration?

A—Application and first premium must be submitted before August 2, 1975, to: Office of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, 212 Washington St., Newark, N.J. 07102.

Ornamentals Can Be Damaged By Flood Siltation

Ordinarily early spring floods are not damaging to horticultural plants. Usually these plants are dormant when flooding occurs, due to frozen soil and low nighttime temperatures. Dormant trees, shrubs, or perennials will tolerate standing water for a number of days without sustained injury early in the season.

It's the summer flood, with standing water on poorly drained soil, that can produce serious results on ornamental plantings by suffocation (actually drowning), reports the University of Minnesota extension service.

The greatest threat to ornamentals during spring floods is "silting". Rapid run-off from farm lands usually means soil is carried by rapidly moving water and "dumped" into sluggish main streams. Since the velocity of the water is slowed, silt is deposited on the flooded land adjacent to the rivers. Silt deposits may vary in depth from a trace to several inches.

Trees and shrubs usually are not harmed by silt deposits. However, iris, peonies, chrysanthemums and strawberries are some of the plants that could be lost if buried with silt. Damage occurs in the form of crown and root disorders. The degree of injury would depend on the duration of standing water and the depth of silt deposited.

Lawn grass can also be damaged by heavy silt deposits. Wet, soggy leaves and other debris should be removed from lawns as soon as possible to prevent smothering.

One of the best ways to reduce the loss or damage to perennials after flood water recedes is to wash the silt off the crowns of these plants with a garden hose. Normally, they have been planted on well-drained soil so that is is possible to wash the silt away from the plants. Washing of large lawn areas may not be practical.

The other alternative is to wait until the silt dries and then rake the excess soil from around perennial plants. A small amount of silt is not harmful to grass. It can be raked into the grass and actually be beneficial.

Occasionally, large trees are damaged by heavy equipment while sandbagging or other flood preventive measures are being taken. When large patches of bark are torn from three trunks, clean the wounded area and trim away ragged, torn bark. This will allow smooth healing of the injury. Covpr large wounds with a tree wound dressing to prevent drying.

U.S. Chamber Of Commerce Asks Budget Control

Months of inflation and recession have been hard taskmasters for the American people. But they have served the useful purpose of educating us to the hard facts of economic life, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

We learned in 1974, to our great shock, how excessive government spending helped set off one of the worst inflations in our history.

And now we must sadly contemplate spending $70 to $100 billion more than our revenues in fiscal 1976 in an effort to counter the recession with an array of new spending programs.

Have these lessons been learned also in the nation's capital? We have some reason to hope. Thanks to the budget control act of 1974, the budget-making process has focused public conern on the size of the federal deficit.

It has required Congress to establish target ceilings on overall spending for the fiscal year starting July 1. Both Houses have agreed on a budget of $367 billion, and a deficit of $68.8 billion, or nearly $9 billion more than President Ford believes of 1975 alone has been plowing money into the economy at an annual rate of $50 billion during the second quarter.

Giving a great boost to the President's position is the announcement that the nation's composite index of leading economic indicators rose more sharply than ever in April—up 4.2 per cent.

But many legislators refuse to see the handwriting on the wall. Using the pretext of fighting recession, they want to enact more of their favorite spending programs—and create a still larger deficit, the chamber reports.

The Chamber of Commerce, which strongly supported the budget control act, has analyzed proposals pending in Congress and estimates that, if enacted, these spending bills would push the deficit to more than $111 billion. This is far more than leading economists and the chamber believe the economy can stand.

Here is where the budget control act and the ordinary citizen figure in the new scheme of things. Under the new act, Congress has a mandate to hold spending to within the agreed upon budget. It's the citizen's duty to make sure Congress lives up to that obligation.

Viet Nam veterans and their families have been given some tax breaks. Enlisted men's pay for service in combat zones or (until 1977) while hospitalized as a result of service in a combat zone is tax exempt; for officers, no tax on the first $500 per month. Until 1977, wives of the Missing in Action get the benefit of joint tax return rates.

Wine Industry Growth Possible For Minnesota

by Mike Finley
U of M News Service

A commercial pops onto the video screen: "In Minnesota," says a mellow voice, "grapes drink deep of the warm summer sun. The produce is a wine that connoisseurs the world over have come to cherish and respect.

"Today, you can enjoy any of these wines at prices you can afford. Hiawatha Vineyards' fine wines—with dinner, or all by themselves. Drink them with someone you love."

Of course, that's all in the future. In 1975, Minnesota wines are still an alien, noncommercial commodity. Except for a few stray bottles of dandelion, chokecherry, and apple wine stashed away in some home vintner's tool shed, wine made in Minnesota has not only been scoffed at by connoisseurs, it has also been confiscated by the revenuers (unless it's for home use).

But that doesn't have to be the case, says Cecil Stushnoff, viticulturist with the University of Minnesota department of horticultural science and landscape architecture.

"Up until now, few people have given wines in Minnesota much thought," Stushnoff said. "For one thing, the growing season is not long here, and for another, no known varieties of wine grape can make it through our winters."

Stushnoff explained that there are several grape families that are cultivated in America. One is "vitis vinifera," a grape that was brought here from the Old World, where it has been cultivated for thousands of years. Attempts by the English to grow it on the east coast met with disastrous results, and the plant was ravaged by the winter cold, disease, mildew, and root lice.

When the vinifera grape was introduced in New Mexico and California, however, vintners were pleased to find that the wine produced there in many ways equaled the best wines of Italy, Germany, and France.

Another domestic grape, "vitis labresca," also called the northern fox grape, has been grown with excellent results in the United States. And it can withstand temperatures down to 25 degrees F., so it is much hardier than the vinifera grape. The only trouble with labresca grapes, Stushnoff said, is that they have a "foxy" flavor, which is tasty in jams and jellies but makes an awful wine.

Finally, there grows in Minnesota a small-clustered, acid-sour wild grape called "vitis riparia," the "riverbank grape." It's not much good, being so puny and badtasting, but it can withstand some incredibly cold weather—as low as -50 degrees F.

This is where Elmer Swenson comes in. Swenson, a dairy farmer in Osceola, Wis., for many years, had a hobby of making home wines and working with different kinds of grape vines. He wondered why no one had ever tried crossbreeding Minnesota riverbank grapes with a better-tasting grape.

(Actually, the University had produced a riparia-labresca hybrid back in the '40s, but the labresca part made it taste like sweet grape juice—fine for dessert but not fine with a meal.)

It was a 1965, at a field day at the university's horticultural research center in Excelsior, that Elmer Swenson brought in, as a curiosity, a few dozen hybrids he had bred from crossing the riverbank riparia grape with the more dignified European vinifera cousin. The horticulturists were impressed. Soon after, Swenson joined the research facility as an experiment supervisor, and he is still working at the University in that capacity.

At the moment, according to Stushnoff, about 50 varieties of Swenson's grapes are being tested as wine grapes, with a few already showing exceptional promise. "We've had several bottles in the aging process for about a year now," he said, "and the samples we've taken so far are very encouraging. Although it's too soon to pass any final judgment on the wines we've been making, one fact of winemaking is on our side: from here on, nothing can go wrong. It can only get better."

The greatest challenge in the plant-breeding process, Stushnoff said, is to keep breeding until different qualities, some of which tend to fight each other, combine to make the best possible wine grape. This is where the real work is happening today.

Stushnoff said that they think they have the cold-hardiness problem pretty well licked. Now they have to try to cut the natural acidity that characterizes the riparia half of the hybrids. Minnesota's short, hot summers usually end before the leaves on the grapevines produce a palatable amount of sugar for the grapes. It does seem as if the best Minnesota wines are likely to have a dry quality about them.

Whether Minnesota will ever compete with California in the wine industry is seriously in doubt, Stushnoff said. But it is not in doubt that the state stands a good chance of developing a strong new home industry.

UPS Is Granted Authority For National System

For the first time in its 68-year history, United Parcel service (UPS) has been granted authority to provide coast-to-coast parcel delivery service.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized UPS to provide package pickup and delivery in all 48 contiguous states, subject to certain preexisting and relatively minor restrictions.

The new service will commence on about July 16, said a company spokesman, when all of the regulatory steps are completed.

Although a large number of package delivery firms provide such service throughout sections of the nation, United Parcel service has become the primary alternative to the government's parcel post delivery system.

"This ICC decision," said the company spokesman, "fills in the last two major gaps in the UPS delivery area.

"It adds five full states to the authorized service area, and also opens service between the Pacific coast states and the northeastern states running from Maine to Virginia."

The five full states added to the UPS service area are Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Utah.

"As a consequence," said the UPS spokesman. "The first truly national alternative to the government's parcel post system will be available."

The UPS application for this authority has been pending since 1971, and has more recently been vigorously opposed by the United States postal service.

"The new service will be particularly useful to shippers and receivers who reside in remote areas," said the spokesman, "because packages are picked up and delivered directly at the premises of users."

"No dwelling or business is beyond the reach of UPS service," he said. "If a vehicle can be driven there, UPS will go there."

United Parcel service handles packages that weigh 50 pounds or less and have a maximum combined length and girth of 108 inches or less. It is limited to the movement of 100 pounds from one shipper to one consignee each day.

The company was founded in Seattle in 1907, and until the early 1950s it served primarily as a package delivery service for department stores and specialty shops in major metropolitan areas.

In the early 1950s the delivery company began expanding its service area. Since that time UPS has been engaged in a continual quest for authority from federal and state regulatory agencies to serve larger portions of the nation.

This new grant of authority by the ICC culminates the more than two decades of effort by United Parcel service to set up a coast-to-coast package delivery service.

The company has established a network of facilities across the nation, and has scheduled its vehicle movements so that the following package transit times are provided routinely:

Next-day delivery is made up to at least 150 miles, second-day delivery up to a minimum of 450 miles, third-day up to at least 900 miles. Packages move an additional 600 miles on each successive day.

United Parcel service charges rates comparable to those of parcel post, but in addition offers $100 of protection against loss or damage on each package without extra charge or paperwork.

The company offers an automatic daily pickup service, an address correction service, a COD service, and it makes three attempts at delivery of a package, after which the package is returned to the shipper without additional charge.

Hypnosis Can Help Mother And Baby During Childbirth

by Joey McLeister
U of M News Service

"I felt like a great athlete competing in the final lap in a race—and I was winning. An athlete can experience a great deal of physical pain in straining to finish, but it is such an exhilarating kind of pain that it doesn't hurt, or rather, it hurts so good. I actually felt high for several hours afterwards in recovery."

That is one woman's description of a different sort of delivery—one accomplished while she was under hypnosis. Nancy Barsic was one of the first women to participate in the prenatal hypnosis class offered at the University of Minnesota. Family practitioner Dr. Skip Hofstrand taught hypnosis to expectant couples for use throughout pregnancy and to increase relaxation and reduce pain during labor.

Hofstrand and two resident physicians in family practice use the first session of the class to dispel myths about hypnosis, a phenomenon many have seen only on television, when the villain Svengali hypnotizes a young girl and makes her sing like a canary or when Dracula's daughter lures yet another victim into her studio.

"Hypnosis is not a magical and mystical subject," Hofstrand assures the class. "It's a natural psychological phenomenon. But its seamy reputation casts an unfortunate light on it when we want to use it for scientific purposes. It's the least dangerous thing we could do to relieve pain. Certainly, giving you a drug is potentially more dangerous as to the possible consequences."

Hofstrand attempts to instill in the class an understanding of hypnosis as a nonmystical, suggestive communication technique in which the rational, or cognitive, mind bows to the suggestive mind, allowing the subject momentarily to believe things that may not be true.

Hofstrand also stresses the personal control subjects retain under hypnosis. The subjects are always able to turn the mental "switch" on or off at will.

"Your will find out how much you really are involved," he says. "No one has control except yourself. No one can take you to a place you don't to go to."

Husbands in the program are taught to induce hypnosis to increase relaxation and deaden pain for their wives. Administration of an anesthetic during labor or delivery is not precluded, however.

"We're not trying to make stoic individuals of you," Hofstrand promises the class.

Instead, he hopes to eliminate the need for anesthesia by separating the mind from bodily pain through hypnosis. Husbands are taught to draw pain from their wives' bodies by suggesting, for example, that back pain, common during pregnancy and labor, is being transferred from the wife to the hands of the husband.

In the hospital labor room for a practice run-through, the wife gets into one of the beds and under hypnosis senses the room, noticing sounds, smells, touch sensations and the overall feeling of being there. The couple then makes a practice phone call to the doctor for the last-minute instructions they will need when the wife goes into labor.

Hofstrand emphasizes that each couple should spend time at home working to perfect the hypnosis. "Hypnosis is a learned process. The more you do it, the better you get."

The program is designed to culminate in a delivery that requires little or no anesthetic. Without drugs, Hofstrand said, "there is instand learning for the baby coming into the real world." In the past decade, more and more babies have failed to learn much in the first month of life because the use of anesthesia during delivery clouds certain responses and retards growth that would naturally take place.

Despite positive results of the program, the prenatal hypnosis method is not widely used, Hofstrand said, primarily because of the great time commitment the doctor must make to the patient. Plans are being made to train residents and nurses to assist physicians during part of the program.

Hofstrand said he has encountered little skepticism from the medical profession concerning the hypnosis program, perhaps because of the long history of medical use of hypnosis. Before chemical anesthetics were introduced in the mid-19th century, he said, "hypnosis was very much in vogue. Even after chemoterapy became dominant, hypnosis was sometimes the only form of anesthesia available. There are also cases in which use of drugs would be extremely dangerous."

Hypnosis in the labor and delivery rooms has meant increased relaxation and eased pain for the program's participants and a more natural entrance into the world for their babies! For at least one couple, the prenatal hypnosis class proved to be the key to "a good way to stretch out and enjoy a nice thing."

4-H'ers Learn Do's And Don'ts Of Dog Ownership

CHICAGO—Joining in the observance of National Dog Week, Sept. 7-13, will be 156,000 young people in the national 4-H dog care and training program.

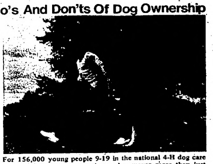
To these 4-H'ers owning a dog means more than just companionship and fun. It involves responsibility for the welfare of a living animal and concern for the community.

Learn-by-doing activities are the core of this Cooperative Extension Service supervised program. Incentives and recognition for program members are provided by Purina Dog Foods Group, Ralston Purina Company, and arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

The owner's obligations

4-H'ers learn that a dog owner's responsibilities include:

- Choosing a breed that is scaled to one's living space. An apartment dweller, for example, would be better off with a terrier than with a hunting dog that needs room to run.
- Getting the dog licensed. The license tag on a dog's collar identifies him if he is lost or stolen and is good insurance for the owner.
- Basic obedience training to prevent or cure bad habits. Undisciplined dogs are a nuisance to owners and neighbors alike.
- A regimen of health care designed to protect the dog and the community. This should include regular veterinary checkups and inoculations.
- Feeding a nutritionally balanced diet. Vitamin and mineral supplements are not necessary if dogs get well-balanced rations.
- Proper grooming. Regular combing and brushing help prevent matted hair and promote a healthy coat.



For 156,000 young people 9-19 in the national 4-H dog care and training program, owning a dog means more than just companionship and fun. It involves responsibility for the welfare of a living animal and concern for the community. The program is sponsored by Purina Dog Foods Group, Ralston Purina Company, and conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Program has wide appeal

The national 4-H dog care and training program is popular with young people from 9 to 19 in urban, suburban and rural areas. 4-H'ers are encouraged to keep track of their pets' progress by recording details of costs, feeding, health, training and vital statistics.

Purina Dog Foods Group, Ralston Purina Company, offers $800 college scholarships to six national winners in the program. The six are chosen from among 18 sectional winners, who receive expense-paid trips to the 54th National 4-H Congress, Nov. 30-Dec. 4 in Chicago.

A transistor radio goes to one top 4-H'er in each state, and up to four medals of honor are awarded in each county.

All winners are selected by the Extension Service on the basis of their records of accomplishment. Additional information on the program is available from county extension agents.

Comparison Is Made Of Grains For Stock Feed

Satisfactory protein level in most rations of cattle and sheep runs about 10-12 per cent. Most grains contain about this much protein, and in emergency feeding situations should be adequate. When low protein materials such as grain straws or grass straws make up a major part of the ration, some added protein is needed, reports the U of M extension services.

Cattle and sheep usually do as well on a single source of protein as on a mixture of several. Choice of a protein supplement becomes largely a matter of cost comparisons; however, these should be made on the basis of cost per pound protein supplied, rather than cost per ton of the supplement. To help in figuring this, the following levels of protein in locally-available supplements may be used with current prices: Alfalfa seed screenings, 25 per cent; field or cull peas, 20 per cent; linseed meal, 32 per cent; cottonseed meal, 40-50 per cent; and soybean meal, 40-50 per cent.

Urea can be used to replace part of the protein if its price is favorable. One pound of feed grade urea is equivalent to 2.62 pounds of crude protein. Some caution is recommended with urea, since in high levels it is toxic to livestock. Hungry cattle or sheep should be given a fill of feed without urea before being turned onto one which contains urea.

Do not feed urea at levels greater than one per cent of a total ration (grain plus hay) or more than three per cent of a concentrate mix. Thoroughly mix with the feed and use with some available energy source such as grain or molasses. Do not feed urea with roughage alone.

Molasses is an economical energy source, but needs to be fed with some dry feedstuffs. It can be self-fed, liquid, if some wooden float device is used to restrict consumption, or it can be mixed with grain mixes at most feed mills.

Some Vitamin A is stored up by cattle and sheep when on good summer range or pasture, but hay supplies most of this vitamin during winter feeding. If hay is eliminated from the ration, added Vitamin A may be necessary. A number of stable, dry forms of Vitamin A available commercially, may be mixed with feed, with salt, or injected intra-rumenally. The following daily levels are suggested: Bred cows or mature cattle, 20,000 I.U.; yearling cattle, 10,000 I.U.; bred ewes, 5,000 I.U.

Removal of hay from rations may cause mineral deficiency. This can generally be solved by using a free-choice mixture of one part dicalcium phosphate and one part trace-mineralized salt.

Most of the high-grain feed tests have been done with fibrous grains. Barley and oats have about equal feeding value for cattle and sheep. If corn is used, ground ear corn (or corn and cob-meal) is safer than shelled corn. Wheat and milo may need added fiber. Dried beet pulp can supply fiber, but other cheap fibrous feeds like chopped or ground straw or seed screenings might be investigated. About 8-10 per cent of one of these feeds added to non-fibrous wheat or milo will approximate the fiber level in barley or ground ear corn.

When grain feeding is started in what was previously a hay feeding operation, it will be necessary to provide feed bunks. Pelleting or cubing may help lower waste in feeding, particularly if the cubes contain some roughage in addition to the grain. Pelleting also prevents sorting of the feed mix by animals and this may be important where some lower quality ingredients are used. The plus values of pelleting must be balanced off against the processing cost, determined locally.

Any major change in a feeding program should be spread over a period of several days rather than being made abruptly, and animals should be carefully observed during the transition.

DAIRY PRODIGIES

NOT MANY FIVE-YEAR-OLDS HELP show cattle at state and county fairs, and perhaps even fewer thirteen-year-olds select and buy cattle for their family's farm. So Carol Sue Ahlborn, 20, of Owatonna, who has done both, probably had an edge on her competition this spring when she was named Territory Outstanding Guernsey Youth for an eight-state Midwest area by the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

Carol Sue has always wanted to be a dairy farmer, and she was given adult responsibilities by her parents, who own a 250-acre farm with 130 head of Guernseys. For a 4-H project her father gave her a calf, and from that start, Carol Sue has now built a herd of 43 cattle of her own. Each year when she is not working on the farm or studying at the University of Minnesota, where she will be a junior in Animal Science, she shows 18-19 of her own and her family's cattle at six county fairs and the Minnesota State Fair.

FAMILY JEWELRY

KELLY MOORE is a seventh grade St. Paul student who runs track, plays soccer and basketball, and enjoys all sports. Like many seventh-graders, art for Kelly is just something she does in school, except that she does it very well and it is becoming a family affair.

Last year, Kelly's mother, Janet, encouraged her to enter one of her school art projects in the Education Department at the Minnesota State Fair. It was the first time any of the Moore family had entered Fair competition, and the art project, which was a clay and plaster of Paris sculpture, won a blue ribbon. Kelly's two younger brothers also entered and won awards for Indian jewelry. Now according to Janet, every time someone produces something around here they ask me," is it good enough for the Fair?"

Kelly plans to enter her own Indian beadwork with her brothers and two sisters at this year's 12-day Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 21 through Sept. 1.

Sheep Producers Plan Turn-Around In Sheep Numbers

With a detailed 10-year plan for expansion, the American sheep industry has applied the brakes to a 30-year decline in sheep numbers during an historic meeting at Winrock Farms, near Morrilton, Ark., according to the American Sheep Producers Council, Inc.

Heads of the major sheep industry organizations banded together in a joint commitment for growth of the sheep industry calling for at least 50 per cent increase in the numbers of breeding ewes by 1985. The meeting was jointly sponsored by the sheep industry development program and the Winthrop international livestock research and training center.

The sheep industry is the first major livestock interest to use the conference center in developing a "Blueprint for Expansion of the American Sheep Industry."

The two-day meeting included representatives of every facet of production, research and marketing. Richard D. Biglin, executive director of the American Sheep Producers council, Denver, Colo., combined with Dr. Hudson Glimp of the Winthrop Rockefeller foundation, in coordinating the meeting.

The meeting was broken down into six separate groups on discussions of marketing, predator and land use, production goals, research and education, organization structure and labor.

Of particular interest to the future of the American sheep industry were the specific goals outlining the future development until 1985, including a 50 per cent increase in replacement ewe numbers, a 25 per cent increase in the percentage of lamb crops weaned and 15 per cent increase in the average market weight per lamb.

The plan will allow a doubling of lamb without doubling the numbers of sheep. However, these goals were based on the overriding assumption that an effective means of predator management would be introduced soon.

Highlighting the recommendations from the predators and land use committee was the request to sponsor a national conference on the predator to present factual data to all interested parties; to organize and publish factual materials for the benefit of all interested parties; and to develop educational and training programs for appropriate control agents.

In a committee concerning organization structure, it was recommended that the American sheep industry strive for a unified direction with a single voice and work for a possible consolidation of organizations representing the sheep industry. In addition, better communications were urged for all areas, and an industry leadership development program was strongly encouraged. The national presidents of the four major sheep organizations were charged with the responsibility of continuing the momentum to develop the new suggested sheep organization structures.

In the area of marketing, it was recommended that a complete business organization be formed to trade domestically and internationally in sheep and sheep products in such a way as to maintain a strong and consistent market for sheep in the U.S. In addition, it was encouraged that the sheep industry establish sheep and lamb tele-a-auctions, recommending eventually no more than four regionally in the United States. The ASPC and SIDP were charged with the responsibility of developing a method for analysis and an information source for keeping producers and marketing agents informed relative to wool market developments and outlook.

Among the most progressive advances made at the meeting were those in the area of labor. A committee named by the president of the National Wool Growers association was formed with the purpose of developing a labor policy to cover all phases of the sheep industry, working in cooperation with established organizations concerned with the problem.

This labor committee will meet as soon as possible to define the standards for industry jobs, such as range livestock employees and shearers, and will attempt to meet with the department of labor as soon as possible to bring about workable labor programs. In addition, the committee will take the initiative to work with occupational safety and health administration, and to act as a representative of the American sheep industry to the department of labor.

Among the most significant advances made in the research and education field was the recommendation to develop a research program adapted to a regional concept in the United States. These research centers would utilize existing facilities but require additional staffing and funding.

The group also endorsed the establishment of an international sheep and goat coordinating council to coordinate and develop support for research and training programs for sheep and goats in the arid and subtropical regions of the world. The Winthrop International livestock research and training center will help provide the leadership in developing this program.

In the educational field, it was recommended to develop a better system of informing sheepmen, the financial community, allied industries and the business sector concerning the profit potential and overall future possibilities for the American sheep industry.

Dr. Richard O. Wheeler, director of the Winrock center, expressed the desire of the foundation to assist the industry and provide leadership in those areas of research and training programs that will both improve livestock production efficiency and improve human nutrition.

After completing all of the recommendations, the final task for the group was to outline a blueprint for implementation of such recommendations. Probably the most significant aspect of the meeting was the establishment of specific names, dates and procedures to be used in follow-up work.

Richard D. Biglin, commenting on the success of the meeting, said, "Now that we've completed one of the most successful meetings in the history of the sheep industry, we must be committed to carry out the suggestions and recommendations made at this meeting."

"All organizations in the American sheep industry are already making a unified effort to begin the great upward trend of this industry," added Biglin.

In addressing the group, Dr. Hudson A. Glimp said, 'None of us really know what the future role of this industry in meeting world food and fiber needs will be, but it is our belief that the industry is in a better position to determine its own destiny than anyone else. The important point is, if you as an industry do not do this, then it will be done by others who may not understand or care about your situation or the industry's potential for progress and contribution to society."

Property Losses To Storm, Flood Tax Deductible

Property losses caused by natural disasters are deductible from income tax liability. But since the method used in computing the deduction will vary according to the situation, it is important to know the available methods for each kind of loss, advise extension farm management specialists at the University of Minnesota.

They stress the importance of establishing the amount of deductible loss and preparing evidence to support the claim. Before-and-after photographs, receipts for repairs and professional appraisals serve as good evidence.

Any factors which offset the loss—salvage, insurance or other forms of recovery—must be subtracted from the deduction.

The deduction itself may usually be determined by the adjusted basis of the property, by the decrease in fair market value or by the cost of repairs and restoration.

The deduction for completely destroyed business property is usually figured by the amount of the adjusted basis of the property. The deduction for partially damaged property is the amount of the adjusted basis, or the decrease in fair market value, which ever is smaller.

Casualty losses to trees involve special considerations. The cost basis must have been previously determined by capitalizing the establishment costs of the tree stand. If the establishment costs were included in previous tax returns as operating expenses, there is neither a cost basis nor a decrease in fair market value. If the establishment costs were not included, the decrease in fair market value can be determined by the amount spent removing destroyed trees, pruning or otherwise preserving damaged trees and replacing lost trees.

For casualty losses or farm buildings and equipment, the adjusted basis of the property can be taken from the depreciation schedule of the previous year's tax return. The decrease in fair market value is determined by the expenditure necessary to restore the property to its adjusted base value.

Casualty losses or livestock, produce and crops also involve several considerations. If the cash method is used, losses of raised livestock, produce and crops are not deductible and losses of "purchased for sale" lovestock and produce are deductible only if the purchase price had not already been deducted as a farm expense.

If the accrual method is used, losses of livestock, produce and crops and losses of "purchased for sale" lovestock and crops are deducted by omitting them from the year-end inventory.

Casualty losses to land due to erosion and accumulation of debris and deposits are deducted according to the decrease in fair market value. This can be determined by a qualified appraiser or by the expenditure necessary to restore the land to its pre-casualty adjusted basis.

Offer Tips For Those Carrying Car-Top Luggage

"If not properly mounted and loaded, car-top carriers can be a highway hazard," Minnesota department of public safety commissioner Edward G. Novak said recently.

The national safety council reported a situation in which seven crashes were caused by car-top carriers that came loose in a sudden storm, strewing their contents along the highway in the paths of other vehicles.

"Though much has been said about trailers," Novak said, "we hear very little about safety in use of car-top carriers. Here are a few safety tips for those who carry luggage on top of the car:

"If using a strap-on type, check all straps and clamps before loading. Check after the first hour and at every stop thereafter, because straps can loosen as the load settles or travel over rough stretches of road.

"If using a rigid rack type, check nuts and bolts before loading, not only for tightness but for condition of the bolts.

"Be sure luggage is strapped down tightly. In addition to strapping from side to side, the load must be prevented from sliding forward and backward.

"In an enclosed carrier or large box, fill the extra space with pillows, blankets or other objects to prevent items from shifting on turns or stops.

Minnesota 4-H'ers are preparing their livestock and poultry for the 57th annual state 4-H market livestock show September 15-17 at the Minnesota state fairgrounds.

Sponsoring the show are the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service and the Minnesota livestock breeders association. Besides livestock and poultry judging, this year's show will include rate-of-gain contests for livestock exhibitors and a meats judging contest on noon September 15. (Each county may enter four members with the top three scores tabulated to determine the winning team.)

Entry day is Monday (September 15), when show participants will view the state 4-H horse show in the evening, held in conjunction with the market livestock show.

Sheep and swine judging starts at 8:30 a.m. September 16 in the swine barn. Grand champion lamb and barrow and sheep and swine showmanship selections will begin at 1:15 p.m. September 16, when winners of the rate-of-gain contest will be announced for these animals.

Live bird judging for the poultry show will start at 9 a.m. September 16 in the beef barn. Poultry exhibitors will dress their birds at the University of Minnesota meats laboratory on the St. Paul campus.

A western barbecue and street dance sponsored by the St. Paul area chamber of commerce, Minnesota pork producers, Minnesota sheep producers and Minnesota turkey growers' association will highlight the September 16 evening program.

Beef cattle judging starts at 8 a.m. September 17 in the Hippodrome. The grand champion steer on the hoof and the champion beef showman will be named about 2:30 p.m. September 17, when winners of the beef rate-of-gain contest will be announced.

4-H'ers exhibiting in the state 4-H market livestock show will take part in educational activities, including a livestock evaluation clinic conducted by university extension specialists and tour of the meat research lab starting at 3 p.m. September 15 in the meats science laboratory. The 4-H'ers will also tour the meat departments of major Twin Cities' supermarkets September 16-17.

The animals shown at the show will be sold immediately following the event to Minnesota packing companies. Final pricing and value determinations will be based on carcass grade (quality and quantity) and carcass weight. Premiums will be given to exhibitors by combining the animal's live score with the carcass score to give an overall score. Exhibitors who qualify in the rate-of-gain contest will be awarded "bonus" premiums. Premiums will be provided by the Minnesota business community and the Minnesota livestock breeders association.

New Edifice in Beantown

Sixty-story Hancock Tower rising over historic Copley Square and the placid recreational setting nearby adds new dimension to Boston's growing commercial community. Designed by the world famous architectural firm I. M. Pei and Partners, the spectacular rhomboid-shaped structure is set diagonally on its site to reflect the sky and the adjacent 19th century landmarks, including Trinity Church. (HK)

State Awarded Grant To Form Jobs Computer

Gov. Wendell R. Anderson today announced that Minnesota has been awarded a $300,000 grant from the U.S. department of labor to develop a computer-based system that will provide occupational information to thousands of youths and adults seeking employment or making career choices.

Minnesota was one of eight states selected by the department of labor for the new federal program which is designed to provide start-up funds for states to develop and implement such systems.

They provide users with information about career opportunities, available occupations, ways of exploring careers and making job decisions, seeking out vocational information on their own and specific sources of occupational and training information that are available. The information will also be available for use in career education, employment placement and couseling services and manpower and educational planning.

Development of the system is expected to result in a dissemination network to over 800 locations in Minnesota within four years, thus making occupational information available to 90 per cent of the state's high school youth. It will deliver information regarding 250-300 occupations.

To implement the grant, Gov. Anderson has established, by executive order no. 118, the board of directors of the Minnesota occupational information system, to implement the grant. The higher education coordinating commission will act as personnel and fiscal agent.

The system will be operated by the 14-member interagency board of directors representing key users and producers of occupational data. Representatives will come from manpower and social service agencies, labor, industry and education.

The grant is for one year with the possibility that it can be renewed for three additional years.

Frozen Food Use Following Flood Needs Caution

With the freezer closed, foods usually will stay frozen at least a day, perhaps for two or three days, depending on the quantity of insulation. Food in well-filled, well-insulated 4-cubic-foot home freezers will not begin to spoil in fewer than three days; in 12 to 36-cubic-foot freezers, food will not begin to spoil in fewer than five days, and may be all right seven or eight days if the food is very cold.

—A full freezer will stay cold many hours longer than a freezer partly full.

—The colder the food, the longer it will stay frozen.

—The larger the freezer, the longer the food will stay frozen.

—Covering with blankets, quilts, or some other covering will help keep the food frozen or cold enough to prevent spoilage. You can put crumpled newspaper or excelsior between the cabinet and covering to add insulation.

Move the food to a locker plant if one is in operation and if there is space there. To move food from your home, wrap it is newspapers and blankets or use insulated boxes or containers.

Add dry ice, if obtainable, to save food still frozen. Wear gloves to handle dry ice. Move any food from the freezing compartment to the storage compartment of the freezer. Put heavy cardboard directly on the packages of frozen food and then put the dry ice on top of the cardboard.

Can the food if it is possible to do so under sanitary conditions and with proper equipment.

You can freeze fruits if they still taste and smell good. If they are beginning to ferment, they can be eaten, but will have an off-flavor.

Do not refreeze vegatables if they have thawed completed. Refreeze only if there are still some ice crystals in the vegetables. If the vegetables have thawed and cannot be used soon, discard them. If you question the condition of vegetables, throw them out. Spoilage may begin before bad odor occurrs.

Meats and poultry are not safe to eat when they start to spoil. Look at each package. Thawed meats and poultry that do not show spoilage may be refrozen, but should be cooked very thoroughly before being tasted. If the food still contains some ice crystals, it may be refrozen safely. Use completely thawed meats and poultry if possible. Be sure to cook them well before tasting. If odor is poor or questionable, get rid of the food.

DESTINY: THE MINOR LEAGUES?

Headed for the "Majors" — that's his dream. But don't count on it, even if he stays in baseball!

For in thousands of cities and towns across America we know that baseball isn't just the major leagues. We know boys on their way up . . . and men on their way down . . . and fellows who have gone about as far as they can go. A real ball player is one who gives his club his best—in any league.

How close this comes to a fundamental conviction of the Church!

Christianity gives a man solid footing for his faith in God and in himself. To achieve the full potential of our God-given talents is primary; to fulfill every dream is secondary.

The Church promises no man earthly success. But it helps us to appraise the gifts God gave . . . to use them honestly and unselfishly. And, startlingly, it points the way to new goals, far beyond our dreams.

International Trade In Animal Products Threatens Wildlife

Americans by the thousands—tourists, hunters, commercial importers and other travelers—last year learned about some important federal laws the hard way. The tortoise shell jewelry they had bought abroad, or the hunting trophy or the crocodile wallet or the fur-covered compact they had acquired were confiscated at ports of entry when they arrived home.

Federal law makes it illegal to import into the United States any live or dead animal, its parts, or products made from it if it is one of more than 400 animals on the worldwide list of endangered species established by the secretary of the interior.

Since 1971, more than $2 million worth of contraband wildlife has been seized by special agents of the interior department's U.S. fish and wildlife service from thousands of Americans returning abroad.

As part of its efforts to halt this illegal traffic and to acquaint Americans with federal laws governing wildlife importations, the service has published a booklet "Facts About Federal Wildlife Laws." It is available free on request from the Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C., 20240.

The extent of international trade in wildlife and wildlife products made from furs, hides, shells, feathers, teeth and tusks is enormous, and the market continues to grow. In 1972-73, more than 41 million wildlife products and some 220 million live animals and fish were legally imported into this country.

Unfortunately, some of the most beautiful and interesting wildlife products that can be bought by travelers abroad are made from animals protected by United States law—including many that are threatened with extinction. Although the importation of such products has been illegal since 1969 when the endangered species conservation act went into effect, a considerable amount continues to flow into the United States.

While a significant portion of this illegal flow represents a deliberate avoidance of federal laws, too many travelers are simply unaware that such laws exist. These travelers find that attractive wildlife products, including those made from endangered species, are freely sold abroad. Hunters find that they can obtain licenses to hunt certain animals. So they buy and they hunt, and on their return to the United States they find to their dismay that their purchase or trophy cannot be imported legally and must be confiscated.

Another problem is that travelers often do not know when they buy an item that it was actually made from wildlife. An intricate ivory carving or a piece of tortoise shell jewelry, for example, are not readily thought of by most people as a wildlife product like a fur coat.

A common argument by travelers, whose purchases of wildlife products are confiscated when they return to the United States, is that the crocodile, sea turtle or leopard was dead long before they bought their shoes, jewelry or fur coat. "I didn't kill the animal," they protest. "It was already dead." Yet, the fact is that every purchase of a product or curio made from an endangered animal maintains the commercial pressure on the surviving members of that species and indirectly leads to the deaths of many more at the hands of poachers and market hunters.

One intent of the newest law, the endangered species act of 1973, is to remove the United States and its citizens from the international marketplace for endangered and protected wildlife, and to ensure that Americans do not hamper the efforts of other nations to conserve their fauna. By prohibiting the importation of a jaguar coat, a crocodile handbag or a mounted bird, the federal government believes that fewer animals will be killed for the wildlife products trade.

The fact that wildlife products are freely sold abroad, including items made from nonendangered wildlife, does not mean they can legally be brought into this country. For example, stuffed animals such as iguanas, armadillos, turtles and birds are sold by street peddlers in many countries. But the traveler may not be aware that the conservation agency of a particular nation may actually restrict the sale or exportation of these products. Some countries have adopted export licensing systems to control or halt the commercial exploitation of their wildlife. In other nations, permits may be required to export hides, skins, or products made from locally endangered or protected wildlife.

These foreign regulations may be poorly publicized or loosely enforced. They may be further undermined by neighboring countries that tolerate the sale of the prohibited or regulated wildlife products. The results are often confusing for American tourists.

Federal law prohibits the importation of fish or wildlife taken, possessed, sold, transported or exported in violation of another nation's laws. Before travelers acquire wildlife items abroad, they should check with foreign wildlife authorities to make sure they can acutally take their purchases out of the country. The name of the appropriate foreign agency can be obtained by contacting the nearest U.S. Consul.

The demand for skins, hides and parts of rare animals is so great and the price is so high that poaching and market hunting have pushed many species to the brink of extinction.

The most popular prhoibited wildlife products sold abroad fall into five categories:

—Tortoise shell jewelry and other products made from the shell of the hawksbill sea turtle;

—Rugs, skins, clothing and hunting trophies made from colorful cats such as the jaguar, cheetah, leopard, margay, ocelot and tiger;

—Whale teeth (ivory) carved into scrimshaw curios and figurines (netsuke);

—Alligators, crocodiles and sea turtles made into luggage, shoes, purses, wallets, belts and other leather goods;

—Bird feathers made into curios or other products of certain birds and mounted specimens.

These items are imported by three general groups: Tourists, commercial importers and criminal violators. Criminal violators have by far the greatest impact on the resource and use elaborate schemes to conceal their activities, including mislabeled shipping containers, forged export permits, bribery and illicit financial transactions.

As the demand and commerce in protected wildlife has increased, special agents of the U.S. fish and wildlife service have intensified their investigations in this country and, in cooperation with foreign officials, in other countries. As a result, a number of significant violations have been uncovered and a staggering amount of restricted wildlife items has been confiscated.

Over 1,000 investigations have been initiated as a result of illegal importations of endangered species. Yet only 27 per cent of all cargo and less than one per cent of passengers are currently being checked closely each year. The fish and wildlife service believes that both the legal and illegal shipments of wildlife products are increasing.

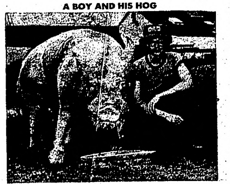
A BOY AND HIS HOG



TONY THURSTON OF MADELIA may only be 16, but he has already gained enough experience to be an excellent hog farmer. He always wanted to raise hogs, and as the oldest of four children, most of the chores in caring for the 700-800 Yorkshires and Durocs on his family's farm fell to him. Two years ago he began helping his father show the pigs at the Minnesota State Fair.

Tony entered State Fair FFA competition on his own last year, and in his first year of exhibiting he nearly swept the competition in Yorkshires and also won the blue ribbon for the champion Duroc boar. Tony admits he was shocked he did so well because he knew so little about showing pigs. "But I listened to all the judges' comments," he says, "and I think I learned 100 percent more about hogs during the Fair than I ever knew before."

With plans that include studying agriculture at the University of Minnesota before going into farming for himself, Tony is looking forward to exhibiting some of his best pigs at this year's Fair, Thursday, Aug. 21 through Labor Day, Sept. 1.
